THURSDAY MORNING, APRIL 9.

Trade with the Insurgent States.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued an important circular or order regulating trade and intercourse with the insurrectionary States, superseding the regulations which have been in force since August last. Experience has shown that many abuses had grown up under those regulations, which it is the intention of these new regulations to suppress, particularly the large supplies which the rebels were able to derive from the exchange of cotton and other commodities for merchandize and gold. Under these new regulations the employment of coin in these purchases is strictly prohibited.

The Secretary of War has also issued an order strictly forbidding military officers, or any persons connected with the army, from engaging in any trade whatever with the people of the insurgent States, except for things necessary for the service. The Secretary of the Navy has issued a similar order to his department of the service, and the President, by proclamation, has defined the States and parts of States wherein these regulations are to be operative, and declares the penalty of forfeiture of all goods, wares and merchandize purchased in violation of these regulations.

The Past and the Incoming Congress.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette gives lively notices of the most distinguished members of the past and incoming Congress, from the several States. We shall only take from his letter what he says of the Pennsylvania members:

Pennsylvania sends back the most remarkable man of the last House, Mr. Thaddeus Stevens, whom even Mr. Buchanan's liberal contributions couldn't keep the old Lancaster district from returning; and Philadelphia gains two for us, and still holds on to Judge Kelly, a self-made man, whose career has been a wonderful illustration of American possibilities, and whose place in Congress is worthy the great city he represents. General Moorhead, too, "Old Pig Iron and Coal," comes back from Pittsburgh; but we shall miss from the same city Mr. McKnight. The new member, Judge Williams, shall gain the confidence and esteem his predecessor enjoyed, he will be fortunate. Another familiar Pennsylvania name will be missed, in the proceedings of the next House, Mr. Hendrick B. Wright, he having paid for his loyalty in supporting the Government by defeat; and future swindlers and contractors will rejoice at the absence of that prince of all investigators, Mr. John Covode.

We think the writer if mistaken in the identity of the new member from the 23d district. He speaks of Judge Williams. Now we have a Judge Williams here, a man than whom none stands higher as a gentleman, a Christian and a jurist; but he is not Mr. McKnight's successor in the 23d district. The Hon. Thomas Williams, who is not and never was a judge, but whose experience and fame as a legislator are second to those of no man in this State, holds that position, and our friends in Washington will greet no ordinary man when he takes his seat for the first time in Congress.

The Reports about Charleston.

The following article from the New York Evening Post will be read with interest, as it is evidently written by one having full knowledge of the subject which it presents so opportunely and in so clear a manner:

Charleston will be attacked the moment Admiral Dupont's preparations are completed—and not a moment before. The excitement of the public mind by rumors and exaggerations is useless, and can do no good. To allay it will be useful, and for that reason we set down here a few facts.

First—A large part of the land forces in the Department of the South was probably landed on Edisto and John's Islands by last Saturday. These forces were of course directly opposed to the rebel forces; our picket lines have been for two weeks in sight of the enemy's; and one or two insignificant skirmishes between picket guards have taken place. Such affairs will continue; they are easily magnified by rumor into important engagements; but they have in reality nothing important in them except this, that they tell of opposing forces within cannon shot of each other.

Secondly—Our iron-clad fleet was probably, unless prevented by a storm, gathered together in the neighborhood of North Edisto, on Saturday last. From this base the operations against Charleston will be conducted, and a harbor of refuge will be secured for the Monitors and other parts of the attacking fleet, in case a storm should interrupt their movements.

Third—The attack on Fort McAllister was of immense advantage, in showing where the Monitors are strong and where they needed to be better protected or further strengthened. In the weeks that have elapsed since this trial by actual battle, our best mechanics have been busy day and night—not repairing damages, for the damage done was but slight—but making such changes and improvements in the Monitor fleet as were suggested or shown to be necessary by the engagement with Fort McAllister. The net results of that battle were to give confidence to the commanders and crews of our iron-clads, to enable us to make the Monitors still more valuable than they were before, and to send them against the rebel work before Charleston with every prospect of success.

Lastly, the attack is likely to be an affair of some days. No decisive result is looked for on the first day; it may even be that in the first week of what, at this distance, looks like active operations, nothing of real moment will be accomplished. There may be reconnoissance to draw the enemy's fire and discover the precise line of his works and the weight of his metal. There may be delays on account of the weather though we hope not. The public should then remain tranquil. It is useless to become excited at every rumor; we are sure that the brave and tried men who will make the attack will do all that the American people can ask of their sailors; we are sure nothing that skill, or forethought, or experience could provide to insure a successful result has been omitted; we have many chances in our favor; we have as Admiral the gallant Dupont, who led the attack on Port Royal, and by his genius made useless the preparations of the rebels there—and he may teach the Charleston rebels another new trick. And, finally, we may add that the large army reported to have been collected at Charleston by Beauregard will be of no use to him. Ten thousand men would serve his purpose as well as the fifty thousand he is said to have on hand. His soldiers cannot withstand our iron-clads; and the event will show, also, we believe, that his batteries must succumb.

"I have taken the ground that we have gone far enough in this war. I am not here to retract anything I have said." So said Ex-Governor T. H. Seymour, the defeated candidate for Governor in Connecticut—the man who headed the party which the Post called "gallant conservatives," and hoped for their success, saying: "We hope for a conservative victory, but dread the odds against US will prove too powerful to be overcome." Sure enough, "we" were beaten very badly; but it was nothing to what will happen to "we" in Pennsylvania next October.

It is said that one hundred men have been enlisted in the vicinity of Louisville, Ky., within two weeks, for the rebel guerrilla army in Tennessee.

A Card from Mr. Howe.

Many will read the following card with regret, but with no abatement of esteem for its excellent author:

PITTSBURGH, April 8, 1863.

Messrs. Editors: I am mainly indebted, no doubt, to a complimentary notice of my name in connection with the approaching Gubernatorial nomination, which appeared in the editorial columns of the Gazette a few days since, for the impression prevalent in the neighborhood, and to some extent throughout the Western part of the State, that I am a candidate for that distinguished honor.

To prevent any further misapprehension, it is due to my friends to say that I have no aspirations for the nomination whatever. I have uniformly so stated to those who have consulted me on the subject, and I desire now to repeat that I know of no contingency likely to occur under which I should feel at liberty to consent to the use of my name.

I am none the less indebted to you, however, for the kind manner in which you have been pleased to speak of me, esteeming as I do the confidence and regard of my fellow citizens as of far greater value than any office which it is in their power to confer. Very respectfully, yours &c., &c.,

THOS. M. HOWE.

In speaking of the Hon. Thomas M. Howe, a few days ago in connection with the approaching nomination for Governor, we only gave expression to the genuine feelings of our own hearts, and in what we said we know that we were in true sympathy with thousands of other citizens. For reasons, however, which it is not for us nor for any to gainsay, he has seen proper to decline being regarded as a candidate for nomination. It therefore becomes the duty of those who would have urged Mr. Howe's claims with great earnestness, to cast about for some gentleman upon whom they may rally. We have already spoken favorably of Hon. John Covode in that connection, and we have no hesitation to do so again; and in so doing, we may point to one more evidence of his devotion to the cause of the Union in the masterly report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War, of which committee he was a very efficient member.

Mr. Covode can do what very few men who have borne so conspicuous a part in the public service can do—defy his enemies to point to a single act inconsistent with the character of a true patriot and an honest man. Both the friends and the enemies of the government have always known exactly where to find him; and while the latter have always hated him cordially, the former could rely upon him without the slightest misgiving.

For several days our columns have been so occupied with the report upon the Conduct of the War, that we have been obliged to postpone the publication of a number of good things, among which was the following letter from an esteemed correspondent in Philadelphia. It now comes in very opportunely:

PHILADELPHIA, April 3, 1863.

The great reaction in popular sentiment is producing a visible effect here on blatant Copperheadism. The crazy attacks on the Union and its legitimate defenders by Read, Ingersoll, and other specimens of faded politicians, have proved too much for the patience of more moderate and patriotic Democrats, and like Van Buren, a number of them are now "getting out of the coach." The machinery of the party is, however, in the hands of the secession wing, who now have an "organ" called the Age, which is conducted by three broken-down politicians imported from a distance. The brains of the firm are represented by the "Swiss hireling" Gazzo, who, like Sir Dugald Dalgetty, will fight on any side that pays well.

The news from little Rhody (God bless her!) took all parties by surprise. The clean work which she has made with Copperheadism is an example worthy of extensive imitation. May Connecticut do likewise!

The Union League house, on Chestnut street, is one of our institutions. It is the resort of men of wealth and refinement, and presents a marked contrast to the den on Walnut street, where, every Saturday night, a mixed assemblage is doomed to listen to dreary disloyalty against the Union, by the magnates of the Democratic party.

People here are beginning to talk about the gubernatorial election. As a true chronicler of events as they transpire, I cannot, if I would, avoid noticing the growing popularity of Mr. Covode with the Union voters. Judging from present appearances, he will carry the delegates of a large number of the eastern counties. If he does equally well in the west, I do not see how he can fail to get the nomination. But no matter who the nominee may be, he will receive the hearty support of the friends of the Union and the Constitution. X.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Mail Dispatches to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

WASHINGTON, April 7, 1863.

FIRST SESSION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia met on yesterday for the first time. The Chief Justice in his charge to the Grand Jury dwelt mainly upon two points. He called their attention in the first place, to the various crimes mentioned in the act of March 2d, entitled "an act to prevent and punish frauds upon the government of the United States." He next took up the subject of treason, citing in the course of his remarks the penalties attached to the "commission of treason," the concealment of the knowledge of treason," inciting or engaging in rebellion, or aiding those who do so.

The law for the prevention and punishment of frauds against the government, embraces the offences of presenting false claims for payment; using fraudulent vouchers; taking false oaths for the purpose of obtaining payment from government; forging signatures to vouchers; entering into combinations to cheat government; stealing or embezzling public property; taking false vouchers or making false delivery in true vouchers; and buying arms, ammunition and clothing from officers or soldiers in the service. The punishment for any of these offences is fine or imprisonment.

The penalty for the commission of treason is death and freedom of his (the traitors) slaves; or imprisonment not less than five years, with fine not less than ten thousand dollars and freedom of slaves.

The concealment of the knowledge of treason is punishable by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and imprisonment not exceeding seven years. The penalty for inciting, engaging in, or aiding rebellion is fine not over ten thousand dollars, imprisonment not over ten thousand dollars and liberation of slaves.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Hon. Edward McPherson, who has just taken the place of Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue, was the youngest member of the last Congress, and an important member of the Committee on the Conduct of the War. He owes his defeat to Stuart's cavalry raid into Pennsylvania, which took place on the day of election last fall.

The spring State elections in the Northern States are all now over, and there will be no more voting until September, when Maine and Vermont hold their elections. The annual contest in Eastern Virginia will take place on the 25th of May, when a Governor is to be chosen for a four years term. In August elections will be held in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, North Carolina and Texas.

At Hilton Head, the other Sunday, a colored woman went to church and discovered her old master disguised as a black man. She gave information to the guard, and he was taken before the Provost Marshal as a spy. It is thought that there are others like him on the island.

The Police Superintendent of Washington reports that there are in that city five thousand six hundred and fifty persons whose movements require the attention of the police.

HAVE YOU CORNS?

Corns extracted and permanent cure warranted for

ONE DOLLAR EACH.

Instantaneous and efficacious cures of Corns and Bunions without cutting or causing pain. Dr. Randall, who has devoted years of study exclusively to this branch of surgery, can be consulted at his office on DIAMOND STREET, second door in the one-story building above Grant street, opposite the Court House, during the present week. Read the following:

PITTSBURGH, April 2, 1863.

Dr. Randall has this day operated on a Corn for me very successfully, which I think worth fifty dollars.

J. WESTRAY, Dentist, 188 Penn street.

From J. H. Connolly, firm of Cook & Co.

Dr. Randall has this day removed an old and painful Bunion from my foot. I have had the same operated on repeatedly without success, but I am happy to state that the Doctor has effected a perfect cure, without the least pain. Being a medical man myself, I can testify to his knowledge of the pathological condition and formative process of Corns and Bunions. J. H. CONNOLLY.

Wheeling, March 4, 1863.

R. G. Sherwood, Ticket Agent of the Western Railroad, says: "Dr. Randall has this day removed what had for a very long time caused me much annoyance, namely: some very painful hard and soft corns."

Mr. A. W. Banks, one of the Local Reporters of the Dispatch, says: "Dr. Randall operated upon a gentleman in my presence, and removed a large corn from between the toes. The patient stated that he suffered no pain from the operation."

Should any person doubt the efficacy of Dr. Randall's practice, he will readily come forward and extract a corn gratuitously, in order to convince that such a discovery was never before practiced. Thousands of testimonials can be seen from this and the continent of Europe.

A CARD.—Having made arrangements to operate before the Dental Colleges of the United States, and the various Dental Conventions for the purpose of bringing before the profession my APPARATUS FOR EXTRACTING TEETH WITHOUT PAIN, I shall of necessity be obliged to be away from my office the greater part of next Spring and Summer, and that my patients may not be losers thereby, I have associated with me Mr. E. J. WAYE, a Dentist of well known ability in every branch of the profession, and whose elegant fittings are the admiration of the profession wherever seen. Dr. Waye will be with me from April 1st, and will take the general charge of the office, leaving me free to devote my whole attention to extracting teeth with my apparatus, and to the mechanical part of the profession. Persons who may have hitherto failed to have their Teeth extracted for want of time on my part, or from doubts in the apparatus, are assured that such difficulty no longer exists, as I have made many improvements, and will devote my whole time to it.

References in regard to the painlessness and safety of the operation given if desired, and from Medical gentlemen too. Remember that cold weather is the time when the apparatus can be used to its best advantage.

R. OUDRY, Dentist,
