Rebel Exaggerations Tested by Figures.

The Herald is again at its old trick of augmenting the numbers of the rebel army. Whenever it gets into a tight place, and calls loudly for recruits, it is sure to get a large and opportune reinforcement from that quarter. Thus, while the battered and dispirited army of LEE is clamoring for aid, and JEFF. DAVIS and his newspapers are answering that they have no more soldiers, the Herald at once responds by giving him 125,000, with the promise of 25,000 more. A few weeks ago, it would have doubled the numbers, but as credibility, even of the largest, may be staggered by piling it on too strong, it has become necessary to observe some little moderation in these matters, in order to produce the desired effect. People who think, and are familiar with statistics, begin to inquire where all these accessions are to come from, unless they grow men down South, in annual crops from the seed. The States that have been actually in revolt have not at any time embraced a white population amounting to five and a-half millions. Taking from these the portions actually held by our arms, including nearly the whole of Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi, and Tennessee, with a large portion of East and West—say one-half of—Virginia, and a fringe of North Carolina; and their whole white population, at the commencement of the war, did not exceed three millions and a quarter. Deduct from that however, the States of Arkansas and Texas, which for all practical purposes are now severed from the confederacy, and we have a total white population within the sweep of their conscription, amounting to about two millions and a half—or about equal to the population of Ohio, and 400,000 less than the population of our own State. One half of these however are females, which leaves a million and a quarter only of males, of all ages, as they stood at the opening of the war. Of that number not more than one-fourth, or little over 300,000 would be capable of bearing arms—which would be upward of 12 per cent. of the whole white population of both sexes, and a larger proportion than any nation in history has ever placed in the field. Deduct however from these figures a fair proportion of the number which has already perished in battle, or by the diseases of the camps—say one-half of 300,000—together with the like proportion of the 80,000 prisoners said to be in our hands, and what is there left to keep several armies afoot, and swell a single one of them to 125,000 or 150,000 men? When men talk in this exaggerated way, it is only necessary to confront them with the figures, in order to show what a mere shell the whole Confederacy is, and how easily it may be crushed, with a slave element in its midst, which exceeds its whole white population, and is its master, without even the aid of a Northern soldier, whenever we choose to say—"The land is before you; here are arms: there are freedom and a home; enter and take possession!"

We would be glad that some of the officials about Washington would furnish the public with so much of the statistics of population under the last census, as would show how many white male inhabitants, between the ages of eighteen and fifty-five, or sixty, there were in the States now in actual rebellion against the Government, and not already subdued by our arms. Their publication would be attended with great advantage to the country, and would dispel many ridiculous errors that have been industriously propagated by its enemies, both North and South. We begin to fear, however, that we shall not see it, until about the expiration of the current decade.

Mr. Carnahan's Explanation.

We publish Mr. CARNAHAN's statement of his reasons for declining to insist upon the question of jurisdiction in the case of the discharged conscript, to which we referred a day or two ago.

Those reasons are: First, that the State Courts have always exercised a concurrent jurisdiction in such cases; and, second, that he has no instructions to plead in this way, except in the case of a deserter, and is not clear that it would apply except when the individual is held for that or some other crime.

The answer to this is, that whatever disposition there may have been to acquiesce in the jurisdiction of the State Courts in quiet times, and when these tribunals were in perfect harmony with the General Government, forms no precedent for times like these, when a bloody conflict is depending between the nation and a portion of the States, and the disaffected here have obviously conspired to assist the mal-contents of the South, by bringing about a collision between the State and National Government. The fact that the copperheads of Pennsylvania have put Judge LOWRIE and his colleague, WOODWARD, in nomination as their candidates at the fall election, would be enough in itself, we should think, to inspire a salutary fear of them on the part of federal officers.

2. We are not fresh enough in the Booth case to say precisely how far it goes. Our impressions are, however, that it is of no consequence whether, the case is one of crime or not, and if we are right in this, it made no difference as to the instructions. The law officers of the Government had, we suppose, no other case than that of the deserter before him, and the like objection would be expected to be taken in any other case which might fall within the principle, without any special instructions upon the subject.

Cheap.

The New York papers report to us daily the values of stocks, with all their fluctuations, and all the transactions of the Brokers' Board. They bring us, also, though in a different form, the commutation price, in dollars and cents, of almost every description of crime that attended the late riots in that city, and nobody who reads, can dispute that their Tariff is a very low one. Thus, a man who is arrested upon the charges of riot, highway robbery, grand larceny, and felonious assault and battery with intent to murder," is held to bail in the sum of $500 for each of these offences, so that he may be guilty of the whole four, and escape with a penalty of $2,000. The metropolis must be a pleasant retreat for such fellows as these, particularly if they make their business pay a trifle over the expenses. Would it not be well, however, to furnish a sort of price current for the benefit of the trade, so as to embrace arson, treason, and murder, and such like peccadilloes, in the list? With such a scale in his pocket, it seems to us that a stranger adventurer might ascertain, in advance, just how far the state of his funds or credit would enable him to indulge.

Military Roads in Kentucky.

Gen. Burnside has ordered the impressment of six thousand laborers from the negro population of Kentucky, to be employed in the construction of military roads in that State. From the list of counties named in which the first impressment of laborers is to take place, we infer that the Central Railroad, which extends from Covington (opposite Cincinnati) to a point fourteen miles south of Lexington, is to be continued (crossing the Kentucky river) to Danville, a further distance of twenty-one miles; and that the Lebanon branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is to be continued from Lebanon, a distance of twenty-eight miles, also to Danville. These two important roads—one reaching from Cincinnati and the other from Louisville to Danville, very nearly the geographical centre of the State—will then probably be continued southwardly, in the general direction of Knoxville, Tenn., which place it is intended, no doubt, to reach by the proposed military highway.

A large part of the grading which is needed for the road between Lexington and Danville has been completed some years, and abutments constructed for a wire suspension bridge over the Kentucky river, quite superior to those sustaining the Suspension Bridge at Niagara Falls. The work needed to extend the railroad from its present terminus to Danville will be comparatively slight, and may be finished up in a few months by a small part of the force impressed by Gen. Burnside. The extension of the Lebanon branch of the Louisville road to Danville, will be a heavier undertaking, but the topography is more favorable than on the other line, and the road-bed, with the force called out, will be speedily prepared.

The project for a military highway through Kentucky to East Tennessee is substantially the same as that entertained by President Lincoln at the beginning of the war, and warmly recommended by him (along with the extension of the Southwest Railroad of Missouri to Springfield, in that State) in a message to Congress. There never was a doubt of the military propriety of these works, and their construction was fairly urged on the grounds of expedience and economy in the conduct of military operations. But it suited the whims of certain Congressmen at the time to indulge in intense and unreasonable hatred of the "Border States"—which were held to embody reasons of a very aggravated form—and so nothing could be done for the roads in question, though their construction might have served the Union cause never so much.

But time has worked changes of feeling. Missouri is admitted to be a loyal State at last. And as for Kentucky, she has just defeated the Copperhead party by a majority of over 50,000 votes; and Gen. Burnside, in a speech to the people of Lexington, a few evenings ago, did not hesitate to declare that he found "more true loyalty in Kentucky than in any other State in his Department"—a compliment, however, which the States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois can afford to see paid. Such being the case, it is probable that the policy of Gen. Burnside, in building important military roads in Kentucky, will be sustained. Certain it is that if the roads had been constructed at the time when Mr. Lincoln proposed, the cost would have been saved many times over, in averting the numerous disastrous raids of the rebels into that State, and the expensive movements of men and munitions of war to expel the invaders. With roads completed from Cincinnati and Louisville to Danville, and then from Danville south to the East Tennessee line, the Cumberland river would be the front of the Union lines, and the entire power of the military force in General Burnside's Department would be brought at once to bear upon East Tennessee to the instant and lasting release of that loyal district from rebel sway. If Gen. Burnside shall be able to approach and "possess, occupy and hold" the soil of East Tennessee by strategy so pacific and bloodless as the construction of a line of railway into its heart, which, when the game of war is over, will so well promote the arts and ends of peace, he will deserve a double share of honor for his work.

A Fraud Exposed.

A few days ago a secession sheet of our acquaintance, conspicuously paraded the following paragraph in its columns, as coming from the Chicago Tribune:

"Give us a rebel victory, let our armies be destroyed, Maryland conquered, Washington captured, the President exiled and the government destroyed; give us these, and any other calamities that can result from defeat and ruin, sooner than a victory with McClellan as General."

We exchange with the Chicago paper referred to, and have never noticed such a paragraph in it, and we felt so certain that the pretended quotation was a fraud and a libel that we sat down and enclosed it to the editor of the Tribune, and asked him if it could be possible that such a sentiment had ever emanated from his pen. He promptly replied, by yesterday's mail, that "nothing of the kind ever appeared in the Chicago Tribune, and the sentiments which it expresses are directly opposed to all the Tribune has advocated since the war began. The pretended quotation is an invention of the enemy. There is not an iota of truth in it."

We trust that our readers will make a note of this exposure, and be on their guard against such fraudulent work in the future.—Wheeling Intel.

A NEW NARCOTIC.—At a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Tasmania, a quantity of "Pitchery," a narcotic plant brought from the interior of Australia, where it is used by the natives to produce intoxication, was produced by a gentleman, who remarked that on one occasion Mr. King, the explorer, swallowed a small pinch of the powder, the effects of which he described as being almost identical with those produced by a large quantity of spirits.

THE London Spectator says that the audience at a Mormon meeting were astonished at seeing small white figures moving mysteriously over the floor. A lady pocketed one of these objects, and found it to be a frog done up in white paper, with the intention of working upon the fears and superstitions of the credulous.

Edward Everett on Emancipation.

Mr. Edward Everett, in a letter to Rev. Dr. Eliot, of St. Louis, in relation to a sermon of the latter on the ordinance of Emancipation passed by the Missouri Convention, remarks:

"I have myself no doubt that, like the apprenticeship system in the British colonies, the ordinance will, at the instance of the slaveholders themselves, long before 1870, give way to another of immediate emancipation. But whether it does or not, Missouri is, from this time forward, substantially a Free State, and will I doubt not, enter upon that career of prosperity for which her magnificent position and unsurpassed resources so admirably fit her.

"When I look back to the controversy which grew out of the attempted restriction on the admission of Missouri into the Union in 1820, and on the folly which dictated the repeal of the Missouri Compromise in 1854, and then consider that the people of Missouri, assembled in convention in 1863, have decreed that after 1870, all slaves then in Missouri shall be free, I am awe-struck with the visible tokens of an overruling and an interposing Providence."

JOHN M. BOTTS's "COMMODORE."—The Nashville Union says Gen. Rosecrans captured, at or near Winchester, the celebrated horse Commodore, formerly the property of John M. Botts, of Virginia, confiscated and sold to Maj. Gen. Polk for $16,000, and has notified the Government at Washington of the capture of this noble animal. The Secretary of the Treasury has directed Dr. Brownlow to take charge of the horse, take good care of him, and at the proper time forward him to Kentucky or Ohio, to be sold, and if Mr. Botts is entitled to the proceeds the law provides a method of recovering them through the Court of Claims. No other mode of restoring the horse to Mr. Botts is, at this time, practicable. Mr. Botts has stood faithfully by the Union under great difficulties—has been in several Southern prisons, and all loyal men will be gratified to find that this capture enures to his benefit. Commodore is a small horse, about fifteen hands high, a dark bay, thin in flesh, and about twenty years old. He shows his blood, however, and is no ordinary animal.

SINCE the first of last February, Colonel Wilder, of Rosecrans' army, has been twenty-eight times through the rebel lines, and taken 1,167 prisoners, about 4,000 horses, and a small army of slaves. In the last expedition he took about 600 prisoners, 800 horses and 250 slaves, killed 10 guerrillas, and mortally wounded Col. Gant. He lost one man, private Stewart, of the 17th Indiana. He has hung five and shot fifteen rebels, including a second lieutenant, caught with uniform on, in accordance with the orders of Gen. Rosecrans. Wilder is chief of the famous mounted infantry.

THE intrinsic meanness of the Seymourites is exemplified in the fact that when the President, in order to obviate even the possibility of injustice being done, decided to accept the Governor's figures for the enrollment in the disputed districts until a new enrollment can be made, they immediately trumpet the concession forth as an acknowledgment that the enrollment was fraudulent. Such mendacity is too contemptible for credence.

VEGETABLES and fruits seem to be exceedingly plentiful in California. Baskets of plums and excellent peaches are sold for about two cents a pound, which will scarcely pay the cost of gathering and sending to market. Every day, large quantities of fruits and vegetables are thrown away for the want of buyers.

A MUSSULMAN, writing from the Cape of Good Hope to a Turkish paper at Stamboul, says of the religious dissensions among the Christians: Their priests all advocate different creeds, and as to their bishops, one Colenso actually writes books against his own religion!

IT is all nonsense to talk about the immense burden of the public debt. The debt is twelve hundred millions, and the interest on it fifty millions, or about two-thirds of the earnings of the New York Custom House.

GENUINE COPPERHEAD PLATFORM.—The Union as it was under Buchanan, the Constitution as it is under Jeff. Davis.

IT is designed to transfer 8,000 of the rebel prisoners now at Camp Chase, Ohio, to Camp Douglas, Chicago.

(LATE PITTSBURGH TRUST COMPANY.)
CAPITAL, $400,000, with privilege to increase to $1,000,000.

The Pittsburgh Trust Company having organized under the act to provide a National Currency, under the title of the FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PITTSBURGH, would respectfully offer its services for the collection of Notes, Drafts, Bills of Exchange, &c., receive money on deposit, and buy and sell Exchange on all parts of the country.
The income which has attended the Pittsburgh Trust Company since its organization in 1854, will, we believe, be a sufficient guarantee that business entrusted to the new organization will receive the same prompt attention.
Having a very extensive correspondence with Banks and Bankers throughout the country, we believe we can offer unusual facilities to those who do business with us.
The business will be conducted by the same Officers and Directors.

SEMPLE CLAY. ST LOUIS, MO.

Having accepted the Agency for the sale of the SEMPLE CLAY, mined near St. Louis, Mo., I invite the attention of Glass and Steel Manufacturers to the analysis given above, as reported by Profs. A. A. Hayes, of Boston, and J. C. Booth, of Philadelphia, which, together with the test of actual experience by manufacturers in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis, determines it to be the purest and most valuable Clay now known, whether Foreign or American. Pots made from it have stood in the Glass Furnaces from 24 to 9 months.
The Analysis is of the Clay as taken from the mine, without any washing or preparation whatever. It possesses great adhesiveness and plasticity qualities, which are not shown by the Analysis, and which admit of the admixture of a large proportion of shall or burned clay.
I am now prepared to fill orders for the above Clay, to be shipped from St. Louis or delivered here.
