Death of Reese C. Fleeson, Esq.

Another distinguished and excellent citizen has been called from our midst. This morning, at two o'clock, REESE C. FLEESON, Esq., one of the editors and proprietors of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, expired at his residence in Manchester, after a lingering illness.

Mr. FLEESON'S mother was a sister of the late venerable NEVILLE B. CRAIG, whose death we recently announced. He was a native of Mississippi, but, in early life came to this State, and served his apprenticeship as a printer with Mr. FAY, of Philadelphia. He subsequently removed to Greensburg, Pa., where, from about 1830 to '36, he published the Westmoreland Intelligencer, a sterling and spirited Whig paper. He was subsequently engaged in other publications more or less successful, till 1850, when he and Colonel. J. HENON FOSTER purchased the Dispatch, which, through untiring energy and industry and a stern adherence to right principles, has proved a successful enterprise.

While in Greensburg, Mr. Fleeson was united in marriage to a daughter of the Rev. JOHN BLACK. This lady died many years ago. He subsequently married a Miss Dickson of this city, who survives him.

In every relation in life Mr. Fleeson was a good man—a Christian both by profession and practice. As an editor, he was sternly and inflexibly just—fearless, and sometimes severe. Meanness and corruption found no quarters at his hand. From first to last, in his long career as an editor, he bore a decided testimony against that abomination which is now troubling our country, and he did it fearlessly and without equivocation, when to do so brought down upon a man nothing but obloquy and reproach; and if he did not live to see the complete triumph of his principles, he did live long enough to find himself in agreement with the vast majority of his most intelligent countrymen.

Probable Evacuation of Vicksburg by the Rebels.

In addition to the reports of the evacuation of this rebel stronghold, which come from Washington, Memphis and Murfreesboro, in our dispatches, we may mention that a correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, writing from before Vicksburg under date of March 3, argues in favor of an early evacuation of their stronghold by the rebels. He states that we virtually have possession of every avenue by which the rebels can communicate with the interior, save that over the Black river bridge, and that our forces are now nearly within reach of that, when the city must fall.

The Memphis correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, in connection with this matter of a probable evacuation, writes:

All the canals are now pronounced successful, notwithstanding the sage prediction of a rebel newspaper that the Yankees would fail in the Williams canal, because they would not dig deep enough to cut through the strata of clay that had been found beneath the subsoil. It would appear from recent accounts that even that ditch may yet be of some service to us. It seems the Yankees did dig through the clay, struck the quicksand under it, and as soon as the dam shall be removed from the upper mouth of the canal, the river, now upon the rampage, will rush through it with great force and quickly delve a channel large enough and deep enough to float our heaviest gunboats, and what more do we need? Vicksburg may surrender or hold out, if she can, after this. We can afford to bide our time. But she cannot much longer hold out.

True, the rebels may, through some imperfect management—some loophole unknown and unprotected by our forces—be able to evacuate the place, as they did Corinth, and thus evade capture and destruction. This now seems to be General Grant's only fear, and I am positive that, should the Confederates succeed in accomplishing the manœuvre, they are still in almost as bad a predicament as before. Where are they to get supplies? Where are they to go? The conclusion, to my mind, seems inevitable. They must surrender or starve.

The Petershof.

The English steamer Petershof, which was captured by the Vanderbilt on the 24th ult., while attempting to run the blockade, left London on the 3d of January with a cargo of arms and army stores for the rebels. She was the last vessel named in the second letter of "Anonymous" to Lord Palmerston. Her seizure and the discovery of the nature of her cargo fully justify the conclusion of the writer in the London Daily News when he says: "Surely the shipment to neutral ports of such vast quantities of material and munitions of war is in itself a sufficiently suspicious circumstance to justify the interference of the proper authorities to prevent violations of the law."

THE SAME CHURCH IN DIFFERENT LATITUDES.—In the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, sitting at Georgetown, D. C., a resolution setting forth the duty of loyalty to the Government was laid on the table, by a vote of twenty-seven to eleven. In the East Baltimore Conference of the same Church, in session at York, Pa., the following resolution was adopted by a vote of one hundred and fifty to four:

"Resolved, By the East Baltimore Conference, in Conference assembled, that we reaffirm our loyalty to the government, and our most unflinching devotion to our country in the hour of her peril."

THE REBEL GENERAL LONGSTREET.—We learn from Fortress Monroe that the rebel General Longstreet now has his headquarters at Petersburg, Virginia. He has eighteen thousand troops below that city, but it is not thought that he intends to make an attack on Norfolk. The story of his being in Tennessee proves to be false.

THE "BROAD" CHURCH.—Rev. Charles Kingsley has been chosen by the Prince of Wales as one of the chaplains of his household. The others are Dr. Stanley, Canon of Christ Church, Oxford, Rev. H. M. Birch and Rev. C. J. Tarver. All these clergymen are known as "Broad Churchmen."

THE BATTLE-FIELD OF ANTIETAM.—A revolting spectacle is already presented on the battle-field of Antietam. The earth is washing away from the shallow trenches used for grave, and bodies of the buried soldiers are appearing on the surface in various parts of that vast graveyard.

FROM GEN. HOOKER'S ARMY.—There are symptoms of a coming movement in General Hooker's army. The transportation resources have been cut down, and officers are notified that all superfluous baggage must be sent home. The officers of the line are to be allowed nothing in the shape of camp equipage, except shelter tents, which they can carry on their backs. This means an active and probably arduous campaign. The roads have dried up in that vicinity considerably within the past few days, and everything now looks favorable for a forward movement.—Cor. of N. Y. Eve. Post.

AN ACCIDENT TO SECRETARY SEWARD.—The Washington Star says that on Friday morning, when shaving himself, Secretary Seward, in endeavoring to catch his razor, that was falling from where he had placed it, cut the palm of his right hand so severely that he will probably require an amanuensis to do his writing for some time to come.

A TAX ON THE DEAD.—In Boston the city clerk has to give a permit before a body can be buried in a graveyard. The question has arisen whether the permit had to bear a stamp, and Commissioner Boutwell has decided that it must. So that a man cannot be buried in Boston unless his friends first pay a ten cent tax.

SUGAR-GROWING AT THE WEST.—It is proposed to establish a large sugar refinery in Davenport, Iowa. The cultivation of sorghum promises to become a principal pursuit among the farmers of the West, and refineries will very soon become a necessity.
