The Vice President: I have not refused to unquestionable fidelity to those principles. Take an example or two: In 1844, the principle of protection to American industry was the paramount question in Pennsylvania. The friends of Messrs. Polk and Dallas, knowing this to be so, pledged them to that principle by getting up the rallying cry of "Polk, Dallas and the Tariff of '42," and by inserting the same words upon their banners; yet no sooner were those gentlemen in office than they went to work to repeal that tariff law; and Mr. Dallas, as President of the Senate, consummated the work by giving his easting vote for that repeal.

Take another example: Mr. Buchana, for the senate of the sena while a candidate in 1856, gave a solemn pledge that he would see to it that the people of Kansas should have a fair popular vote upon their Constitution. How he kept that pledge is known to every man who flagrantly to violate the rights of this knows anything about the history of the House. The order of the House is in my country during the last five years. The only safe way to judge a man is by the enly safe way to judge a man is by the general tener of his life, and by the company he keeps. A truly loyal man will have no traitors in his train; and corrupt men will not cluster around a man who is disturbance still continues; the House still disturbance still continues.

every one who knows him will endorse at once,-a man whose eminent abilities have given him a character throughout the State: whose unsullied integrity of character, devoted loyalty, and untiring labors in the cause of the country in its darkest in the cause of the country in its darkest to declare that the honor of the present hour, and whose unstituted generosity to the soldiers and their families have endeared him to thousands of grateful hearts. Can such a man be found? Yes; happily we have a few such men. In the Hon. Thomas M. Howe, of this city, all these qualities are found in an eminent degree; qualities are found in an eminent degree; and it will be a happy day in the annals of

But while we say this, we would by no means ignore the high claims of other gentlemen who are dewe would by no means ignore the high claims of other gentlemen who are deservedly favorites in other sections of the servedly favorites in other sections of the State; for example, the Hoa. John Covorg, one of the truest and most laborious friends the country has had in this perflous crisis, and a man of great personal popularity. Governor Cuerin is also a strong candidate; but as the time has fully come when the section of the strong that the section is, I may add, tremendous. Berlim has never been so excited since The Holland A. D. Molasses; 100 bbls.
