Our Belations with Great Britain.

The following article from the New York

Evening Post will be read with interest, both on account of the important statement:

The newspapers speak of a dispatch, now supposed to be on its way from the State Department at Washington to our Minister in Register in Register in Register in State Department at Washington to our Minister in Register in Register in Register in Register in Register in the Register in Register TO COUNTRY MERCHANTS AND CHUM AISISTANT QUARTERNASTER'S OFFICE, SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 18. ORIS Assistant Quarters of the Control of the Contr REDUCTION Our Relations with Great Britain. EATON, MACRUM & CO. The following article from the statement is tembodies, and its manly sentiment:

The newspapers speak of a dispatch, now supposed to be on its way from the State Department at Washington to our Minister in Rogland, in which it is demanded that the encouragement given by the English the encouragement given by the English the encouragement, to the fitting out of piratical monaches and the fitting sale fitti both on account of the important statement it embodies, and its manly sentiment:

The newspapers speak of a dispatch, now supposed to be on its way from the State Department at Washington to our Minister in England, in which it is demanded that the encouragement given by the English government, to the fitting out of piratical yearsels to plunder our commerce, shall cause. We suppose the rumor to be true, since this is the only course that our government can take with credit. The connitivance of the British ministry with the piratical to our trade are so mischievous, that the most cold-blooded of politicians could hardly help speaking with energy on such a provocation.

We will suppose such a message to have been sent; the honor of the country will then require that the answer be given without any country of the late attack and its results. We cannot expect to be always neutrals; and if a war arises to which we are parties and the Americans are not, the prevent of our sensies to have shipe-of war built in American harbors would be a most serious danger to British commerce."

The London News argues the case on the same ground. We make a short quotation:

"The precedent we now create will inevitably be adopted as a rule of action toward courselves hereafter, and it is essential for our own sake that the laws of neutrality should be enforced in a manner to deter the unscrupulous from altempting to infringe them. No one will pretend to say that this was done in the case-of the Alabama. From whatever cause, there was a most manifest and disastrus failure of justices of the same and to the propellers.
