But what are the facts? Suppose Congress had inserted no facts? Suppose Congress had inserted no provision for money exemption, and the been the farnishing of a substitute; would not the price of substitutes have been about $1,000 or perhaps $1,500? And how many poor man would have been able to purchase at these figures? This is the case in the so-called Confederate States, where we see as much as $5,000 go begging for "an able bodied substitute." It was in order that the poor mechanic and small farmer should have the same chance with his more wealthy neighbor, that Congress inserted the three hundred dollar exemption clause the POON MAN'S CLAUSE. centum for probable exemptions under the isw. In these districts the draft is about one person in 33 enrolled in the first class. This would show that there are now in the first States, persons enrolled subject to military duty between the ages of 20 and 35, about 1,575,000. The names of these persons, we may say, are all written upon alips of
