The Draft in New York. We read in our exchanges a correspondence between Governor Seymour and the President, in which the former complains of the inequality of the draft in New York, and asks a postponement until the proper adjustment can be inade, and the constitut tionality of the law, which he disputes himself, and supposes to be doubted by a mejority of the people, established by the Courts. The President replice that he would have no objection to a reference to the Courts of the United States, but has not time, and can't afford to wait, and that the draft must accordingly go on.

This is all well enough, but unfortunately it don't go on, while the troops stationed at New York to keep the peace, and enforce the law, are said to be deserting in large numbers, and the mob is encouraged by the hesitation of the authorities. The Tribune hints that another disturbance is not unlikely, and may begin with confiagrations in different parts of the city. The friends of good order and good government, cannot, therefore, but regret the ap- ger trains between Baltimore and the West parent backwardness on the part of the authorities at Washington, which is almost sure to produce the very difficulties which past. The trains all worked through sucseem to be apprehended. It is not sufficient that the Government should say that it means to execute the law. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. Great Feat in Naval Ordnance. Is it astonishing that the greatest num-ber of persons liable to military duty are to beround in democratic districts? On the other hand, would not an enrollment, which gave anything like an equality in point of numbers, liable to this draft, between the city, or Democratic districts, and the rural or Republican districts, bear on its face the most damning evidence of fraud? The Governor allegra the the anvolument. Is it astonishing that the greatest num- |

most damping evidence of fraud? The Governor alleges that the enrollment is unjust; and he is met by the official figures of the proper officer to disprove his clasim. Ho says the inequality is againsthis party; and the same figures confound him, by showing that the districts in which his party are overwholmingly in the majority, have now at home a larger number of men subject to military service, because they have failed in their duty in filling the last call, than they should have, or than any other districts in the State have. subject to military service, because they have failed in their duty in filling the last call, than they should have, or than any other districts in the State have.
