He has organized a cavalry force which has twice whipped the enemy's and once rid-den within the defences of Bichmond, and which has performed even more brillian deeds than those which made Lee and Stu deeds than those which made Lee and Stu-art famous and dreaded while the Fotomas army was on the Peninsula. He has fought a battle, against many disadvantages, in which he inflicted an irreparable loss upon the enemy, in the death of Stonewall Jack-son. And within two weeks he has met Lee at every point, and, as it now appears, has forced him, by timely dispositions and unexpected attacks, to put off and to reform the plans he was about to excente. A gen-eral who has done so much deserves fur-ther trial. He may not prove a great com-the the has already shown Lee that nander, but he has already shown Lee tha
