The Rowing Match for the Championship.

The details of the great sculling match for $1,000 and the championship of America, between Ward and Hamill, have been received, and indicate that Hamill was fairly beaten.

He claimed that Ward had fouled him, but the Judges decided against the allegation. It is well known that the time was not near so fast as Hamill made at Philadelphia, but this is accounted for by the fact that the water was rough and a stiff breeze was blowing. We append the following account of the contest:

On arriving at Poughkeepsie yesterday noon we found the streets of the place crowded by strangers, and every train and steamer augmenting the number of visitors. The patrons of the aquatic sports from Pittsburgh, Boston, Philadelphia and New York, were present in great numbers, while Newburg seemed literally to have turned out en masse to witness their favorite oarsman contend again for victory. Speculation was very brisk, and an immense amount of greenbacks were staked on the result. Hamill was the favorite, for after $100 to $80 had been bet to a large pile, $100 to $60 was offered, and before the hour fixed for the start (three o'clock p. m.) no anxious were the Pittsburghers to get rid of their money that they bet $100 to $50 odds, which were greedily snapped up by the backers of the New York State representatives.

Precisely at three o'clock the two men came alongside the judge's boat for the start, which was moored in the centre of the river, nearly opposite the pier at Poughkeepsie. The course was a straight one of two and a half miles up the river, to a point where two stakeboats were anchored, one for each man to go around, so as to avoid any chance of fouling, and back again to the place of starting. The judges were, for Hamill, Mr. Stephen Roberts, of New York; for Ward, Mr. Tim. Donohue, of Newburg; for referee, Mr. Edward Hanlt, of Poughkeepsie. Hamill rowed in a beautiful outrigger, built by Mackay, of New York, and in which he had rowed and defeated Ward twice before; it was called the "Alex. King." Ward rowed in an exquisitely built shell boat, built by the well known George Shaw, of Newburg, and named the "Dick Risdon," after one of his (Ward's) staunchest backers and warmest personal friends. This boat was twenty-nine feet six inches long, seventeen inches wide and five inches deep, and only weighed forty-three pounds. Hamill's shell was a little heavier and slightly longer. The colors of the latter were blue skirt and red cap, while Ward had a white shirt and was minus a cap.

As the boats drew into line the sight was a most beautiful and exciting one. The Coll Rock—a noble eminence, which towered aloft, far above the bay—and immediately opposite the starting point, was crowded to its summit with spectators, among whom were numbers of gay and elegantly dressed ladies, whose presence gave an additional attraction to the scene. The New York side of the river was dense with surging massing of humanity, there being fully fifteen thousand people present to witness the exciting contest. The men were warned by the starting judge that they were to go at the report of a pistol, and precisely at three o'clock the signal was given. Ward dashed his oars into the water immediately, but Hamill remained motionless, objecting to the start, and declaring that "he wouldn't go." Ward, after taking a stroke ceased rowing for a moment; but at the cry of "go on" from the judges boat he resumed his oars, and when Hamill, at the advice of his judges, started to row, he was a full boat's length ahead. And now the struggle became interesting, while the contrast in the style of rowing of the two men was plainly visible. Ward rows with a long, steady, sweeping stroke, as regular and steady in its action, as the movements of a piece of powerful, massive machinery. He bends to his oars with a will, throwing the entire of his muscular powers into every stroke, while its effects are seen in the swift cleaving of the water, by his frail shell. Hamill, on the other hand, sets more upright to his oars, rowing with a quicker and shorter yet withal a powerful stroke, the source of muscular propulsion seeming to be confined to the shoulders and arms. His action is so much quicker than Ward's that he takes at least five strokes to the latter's four; and nothing but his extraordinary physical powers can enable him to maintain such quick action for so long a period. He gained on Ward before they had gone a quarter of a mile, but could not pass him, as Ward's long and steady stroke enabled him to keep his position in front. Rounding the stakeboats at the end of half the distance to be rowed, Ward was three lengths ahead; but Hamill here gained a couple of lengths by turning the quicker. Ward, however, put on a spurt, and took a clear lead of a dozen lengths, which his fine style of rowing, and regular and so effective in its action, enabled him to increase or diminish at his pleasure. As they neared home and within sight of the excitement of the assembled thousands became intense. Within a quarter of a mile from home the position and chances of the contestants became clearer, and a tremendous and long continued burst of cheering from the crowd proclaimed that Ward was leading. At every stroke his success became more a matter of certainty, and, without relaxing his exertions, he continued to pull as strong and regularly as he had done at the first; the firing of the signal gun of victory proclaiming him the winner of the race by ten lengths, and restoring to him his forfeited title of "Champion Oarsman of America." The time was 43 min. 29 sec., the state of the river and the slight breeze prevailing being both adverse to the making of very fast time.

An objection was raised by Hamill against Ward fouling him when they had gone about a mile and a half, and which obliged him to cease rowing. The judges investigated the matter, taking the evidence of parties who were close by at the time alleged, and, without calling the services of the referee into requisition, awarded the race without hesitation to Joshua Ward. The announcement was received with tremendous cheering by the partisans of the Newburg oarsman, while the Pittsburghers submitted with a good grace to the adverse decision.

Andy Fay has challenged the winner to row him a race of three or four miles, for one or three thousand dollars aside, in three months.

Soldiers' Aid Concert and Festival.

Early on the morning of the 1st inst., the usually quiet village of Clinton, Allegheny county, Pa., was all astir and wide awake for a great day.

At 9½ a. m., the entertainment of the day commenced by an address delivered by Rev. John Caldwell, of Florence, Pa., late Chaplain of the 139th Pennsylvania Volunteers. This performance was highly interesting, entertaining and instructive.

At 11 a. m., the dinner began to be served to the many hundreds awaiting, with tickets in hand, to enjoy that luxurant and inviting repast, on which they had been quietly feasting their wistful eyes. It has never been our privilege to witness a more luxuriant and inviting table than that spread by the people of Clinton and surrounding country, on this occasion.

At 1 p. m., the doors were open for the concert by Prof. S. J. Byers. Almost instantly the house was crowded, until not one more could force an entrance, whilst a multitude waited without. The concert was opened with a full chorus "The Red White and Blue."

The music discoursed throughout the afternoon was of the highest character. The whole was concluded by the singing of that inimitable solo and chorus, "Weeping Sad and Lonely," or "When this Cruel War is Over."

During an interval of the concert, Col. John B. Clark, of Allegheny city, entertained the audience in the grove by one of his happiest efforts, making in every respect a fully characteristic address.

The Christian Relief Association took advantage of this great day, and held a meeting in the evening for the transaction of some important business. They were entertained by a very interesting report from Rev. Mr. Morton, of Hookstown, Pa., who had been for some months their Commissioner in the army.

The next proceeds of the concert and festival—$397 47—were put into the funds of this association.

The good order, the harmony and good feeling of the whole occasion told plainly that there was a felt principle at the foundation of that "great gathering," and not merely the spending of a day in useless amusement and idle recreation.

Cannot some other village and neighborhood, whose sons are lying sick and sore in distant hospitals, follow this example, and enter into this work in earnest, and by a day spent, not only in entertaining, but edifying the friends of our country, give an important addition to the funds of the Christian Relief Association? and thus secure for themselves not only the grateful thanks of the suffering soldier, but also the blessing of Heaven.

The Benefits to Conscripts in Joining Veteran Regiments

Drill masters in the English army insist on the maxim, that "it takes a recruit five years to learn to eat!" Without subscribing to this extreme assertion in full, it is undeniably true, that a frightful sacrifice of health and life occurs in learning the art of "soldiering" to the raw recruit or conscript, on taking the field, in organizations formed entirely of this uneducated material.

A new regiment will do more work when they halt at night, after a day's march, than an experienced one will in a week under the same circumstances, in merely arranging a bivouac. The commissary, being inexperienced, cannot be expected to provide as promptly the necessary rations; the cooking arrangements are necessarily imperfect; even the advantages of the ground on which the men halt for rest cannot be appropriated so cunningly by the inexperienced, as by the old campaigner, and to these disadvantages may be added the absence of numberless little comforts, which experience enables the old soldier to gather about himself, of which the recruit knows nothing as yet.

In mastering the mysteries of the drill, the advantages in joining a thoroughly educated force are of primary importance. The difficult task of learning from theory is exchanged for the infinitely easier method of example, and more can be learned in a week by this mode, than can be taught in a month by the other. How much exhausting labor is saved by quickly mastering the field evolutions none will under-estimate who have been worn out in attaining that knowledge.

And far greater than all these considerations, is the feeling of security which the soldier has, that the sacrifices he makes on the battle-field, will be productive of corresponding benefits to the cause for which he sweats, and bleeds. In a few weeks he can exert a greater influence for good, and strike a heavier blow against the accursed traitors who's destruction all honest men long for, by going to battle by the side of the heroes who have won imperishable renown on so many fields, they teaching him quickly the art, and permeating him at once with the courage which commands success, and he by marching shoulder to shoulder with the veteran, nerves his strong arm and reserves his ardor to yet again secure a continuance of that heroic name,—which already won for himself, shall be freely shared—with those who nobly join him in finishing the good work, now, thank God, almost accomplished.

Accident at the House of Refuge—Man Killed.

On Friday evening, between seven and eight o'clock, an accident occurred at the House of Refuge, by which a man named Hugh Milligan was killed. The deceased has been employed about the building ever since its opening, and was engaged in staking a new well on the grounds. The well had been sunk about twenty feet, and contained about one foot of water. A curb sixteen feet long had been placed in the well, but it caught upon the sides and could not be got down to its position. Mr. Milligan placed a platform of boards across the top of the curb, and piled on heavy weights to force it down. A number of boys, perhaps eight or ten, also got on the platform, with Mr. Milligan, and while endeavoring to force down the curb, one side of the platform gave way, precipitating Mr. Milligan and most of the boys into the well. Mr. Milligan was standing on the side of the platform which gave way, and proceeded most of the heavy weights, which, together with the boys tumbling in upon him, so injured him that he perished in the water before he could be extricated. All the boys were taken out safely, and strange to say not one of them was seriously injured. Milligan was an Irishman, aged about forty years, and single. He has no relatives here. Coroner McClung held an inquest, and a verdict of accidental death was rendered.

On Special Service.

We had the pleasure, yesterday, of meeting Lieut. Phillips, of the veteran 62d Penna. Volunteers, who visits his home for the purpose of filling up this splendid regiment with drafted men. With only a half hour's notice from the commanding officer to leave on his mission, the gallant Lieutenant had little opportunity of bringing letters and messages from his command to anxious relatives of those brave men who have nobly upheld the honor of the country since Col. Black led them to the war.

A glance at the bronzed and swarthy face of Lieut. Phillips tells more of exposure and hardship than any amount of letter-writing can convey. We trust he may be successful in his present mission, and be spared to come home as one of the conquerors of an honorable peace, to receive than—with all his hero comrades—that full measure of that praise which now finds expression in admiration for the bravery of himself, and every one of the braves in the grand army of the Potomac.

Arrested for Bad Counseling.

Robert Mears, of Rochester, Beaver Co., aged about nineteen years, was this morning brought before Commissioner Bailey, by direction of Provost Marshal Cuthbertson, charged with counseling persons to resist the draft. One witness stated that Mears stated in several persons "that New Brighton would be burned on the 23d of July, and he would be there, and that there would be good pickings." Another witness stated that he said "they were going to burn New Brighton."

A number of the best citizens of the neighborhood were called in behalf of the defendant. All testified to the extraordinary good character of the defendant, as an inoffensive, peaceable boy, and a consistent christian. They also testified, that such a report had been circulated in that neighborhood, ever since the draft commenced. The Commissioner regarded Mears' language, merely as the repetition of the common street reports, and consequently discharged him.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

[FROM OUR EVENING EDITION.]

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

THE SITUATION IN VIRGINIA.

Both Armies Moving Rapidly Southward.

A DECISIVE BATTLE MUST BE FOUGHT NORTH OF THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

Lee's Line of Supplies Probably Cut.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—It is an erroneous impression that the federal or rebel army has re-crossed the Potomac into Maryland, or that either of them is at rest. They are both moving rapidly southward.

Gen. Meade's army has attained already an advantageous position, and will force Lee to a decisive battle north of the Rappahannock river.

Gen. Meade has probably cut the line of Lee's supplies.

Direct communication between Washington and the headquarters of the army of the Potomac has been opened.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, July 25.—The rebels were in force yesterday near Front Royal. We drove their cavalry from Manassas Gap about sunset.

It is believed the rebels intend to cross the Blue Ridge at Chester or Thornton's Gap. They will meet obstacles at the former.

THE OPERATIONS AT CHARLESTON.

Matters Progressing Favorably.

REDUCTION OF FORTS WAGNER AND SUMTER CERTAIN.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A special to the Tribune says:

Advices from Fortress Monroe state that no definite or trustworthy intelligence has been received at that place as to the operations at Charleston.

An officer recently arrived from the fleet off Charleston, reports that at the time of his leaving matters were progressing favorably. Something was gained each day, and the reduction of Forts Wagner and Sumter was considered certain.

The greatest confidence is felt in the plans and movements of Gen. Gilmore and Admiral Dahlgren, and the ultimate success is regarded as sun fait accompli.

Latest from Europe—The Polish Question—The American War, etc.

CAPE RACE, July 24.—The Scotia, from Liverpool on the 18th, and Queenstown on the 19th, was boarded off here. She has one week later dates.

The Russian reply on the Polish question has been received, and is believed to assent to the points named by England, France and Austria, but proposes an amnesty instead of an armistice.

Great anxiety existed to learn the results of the battles between Meade and Lee.

The English papers praise the Union troops. The Times don't see the ground for Lincoln's hopeful anticipations, and says the principal struggle is to come, looking at Vicksburg and Port Hudson.

Breadstuffs firmer. Wheat partially 1a 2d better. Corn 3d better. Provisions quiet and steady. Consols 93¾. American securities nominal.

Arkansas Military Offices Abolished.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The offices of Military Governor and Secretary of Arkansas has been abolished.

A Mobile letter reports the capture of the steamer Kate Dale, of Mobile, with 760 bales of cotton.

Morgan's Prisoners.

CINCINNATI, July 25.—Fourteen hundred more of Morgan's men arrived here last night. They will be forwarded to Indianapolis today. Twenty-four hundred have arrived altogether.

Chief Justice of Colorado.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Ex-Governor of Utah, S. L. Harding, has been appointed Chief Justice of Colorado Territory.

The Rumored Invasion

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—The rumor of the invasion of Pennsylvania was taken from the evening Bulletin, of this city.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH DAILY GAZETTE, SATURDAY, July 25 1863

There is but little change to notice in Coin. Our New York dispatch of to-day quote Gold at 135¾, which is a slight advance over the rate of yesterday. The rates here remain about as last quoted. Eastern Exchange is unchanged.

GRAIN—The grain market is exceedingly dull and depressed, and the supply though not very heavy, is ample to meet the present demand. So far, however, as quotations are concerned, there is no change worthy of notice.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is firm with small sales at 6¾@8¾c for Shoulders; 6¾@7¾c for Sides; 9@9½c for Plain Hams; 10¾c for Plain Canvassed, and 12@13¼c for choice brands of Sugar Cured. Sale of 11 hgs Lard at 10¾c

FLOUR—We have to report a continued dull market, the demand being very limited, and confined to the wants of the local trade.

GROCERIES—Quiet with small sales at former quotations—11¼@13c for Sugar; 30@32c for Coffee, and 55@58c for Molasses.

HAY—continues to decline; we note sale from scales of 24 loads at $20 to $21 per ton for new, and $28 for old.

SALT—is in demand with but little in market, and No 1 Extra, is held firmly at $2,50 per bbl.

CHEESE—There is no falling off in the demand for this article, and we note sales at from 10 to 10¾c for good to prime W E.

WHISKY—Common may be quoted at 43@44c; sale of 10 bbls old Rye at $1,50 per gallon.

Pittsburgh Petroleum Market.

JULY 25—The receipts of Crude continue liberal, and it is estimated that from 20,000 to 30,000 bbls will reach here on the present rise. The demand, however, appears to be about equal to the supply, and the market is steady at our last quotations—20@20½c, without, package, and 21¼@25c, packages included. The sales foot up 3,529 bbls as follows: 2,000 bbls in bulk at 20¾c, measured in boat; 500 bbl's at 20½c, package returned; 500 bbls at 25½c, packages included; 380 do at 25c; 150 bbls "heavy" at 20c, packages returned. The above sales were principally to our refiners, with the exception of two lots which were sold to go East. There were no transactions in Refined that we could hear of, and the market is firm but rather unsettled. Good standard brands of bonded may be quoted at from 43 to 45c for present delivery—the inside figure offered, and the outside figure asked.

New York Petroleum Market.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette,

NEW YORK, July 25—Crude is quiet but unchanged with sales on the spot at 31@32c. Refined is steady with a fair demand at former quotations—46@50c on the spot; 51@52c for August; 55c for September; 57@58c for October, and 60c for November. Naptha is nominal at 29@32c for Refined. O.

New Orleans Market.

JULY 14—Sugar and Molasses—There is a continued active inquiry for Sugar, but holders generally refuse to part with it except at very high prices. Stock mostly of the old crop, which is being firmly held awaiting the decision as to whether it is subject to the interventions tax. A lot of 100 hhds fully fair old crop was sold from store on private terms to-day, and about 75 bbls, in several lots, at 10¾c f. o. b. New Orleans and 11@11¼c delivered fully fair. We have not heard of any sales of Molasses. What little is in the market is held by two or three parties.

Flour—There is considerable offering, but there are no buyers, and the market is very heavy and drooping. Dealers are supplying the retail demand at $10,50@11 for superfine, and $11@12 ₩ bbl for extra.

Seed—There is very little Corn, Oats or Bran in the market, but with the probability of early and more liberal receipts prices have undergone a material decline. Yesterday, not previously reported, 625 sacks Oats and 235 do Corn were sold at $1,50 ₩ bushel, and were resold to-day at $1,75 ₩ bushel.

Provisions—The Bacon market continues very dull and we again reduce our quotations. Sales of 60@7000 boxlots prime Fenna and Wes'rn Red at $1,33@1,36 ₩ bush closing at $1,33—and 700 bushels fair quality at $1,30. 700 bushels White sold at $1,37@1,40. A small lot of new Jersey Rye—the first of the season—sold at 85c. Corn is dull and nominal at 60@60c; 2000 bushels at 59c for Penna yellow and 76@77 for mixed Western. Oats also declined one cent ₩ bushel. Sales of 3000 bush Delaware and Penna at 75@76c weight. For Barley and Malt prices are nominal.

Cleveland Market.

JULY 24—FLOUR—Sales 50 bbls red XX at $5,75. Wheat—The market was firmer, and prices advanced 3c. Sales at the Board—1 car red on track at 126c; 1 car do on C & P track at 125½c; 1 car and 5000 bush do f o b at 125c. Sales this afternoon—1 car red on track at 126c, and 2500 bush f o b at 125c. Market closed less firm. Corn—Sales 6 cars shelled on track 57c, and 3 cars and 600 bush f o b at 60c. Oats—Sale 1 car from store at 65c.

Chicago Market.

JULY 24—The Wheat market declined 1¾@2c ₩ bu. The demand was almost entirely limited to No 2 Spring, which was sold 86@91c, principally at 90c. There was a good deal of inquiry for No 1 Spring Wheat, and we note sales of only three car lots at $1,01. Rejected Spring was also but little sought after, and transactions were trifling at 70@71c.

There was much less activity in the Corn, and we have to note a decline in prices of 2¢@3½¢ ₩ bush. Sales of only about 150,000 bush at 60c for High Mixed; 61@61½c for Good Mixed; 62@63c for Mixed Corn in store; and 65¼@44c for Rejected Corn in store. At the close the market was quiet at the ruling figures.

Oats were in more active demand, and the market advanced fully ½c ₩ bush. Sales of No 1 at 55¾c @56½c; No 2 at 50c. Rejected at 50c. We note a trifling sales of No 1 at 53½c. Barley was neglected. There was a fair inquiry for High wines, and the market was firm and active at 41c.
