MORNING AND EVENING EDITIONS, DAILY, CONTAINING THE LATEST NEWS UP TO THE HOUR OF PUBLICATION.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 30.

Hooker Relieved.

The country was astounded this morning by the sudden announcement that Gen. HOOKER had been relieved, at his own request, of the command of the Army of the Potomac, and that Gen. MEADE has taken his place. We have no knowledge of the causes which led to so grave a change at this critical juncture, nor have we any inclination to indulge in comments, other than to say, that such work is not calculated to give assurance to the nation.

The Repulse of Banks.

The account given by the New York Herald, of Saturday, and published in this paper, of a repulse of the Union troops, in an attempt to storm Port Hudson, is manifestly greatly exaggerated, The affair took place on the 14th (Sunday.) The loss is stated at 700 killed and wounded. By a later account we learn that on the following day Gen. BANKS issued a congratulatory address to his army on their steady advance, stating that he was confident of an immediate and triumphant issue of the conflict:

We are at all points upon the threshold of his fortifications. One more advance, and they are ours.

Our men are reported to have behaved magnificently; but the difficulties of the ground, and, it is said, insufficient reconnoissances, caused the attack to fail.

The New York Commercial, of Saturday, makes the following remarks upon this affair, which we emphatically endorse:

We regret to learn by the correspondence, that the plans for the last assault upon Port Hudson were matured on Saturday evening, and that the fight took place on Sunday. It has been noticed in this war that in the case of Sunday battles, the attacking party has generally been worsted. The rule has been nearly invariable, and if no other reason should control, there is evidence in this array of testimony that the God of the Sabbath does not look with favor upon the desecration of His holy day. The President and several general officers have issued orders against Sunday duty and labor on the part of our forces, but every little while we read of deliberately formed plans, by which engagements are arranged for Sunday, and we regret to say that almost as often we read of disaster. The secular days of the week are amply for military purposes. The army needs the rest and the country demands the repose of Sunday, while the claims of religion and the faith which inspires our efforts, demand that the law of God and the wishes of the Christian world be respected.

The Success of Federal Operations in Louisiana.

The official report of Col. Thomas E. Chickering, recently published, shows that during his administration as military Governor of Opelousas, Louisiana, and Commandant of the United States Military Depot at Barris Landing, six thousand bales of cotton were collected in the parish of St. Landry and shipped to New Orleans, besides large quantities of sugar, molasses and other products of the country. Upwards of two thousand freedmen were sent by Col. Chickering from Barris Landing by steamer to New Orleans, and thence to the government plantations. The mills at Opelousas and vicinity were set to work and kept in use grinding corn, of which thousands of bushels were issued daily to the army and contrabands. A free market was opened at Opelousas, from which the public were supplied gratuitously with fresh meat and corn meal. The printing offices were opened and worked by the Forty-First Massachusetts regiment. A daily paper was issued from the office of the Courier.

The report concludes by delivering over to the Quartermaster at Brashear the train of six hundred and forty wagons, over three thousand mules and horses, an ammunition train of fifty army wagons, and seven thousand three hundred freedmen which had marched from Bain's Landing to Brashear, a distance of one hundred and ten miles, in five days, without the loss of a wagon or part of the train. Nearly three million dollars will be realized to the government from this one part of General Banks' march to Alexandria.

The Late Attack on Charleston.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal, who was present at the engagement in Charleston harbor, says:

The evidence multiplies that we came very near taking Fort Sumter in the attack in April. Intelligence has been received from one who has been in the fort since the attack. He says that the wall on the northeastern face is cracked from top to bottom; that the last shots went through the wall, clear across the area to the opposite walls; that on the morning after the fight pieces of canvas were placed over the breaches to hide them from our sight; that the officer in command telegraphed to Beauregard during the engagement that he would be compelled to surrender. A portion of this is corroborative of the testimony of Captain Ammen, who was confident that his last shots went completely through the wall. It was apparent to all of us who watched that fight that after the first half hour the fire of the fort perceptibly slackened, and almost ceased on the northeastern face. Admiral Dupont evidently lost a golden opportunity when he decided not to renew the attack on the following day.

THE POSITION AT VICKSBURG.—The St. Louis Republican, in a recent article on the position of affairs at Vicksburg, says:

"General Grant has not been willing to abide altogether by the chance of Pemberton's surrender on account of lack of provisions and ammunition. Hence he has constantly kept his topographical engineers and working parties engaged in making scientific approaches, with a view to rendering the Confederate works penetrable by a final assault. We confess we look more to this than to the starving out process for speedy success at Vicksburg, and unless all signs fail, we do not see how the crowning victory can be delayed many days longer."

SPICY RESOLVE OF MISSOURI SOLDIERS.—At a recent meeting of officers and soldiers of the Second Provisional Regiment of East Missouri Militia, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we adopt the following as our platform as regards rebeldom: Emancipation with deportation; sequestration without litigation; confiscation without mitigation; extermination without prosecution; confiscation without hotheration, and damnation without reservation or any hesitation, as the means of bringing to a speedy termination the Southern Confederation.

PUT TO THEIR DESIGNED USE.—Copperhead newspapers are sometimes put to the use for which their publishers design them. In Dodge county, Wisconsin, some days ago, an enrolling officer was shot while peaceably engaged in his duties by a copperhead assistant. The wad with which he was shot consisted of a piece of a malignant "democratic" journal published at Milwaukie.

Journals of a certain class are fond of asserting that "paper pellets" would be more effective in suppressing rebellion than bullets. Do they refer to their administration in the form and manner adopted in Wisconsin?

THE Philadelphia Ledger says that a handsome dwelling on Mount Vernon street, in that city, has been purchased out of a fund raised by prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is to be presented to Bishop Simpson, in consideration of his making Philadelphia his permanent residence. It is understood that the bishop has signified his willingness to accept it, and the building is to be at once put in condition for occupancy.

GEN. FRANKLIN has been ordered to command in Louisiana, under Banks. He is now in Philadelphia, and will leave for New Orleans by the first steamer.

VALLANDIGHAM'S NOMINATION AMONG THE GERMANS.—The Westbote of Columbus, and the Volksfreund of Cincinnati—the leading Democratic German papers in Ohio—refuse to support Vallandigham.

Mail Dispatches to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

HARRISBURG, Sunday, 9 o'clock P. M., June 28, 1863.

The streets have been filled with excited people all day. Large numbers of citizens have been on the river bank on both sides of the bridge for foot passengers and wagons.

In the Episcopal, Old School Presbyterian and German Lutheran churches no services were held. The other Protestant churches mostly held prayer meetings. The Roman Catholic churches held services as usual.

Our forces on the opposite side of the river occupy three positions. One position, south of the railroad bridge, is almost a level plain. The other two positions are on eminences commanding the bridges, one of them sweeping the plain before mentioned. Cavalry (so far as seen) occupy the plain; infantry and artillery the heights.

Light artillery and troops have crossed the bridge in some numbers to-day. One company of negroes, well armed, also passed over. As they were about entering the bridge, they received cheers from citizens and soldiers. Amid the cheering a lady resident of Harrisburg was heard to exclaim, several times, that our (the negro soldiers) were a disgrace to the town.

The river is guarded on both sides. Passes are necessary for one to be able to cross.

All the rolling stock of the railroads has been removed from the city. Preparations for the removal of all the telegraph instruments are also made.

About six o'clock this evening, a gentleman of undoubted veracity arrived from the country six miles from Carlisle. He states that yesterday, at a point seven miles beyond Carlisle, the enemy's cavalry and baggage train occupied an hour and a quarter in passing. He also states that there are six hundred rebels at Mechanicsburg, and that their pickets extend to Shiremanstown, five miles from here.

Another gentleman, who arrived this evening, reports seeing the enemy's pickets at Oyster Point, about three and a half miles from here.

From high authority the following is obtained at 9 o'clock, p. m.:

The enemy have had a fight at Wrightsville, opposite Columbia. Our forces were obliged to retire over the bridge, and left the enemy in possession of Wrightsville. We have prepared to destroy the bridge at Columbia.

The enemy have advanced as far as Bridgeport, ten miles this side of Columbia. They are stated to have a pontoon bridge train.

The enemy occupy Felton county. They have a force in M'Connelsburg.

The enemy in Cumberland Valley, are now known to number about 20,000 strong, with forty-six pieces of artillery.

They are also known to be very near our works on the other side of the river.

They have destroyed all the bridges this side of York.

It is the height that the rebel Gen. Early, who is marching up the Susquehanna, from York, intends crossing the river at Bridgeport, or march to join Ewell opposite Harrisburg (who is known to be there.) It is thought that an attack will be made between this and Tuesday.

Our troops are coming from the eastern part of the State very fast, so that we shall have a large force.

There is no such thing as the rebels getting possession of Harrisburg without a hard fight. The bridge at Columbia (which is a mile and a quarter long) was set on fire at 6 o'clock, P. M., by our forces who retreated from Wrightsville. Up to this hour (10 P. M.) the bridge is still burning.

It is said that Gen. Ewell has issued an order restraining his soldiers from seizing private property without permission from the superior officers.

The President's Attention to Business.

The Washington correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes:

"It is difficult, to say who it is that commands in this vicinity. Hooker is so near that he is in daily consultation with Halleck, and while it is so that Hooker commands the so-called "Army of the Potomac," yet Halleck has an active control of military movements in this vicinity. As for that matter, so has Mr. Lincoln. He oversees everything. Those persons who suppose that he contents himself with an easy-going, story-telling life are very much mistaken. He never takes his breakfast until he has made a visit to the War Office. He visits the War Department several times a day, and acquaints himself fully with everything that is going on. However it may be with the other departments, this one is not independent of Mr. Lincoln. I have good reasons for believing that the President does not control either Halleck or Hooker, except upon very rare occasions, but nothing of importance occurs of a military nature without his sanction. He is consulted almost every hour by Mr. Stanton, by Gen. Halleck, or by Gen. Hooker, and in this military business the President exhibits a good deal of ability—more, I sometimes think, than Halleck does."

Inducements for Enlistment.

By the new order of the War Department all men enlisting in the regular army for five years' service within ninety days are to receive a premium, advance pay and bounty of $402, as follows, viz: Premium paid on enlistment, $2; advance pay, first payment after muster, $13; advance bounty, paid at depot after being accepted, $15; total, $40. Bounty to be paid at the second regular pay-day after enlistment, $50. Bounty to be paid at the first pay-day after twelve months' service, $50. The bounty to be paid at the first pay-day after two years' service is $50; after four years' service, $50; and at the expiration of service, $75. The bounty of $400 aforesaid shall be allowed and paid to all now in the regular army whose terms expire within one year, and who shall re-enlist within two months before the expiration of their present term of service.

IMPORTANT NAVAL MOVEMENT.—A Washington dispatch of Friday evening says:

It is rumored here that Secretary Welles is about sending a circular to the Commanders-in-Chief of the different squadrons, directing them to report to him from time to time the speed made by the steamers of their fleets, with a view to detach for expedition service, if necessary, the fastest among them. Information has been received here that the Nipton, a new vessel recently sent on service, can steam 18 miles an hour. Mr. Fox is said, also, to favor the plan of having some knowledge laid before the Department of the speed of our vessels.

THE Philadelphia Ledger says that a handsome dwelling on Mount Vernon street, in that city, has been purchased out of a fund raised by prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is to be presented to Bishop Simpson, in consideration of his making Philadelphia his permanent residence. It is understood that the bishop has signified his willingness to accept it, and the building is to be at once put in condition for occupancy.
