THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 14.

Hooker's Late Expedition.

In noticing an article from the pen of Mr. EMIL SCHALK, whose work on military strategy has been widely and favorably commented upon, a writer in the New York Evening Post makes several good points. Mr. SCHALK blamed Gen. HOOKER for not taking his army across the river, at the upper fords, but this writer reminds him that "this would have afforded a wiley and needy enemy a fine chance at our depot of supplies at Falmouth and Aquia creek." Mr. SCHALK, however, approves the general strategy of Gen. HOOKER. The writer in the Evening Post, before alluded to, remarks in conclusion:

When Gen. Hooker undertook his campaign he did not intend to fight the army of North Carolina or the troops beyond Suffolk. He evidently expected our forces at these points would keep the enemy or follow them in their retreat, or at least inform him of it. In order to make this more secure he detached his cavalry to destroy the enemy's communications; not his entire force of this arm, as Mr. Schalk seems to assume for Averill's command was only to proceed to Gordonsville and destroy the depot and connection there, then return to his right wing as a support. The destruction of this most important connection was not effected, consequently, the communication with Richmond via Lynchburg and Petersburg remained unimpaired, notwithstanding Stoneman's brilliant foray on the eastern line of communication.

It is now known from Lee's dispatch that Gen. Longstreet's army, which two weeks ago was laying siege to Suffolk, was present; also that Gen. Hill, who three weeks ago had cornered Foster in North Carolina, was wounded in this action, and must have had his army with him.

Gen. Hooker discovered this unequal force after arriving at Chancellorville, and prudent as brave, made a reconnoisance, and took a strong position instead of rashly advancing.

For this the country has to thank him, and "Fighting Joe Hooker" has shown that bravery is not the only soldier's quality he possesses. He has inspired his friends with new confidence in his skill as a General.

CAUSE OF THE REPORTED RECROSSING OF THE RAPPAHANNOCK.—A correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post telegraphs from Washington: An order for the recrossing of the river was issued last week, but it has not yet been executed. Gen. HOOKER'S personal arrangements, however, indicate that he expects to be employed in some new enterprise at once.

—This order, if some impulsive news-collecter about the camp got to hear of it, would easily appear to him nearly equivalent to Gen. HOOKER'S authority for stating that the subject of it was already an accomplished fact.

THE DAMAGE DONE TO FORT SUMTER.—Charleston papers are very silent about the injuries done to Fort Sumter in the late assault by the iron-clads, but a letter from a correspondent on board the Ironsides to the Baltimore American, says that as soon as the fleet withdrew staging or scaffolding was erected on the outside of the fort, and for more than a month past the rebels have been at work repairing damages, and are still at work. There are large holes in the walls very distinctly seen.

—The above abundantly corroborates the statement of Gen. Stoughton and other officers, who, while they were prisoners in the hands of the rebels at Richmond, heard that Fort Sumter was so much shattered by our iron-clads that even a little more perseverance would have put it hors de combat.

WHO KILLED STONEWALL JACKSON?—The following is from the Richmond Enquirer, of the 7th inst:

Our base foe will exult in the disaster to Jackson; yet the accursed bullet that brought him down was never moulded by a Yankee. Through a cruel mistake, in the confusion the hero received two balls from some of his own men, who would all have died for him.

CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.—A Washington dispatch says:

The Treasury is in excellent condition. Mr. Chase has ten millions of dollars accumulated, all of which will be paid to the army and navy within a few days. Every requisition upon the Treasury is honored, and the financial situation was never better.

THE CAPTURED STEAMER BERMUDA, which is an iron vessel, and said to be as fast as the Alabama, is at Philadelphia, where a crew has been ordered to her, and the vessel will be sent in pursuit of the Anglo-rebel pirates which have been preying so long upon the American commercial marine.

WE INVITE attention to the very interesting statement of Gen. Burnside in the case of Mr. Vallandigham's application for a writ of habeas corpus before the Circuit Court of the United States in Cincinnati.

The Mississippi Valley--Almost Redeemed.

The gratifying progress that Gen. Grant is making in circumventing the rebel army in Mississippi is one of the most hopeful features of the war. The West is not divided into many separate topographical systems, each independent of the other, as is the case with the Atlantic Seaboard States. The New England harbors might be blockaded by an enemy, and New York not feel it. New York harbor might be closed, and yet the States conduct a foreign commerce without limit. It is different in the West. The Mississippi Valley is a grand unit, and a blockade of its great river at a single point, as at Vicksburg, acts as a paralysis on commerce throughout its whole vast extent—from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. It is easy to comprehend, therefore, what an inspiriting and vitalising effect will be produced on the loyal millions of the Mississippi Valley by the success of Gen. Grant in removing the rebel blockade from the Mississippi River.

Once give the Union gunboats complete control of the Mississippi river, and the rebellion will be more than one-half exterminated. Neither Confederate power, nor any other hostile power, domestic or foreign, will ever be able to recover possession of any portion of that river or its valley, or prevent the reconstruction on its banks of that Union whose foresight purchased it, whose energy peopled it, whose arms defended it, and whose free principles, under the blessing of Heaven, will find there a home for future centuries. It will animate the West with a new and noble zeal to find they have pushed the legitimate power of the Government through to the Gulf, and thus recovered their own natural and constitutional rights. And in the midst of this joy they will be more ready to offer new armies to the Republic. —N. Y. Times.

EMIGRATION TO THE UPPER MISSOURI.—The Missouri Republican says that several steamboats loaded with emigrants, are about to leave that city for the different points on the Upper Missouri, as far as Ft. Benton. The emigrants, settling in Idaho and Washington territories, will engage in mining and agricultural pursuits; developing the vast resources of those rich regions, and swelling the population to a point which will justify, at no distant day, the formation of state governments.

Stoneman's Expedition--Some Important Additional Particulars.

We have already published an account of Stoneman's remarkable exploit; but the following, from the New York Times' correspondent, Mr. Paul, who accompanied General Stoneman's expedition, and which concludes an interesting account, contains additional observations of value:

A SUMMARY OF ACHIEVEMENTS.

To sum up—Gen. Stoneman moved about within the enemy's lines at will for nine days, with a force not exceeding 5,000 men; disabled every line of communication between the army of the Rappahannock and the rebel capital, and the canal through which more than one-half of their supplies are received, so that, in the opinion of competent judges, neither line, provided the rebels have every facility for the work, can be repaired in less than four weeks; destroyed millions of dollars' worth of commissary stores, and other supplies; obstructed travel upon the main pikes, by destroying all bridges over large streams; gave the citizens of ten counties, viz: Culpepper, Spottsylvania, Orange, Hanover, Henrico, Louisa, Goochland, Fluvanna, King William and New Kent an opportunity to see for themselves that not only are the Yankee soldiers confident and in good spirits, but are really human beings and not inhuman savages, as represented by the Richmond chivalry; captured hundreds of horses, and, above all, met the one great objection made to the emancipation proclamation, so far as the counties visited are concerned, by letting the colored population know that they are free, and weakening the producing class in rebeldom by the removal of hundreds of able-bodied men, and sowing the seed of demoralisation among the rest, so that the laboring class, in fact as well as theory, becomes a dangerous element. All this has been accomplished by the raid of Gen. Stoneman, with the loss, probably, of less than one hundred men, all told, only two of whom were killed. As an offset to this loss our troops killed a number of rebels, and captured between one and two hundred prisoners.

THE REBELS AT HOME.

In the counties visited there were but few rebels found at home, except the very old and the very young. In nine days I travel I did not see fifty able-bodied men who were not in some way connected with the army. Nearly every branch of business is at a stand-still. The shelves in stores are almost everywhere empty; the shop of the artisan is abandoned and in ruins. The people who are to be seen passively submit to everything that emanates from Richmond without a murmur; they are, for the most part, simple-minded, and ignorant of all that is transpiring in the great theatre about them. An intelligent-looking man in Columbia laughed heartily when told that Union troops occupied New Orleans—Jeff Davis would let them have it were such the fact; and I could not find a man who would admit that the Confederates had ever been beaten in a single engagement. These people do not even read the Richmond papers, and about all the information they do obtain is what is passed about in the primitive style, from mouth to mouth. Before this raid, they believed that the Union soldiers were anything but civilized beings, and were stricken with terror when their approach was heralded. Of six churches seen in one day, in only one had there been religious services held within six months. One-half at least of the dwelling houses are unoccupied, and fast going to decay.

ARE THE REBELS SHORT OF PROVISIONS?

The fear of famine was everywhere expressed; the Government seizes upon everything that can go to sustain the army, leaving those who are not in the army to shift as best they can. Many have provisions concealed to avoid the searching eyes of the Government agents. Through the agency of negroes large quantities of provisions thus hidden away were brought to light for the benefit of Union soldiers. The farmer's fold is regularly culled of all marketable sheep, swine and beeves, and what is left behind is not fit for the butcher's stall. The larder of the largest planters contains little else than bacon and cornmeal. The wheat crop, now coming forward, is immense; in fact, little else has been put in the ground. The rich valleys of the James and Rapidan rivers are vast wheat fields; more, in fact, than can be gathered, unless the army is turned to this work. The negroes are not numerous enough for the task, even were they not in a fair way of being so thoroughly demoralized as to refuse to work unless paid in "greenbacks."

THE NEGROES.

The negroes everywhere have an idea—how it got into their heads they cannot exactly tell, but it is there—that the Yankee troops were their friends, notwithstanding the contrary assertion of their masters, who from infancy they have been taught to obey. They everywhere crowded upon our columns, and begged to be permitted to go along, and not unfrequently brought one or more horses with them as a sort of bribe. They pointed out where valuable horses were concealed; gave information as to the movement of Confederate troops, and at several places sat up all night to bake corn cakes for the Yankees, and for which they asked no remuneration. Some of them were so overjoyed at the sight of our soldiers that they gave vent to their feelings in prayer, thanking Jesus fervently for sending us.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Mail Dispatches to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

WASHINGTON, May 12, 1863.

CANARDS.

The rumors published in the New York and Philadelphia newspapers of the capture of Richmond and the crossing of the Rappahannock, are pure inventions to affect the gold market. Up to a late hour this afternoon no movement had taken place to warrant the belief that any demonstration had been undertaken against Richmond.

A PLEASANT INCIDENT.

C. W. Merrill, a private in the 19th Mass., was shot through the head in one of the late battles, the ball passing just below the front lobe of the brain; and was also struck in the breast, immediately over the heart, by a Minie ball, which almost pierced a testament he had in his bosom, and made a severe contusion on the breast. Major Ben. Perley Poore, of the Boston Journal, found him in the hospital. The brave boy spoke with regret of his loss of the testament, which his mother had given him. The Major took the tattered volume and promised a better one in its place. Procuring a fine volume, he, and Senator Sumner, waited upon the President, and showing him the testament, told him the story. The President was so much interested that he took the volume which was to be sent to the soldier and wrote in it an autograph note of cheer and encouragement on the fly-leaf.

INTERNAL REVENUE DECISIONS.

Commissioner Lewis has decided that in computing stamps for promissory notes, the number of days, and not the number of months, is to be considered. That subsistence and clothing, but not medical attendance of slaves, are to be allowed where the planter returns all products as a basis for income tax.

ORDERED TO JOIN GEN. ROSECRANS.

Assistant Surgeon John W. Foye, of the Regular Army, has been ordered to report in person to Gen. Rosecrans. The General of the brigade and the Colonel of the 11th Massachusetts Regiment, to which Surgeon Foye belonged, both endorsed the order of transfer with a protest against his removal from the command in which he had rendered such valuable service.

FURTHER INTERNAL REVENUE DECISIONS.

Writs of error and of certiorari to remove proceedings from an inferior to a superior Court, and appeals from the judgment or decree of an inferior to a superior Court do not require stamps.

A paper in the form of a note with a seal is a bond and requires to be stamped accordingly.

A note payable one day after date is subject to the same rate of duty as a note for a period of time not exceeding thirty-three days. If such a note be allowed to run for years before payment, the payee will take and hold it at his peril, and it will be for the courts to decide, when the proper time arrives whether he has a valid cause of action.

An amicable action of mere facias, with or without confession of judgment, requires a 50 cent stamp, as original process.

Articles of Association under the National Banking Law require to be stamped as agreements or contracts. Preliminary certificate requires a certificate stamp.
