...TURDAY MORNING, MARCH 21.

Allegheny Valley Railroad--Extension to Mahoning--The Oil Region.

The attention of the press and of the country has been so taken up with the subject of the war, and of public sentiment in reference to the war, that we have for a long time said very little on the subject of railroads, and of the great sources of wealth to which many of the roads centering in this city lead. In this latter particular none are more important than the Allegheny Valley road, which connects us with the vast and varied wealth which nature has so lavishly stored in the extensive region drained by the river whose name it bears—chief among which are iron, oil and lumber.

Although only finished and in operation as far as Kittanning, (45 miles) that road has been far more successful than many others of much greater length and larger pretensions. Its business has steadily increased, until at length its affairs are so prosperous that the company is able to push the road on to the next important point, the mouth of the Mahoning. This is one of the most important points on the Allegheny river; for it is here that roads from Clarion, Jefferson, Elk, and other counties converge. These roads are generally pretty good, and are much travelled; while the road from this point down to Kittanning is so bad that it is but little used. The distance is only ten miles. This extension, therefore, will put this railroad in connection with all the leading roads of the extensive and rich region lying north of that point and east of the river.

This extension of ten miles brings the road to the place where the original survey leaves the river. Thence it follows the valley of the Mahoning a few miles, passing Stewardson Furnace; thence across to Redbank creek at a place where these two important lumber streams approach within less than a mile of each other. From this last named place the main line continues up the Redbank far into Jefferson county, and thence northeast through Ridgeway to the State line, near Olean, New York. But what is now by far the more important extension from the place where the road reaches the Redbank, is the Clarion Branch, which, bearing northward, reaches the Clarion river at Callensburg, after passing some twenty miles through a beautiful agricultural country, and one of the richest iron regions in Western Pennsylvania. This branch runs exactly in the direction of Franklin and the oil region. From Clarion river to the mouth of Sandy creek the distance is from 20 to 25 miles, through a good country, and, like the country south of the Clarion, rich in iron and coal. Sandy creek is only a short distance down the river from Franklin.

This is the most natural and feasible route by which this city can be brought into railroad connection with the oil region; for it is already made and provided for to the mouth of Mahoning, which is at least three-fifths of the whole distance. But the greatest advantage is, that it will at once accommodate the oil, the iron and the lumber business. Another advantage is the easy grade. On no part of the route will the grade be heavy; but so easy is the grade from the mouth of Mahoning to Pittsburgh, that a single locomotive will be able to transport a train carrying three thousand barrels of oil.

The extension of the road to Mahoning (only ten miles) will, it is estimated, add at least fifty per cent. to its business and revenue, while it will enhance its running expenses very slightly. But were it extended to the oil region, either by the route we have spoken of, or along the bank of the river, it would be one of the most useful and one of the best paying roads in the State. The route we have indicated, however, would be the best, whether utility, profit or distance is taken into view.

From Franklin there will soon be a railroad to Erie; so that this road, if extended to that place, will put this city into direct connection with Erie, and with the great system of railroads which run along the southern shore of Lake Erie.

The Church of England Speaking.

At a public meeting in York, England, at which the Lord Mayor presided, several canons of the Church avowed their hearty support of the cause of the North. The Rev. Canon Hey spoke with great earnestness. In the course of his remarks he said, "there was a disposition amongst Englishmen to take the side of the weaker party, and say, 'Well done, little one.' But it was their duty to look back at the origin of the quarrel, and however they admired the conduct of the Southern Confederacy, they must acknowledge their cause a bad one from the beginning. [Applause.] The policy of the South had always been not only to maintain slavery, but to extend it and make it aggressive."

The Rev. Canon Robinson, in introducing the following resolution, boldly avowed himself a Northern sympathizer:

"That this meeting is decidedly of opinion that the conflict now raging between the two sections of the North American republic had its origin in the question of slavery; and that, as the object of the southern section is, by the evidence of their own official documents, to establish a great slaveholding Confederacy, the meeting, entertaining that unmitigated aversion to slavery which has characterized Englishmen and foreigners, desires to repudiate all sympathy with a State which so avowedly makes slavery the fundamental principle and corner-stone of its constitution, and at the same time to express its hearty appreciation of every honest and sincere effort on the part of Northern statesmen or citizens to free themselves from the shame and guilt of the system."

All the resolutions were unanimously carried; so the established Church of England begins to speak out in our favor.

THE REACTION.—At the late election in Augusta, Me., the Republicans gave their candidate for Mayor exactly the number of votes they gave for Mr. Lincoln in 1860, notwithstanding they have sent hundreds of volunteers to the war. Their majority is one hundred and fourteen more than in 1862. The party, thereabouts, does not seem to be running down.

GREAT RISE OF GOLD IN RICHMOND.—Gold has gone up to 400 per cent. in Richmond, and what is deemed good authority reports private transactions to a considerable amount at as high as 600 per cent.

A REPORT is current in the fashionable circles of London that the Princess Alexandria's arrival is to be the signal for a sweeping reduction of the ladies' skirts.

Letter of General Banks to Govenor Andrew.

The following extract from a business letter written to Governor Andrew by Major General Banks is published in the Boston Traveller. It will be seen that General Banks denies some recent rumors:

"I notice in the papers of the North a report that certain regiments, or detachments, or soldiers of my command, have been ordered or permitted to return to their masters, against their will, to stand guard over and to flog the slaves in this department. It gives me pleasure to be able to say that it is without foundation or justification. In fact, in statement and in implication it is utterly and infamously false.

"As it is made a reproach to Massachusetts that such orders are given by one of her citizens, I desire to say to you, the chief executive magistrate of the State, having had many of her unsurpassed regiments under my command, that I bear constantly in mind that I am a son of Massachusetts, and grateful as the remembrance may be to me and mine, I have yet greater satisfaction in the fact that, as an officer of the army of the United States, following the instructions of the President and the laws of the land, I have never performed, or permitted, or passed, without its appropriate censure, any act inconsistent with my duty, with the spirit and principles of the people among whom I was born, or that, justly interpreted, would not meet their approval, without party distinctions."

Northern and Southern Women.

The other day we took occasion to allude to the lively spirit with which the women of the South enter into the cause of the rebels, and showed how the display of a similar degree of enthusiasm among the women of the loyal States would help the government and sustain the patriotism of our people. A signal illustration of the activity of the Southern females is given in the official order of the rebel General Stuart, just published, which formally appoints Miss Antonio J. Ford to the position of "Honorary Aide-de-Camp" in his military establishment, as a mark of the special confidence he reposes in her "patriotism, fidelity and ability." Stuart further requires that Miss Ford be duly respected and obeyed "by all the lovers of a generous nature"—and the lesson is a good one for our women.

It is by no means essential that every one of our brigadiers should attach a fascinating female to his staff in the honorary capacity of aid-de-camp, nor that the women of the North should unsex themselves like the brilliant and active but somewhat erratic Miss Antonio Ford, but they can do better. They can say good, bold words for Freedom, and not be ashamed to say them; they can tell a copperhead in society that he can do better than be a rebel, and that he should go to his place among the traitors; they can become members of the Loyal Leagues, attend the Union meetings, and in many such ways infuse new life and spirit into the ranks of the people.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

THE UNION SENTIMENT IN MISSOURI.—A letter from Palmyra, Mo., to the Boston Journal says the prospects of that State are most promising:

"The rebel sympathizers are fast selling out and leaving their places to be filled by good and loyal men. The Union sentiment in Missouri is intensely loyal; it recognises but two parties, the one for the Union, the other against it. So we think and act. We are getting more loyal every day. We understand the awful responsibility resting on the President, and we will stand by him through this fiery ordeal, and with him conquer or perish. Such are the sentiments expressed in the current thought, and in the public meetings which gather to consider the posture of affairs and the present crisis. We fear nothing for Missouri."

AN enthusiastic naturalist has made the discovery that the celebrated snake, of which the politicians used to sing—

> "He wires in and wires out
> And leaves the people still in doubt
> Whether the snake that made the track,
> Was going South or coming back"

is a genuine Copperhead, and that when he made the track he was on his way North, and is still lurking in that locality. He cautions patriots to be on their guard, as the reptile is very venomous.—Evansville Journal.

THE IOWA ELECTIONS.—The Republicans of Iowa have swept all before them in the late elections. At Tipton, heretofore strongly Democrat, they carried their entire ticket by a good majority; at Le Claire a success equally decisive was achieved; in Waverly, where the copperheads supposed themselves beyond all possibility of defeat, the whole Union ticket was chosen; in Farmington the same result was reached, the Union vote being double that of their opponents.

THE COPPERHEADS OF BERKS COUNTY are secretly organizing under the lead of prominent snakes of that party, for the purpose of resisting the military laws passed by the last Congress. It is said that these organizations prevail in many other counties in this State. We shall soon see of what metal they are composed, as the military laws will be enforced in spite of every copperhead traitor in the North.

CAST IRON has recently been experimentally manufactured at the Cornwall Iron Works, in Ireland, by the use of condensed peat. The quality of the iron thus produced is said to be equal to the best Swedish iron.

M. FRANCK, a lieutenant of artillery in the French army, has invented a shell which illuminates an area of several hundred yards. Three or four of them are found sufficient to light up an extensive plain.

CONDENSED air in shells is about to receive a trial at Chatham, England. The elasticity of compressed air augmented by heat, as in concussion, is said to be awfully explosive.

A GOOD MOVEMENT.—About sixty women in Madison, Wisconsin, have taken the preliminary steps to form a Union League, to encourage loyalty and bring the weight of their influence against treason.

SOW FLAXSEED! SOW FLAXSEED!
4,000 TONS FLAX STRAW WANTED!

The prevailing high price for all fabrics of Cotton, growing out of the difficulty of procuring the customary supplies of the raw material, has induced the undersigned to resume the business commenced by them several years since of manufacturing wool as known as "FLAX COTTON." If the farmers of this neighborhood can be induced to lend their cooperation by furnishing the requisite amount of Flax Straw, it is believed the enterprise will be crowned with success, and the interests of the whole people greatly promoted thereby.

In many sections of the West, Flax has for several years been extensively cultivated, almost exclusively for the seed, at a time, too, when the current value of seed ranged from one dollar to two dollars and fifty cents per bushel.

At the present time, when Flaxseed sells for from dollars per bushel, the inducement to cultivate the article is very greatly increased.

It is estimated that an acre of fair average land will, under proper cultivation, produce from 10 to 15 bushels of seed, and about two tons of straw.

The undersigned, therefore, desire to invite the attention of farmers to the subject, and to say they will be prepared to purchase, the present season, not less than 1,000 tons of FLAX STRAW, and may require three or four times that quantity, for which a liberal price will be paid.

THIS GREATEST ASSORTMENT with every one in our city is to know what
S. T.—1860—X.
means. The secret can be explained at
FULTON'S DRUG STORE,
Fifth Street,
Where the rush for PLANTATION BITTERS
Has been unparalleled in the history of Patent Medicines. It has had such immense sale, and so medicine has given the universal satisfaction that DRAKE'S PLANTATION BITTERS has done to every one who has tried it.

The sale of these Bitters was at first confined to our extreme Southern cities, but they are now becoming well known throughout the world, and are recommended with the most unbounded confidence for all complaints originating from a disorganized or diseased stomach—such as Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Nervous Affections, Loss of Appetite, Intermittent Fevers, Diarrhœa, Sour Stomach, Headache, Fever and Ague, Weakness.

That you may be your own judge of the efficacy of these celebrated Bitters, we submit a partial formula of the articles of which they are composed:

ST. CROIX RUM.

The tonic properties of pure St. Croix Rum are well known, and it has long been recommended by physicians. It is manufactured from the Sugar Cane Plant, and that we use is selected with great care from the estates of a few planters in the interior of that island.

CALISAYA, OR KING'S BARK.

In 1638, we are told that an Englishman, by the name of Sir John Talbott, employed it with great success in France, in the treatment of Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Nervous Affection, Loss of Appetite, Weakness and Debility, Palpitation of the Heart, Diarrhœa, etc., under the name of English Powders. At length, in the year 1679, he sold the secret of its origin and preparation to Louis XIV., by whom it was divulged. It is now a standard remedy, and is employed in the preparation of the Plantation Bitters.

CASCARILLA BARK

Is another important ingredient. It was known in Germany as early as 1700, and much used as a substitute for Peruvian Syrup. It is employed as a gentle stimulant and tonic, in Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhœa, Cholic, Dysentery, and diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

DANDELION

Is used for Inflamation of the Loins and Spleen, in cases of Biliary secretions and Dropsical Affections, dependent upon obstructions of the abdominal viscera, and derangement of the digestive organs generally.

CHAMOMILE FLOWERS,

Used for enfeebled digestion and want of appetite. A Spanish writer says: "It never fails to relieve Nervous Tremors, Wakefulness, Disturbed Sleep, etc., and that it is used with great effect by the Brazilian, Spanish and Parisian ladies to heighten their color and beauty. It imparts cheerfulness to the disposition, and brill ancy to the complexion."

N. B.—The secret of the immense sale of the Plantation Bitters is their tested purity. The St. Croix Rum, and every article used, is warranted, perfectly pure.
