GEN. JAMES IRVIN,

JOSEPH W. PATTON

OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

RETALIATORY LAWS.

The recent kidnapping case, decided in favor of the defence, and resulting in the escape of a Slave claimed by Mr. Logan of Winchester, Virginia, affords the proper occasion for reference to some of those retaliatory laws which were during eight or ten years past distinguished the Legislation of several of the States of the Union.

The Constitution of the United States in three several retaliatory enactments, has received so many severe shocks that many are losing all respect for its enactments. Innovation has followed innovation, and like all innovations in morals or politics, they have all been committed in the name of Reform. We need go back in the earliest history of Edmund Burke, to the wisest country men of England to be added, line upon line and precept upon precept until it passes into the currency of a proverb, that to innovate is not to reform.

We forget, too, that our Government has derived very existence in a spirit of compromise,—that it passed from Proyects to Confederated States and from a Confederacy to a Union, after the most anxious deliberation, and after mutual concessions between the several States of the Union. The debates in the Convention which framed the Constitution, afford lessons of wisdom, of patriotism, and in the end of good understanding, which we may all study with profit and pleasure. We have grown from thirteen to twenty-nine States, in less than the life time of many men among us, and certain all this growth our institutions, climate and different pursuits, are even more varied now than they were at the commencement of the Constitutional Government. In this growth the South has become stronger than it was, and the free States are made more powerful than they were, not from any political action of the Government, but from the inherent blessings incident to free labor and a free people.

We blame not the South for its political advantages. She has them, not alone, through the indomitable courage and perseverance of her people, but by accomplete sacrifice of duty and principle on the part of those calling themselves the Representatives of a free people. She has them by having been masters of white men as well as of black. In almost all of the free States there have been cities of Slavery—cities that allow indeed, for these men have become the very menials of wood and drawers of water to the South. We exempt the Writers of the free States from this unnatural act! Slavery is for them a matter for with the exception of the Domestic servant from Europe—one more Mr. Polk himself, (Mr. Tyler's Minister to Brazil,) preferred known a black servant to a white one—the free State, who has been unable to find a master to his constituents and his own free will to such an alliance. But we have seen Northern men with Southern principles in the field. We have seen them successfully waging upon the Right of Petition and upon the freedom of the —privileges which, in the subject, is especial guarantee to all men in the Constitution of the country. We have seen Mr. Van Buren at the head of this party, and both as candidate for the Presidency, and as President, prostituting his name and his office to Southern interests and Southern Slavery. We have seen men of the same party from Maine to Illinois, acting in this unholy conjunction,—two very extraordinary forces of the South, and giving it power, dominion and perpetuity, at the sacrifice of home, freedom, and the public good. It was these men who passed the famous Atherton Resolution ten years ago in the House of Representatives, abridging the freedom of speech, and the right of petition. It was these men who annexed Texas as a Slave country, voluntarily and unnecessarily voting into our borders a large tract of country, from all of which, or from a large portion of which Slavery might have been excluded. It was these men,—and Pennsylvanians among them, too,—who rejected the Wilmot Proviso, excluding Slavery from the now free territory of Mexico. They have made their Democracy the handmaid of Slavery, and have presented to the world the monstrous anomaly of a party, boasting itself exclusively the friend of the poor and the humble, and yet commanding with a powerful aristocracy of Slave-holders.

With such an alliance the South naturally felt strong enough to make what innovations it pleased. Accordingly we found, many years ago, the State of Georgia, in utter violation of the Constitution, enacting pains and penalties against the coasting vessels of Maine. The reason of the the enactment was, that a Slave had secreted himself on board of a Maine vessel. Neither the owner, nor the Skipper nor the Captain until long after he had left the port—had any more to do with the matter than the man in the moon, but for this offence, and a refusal on the part of the State to punish the Captain of the vessel, a law was passed of a merely penal character — Virginia did the same thing in reference to New York, or rather she went one step further, and imposed a tax upon vessels entering the ports of Virginia from the State of New York. The Virginia Legislature effected it as nothing that the Constitution gave Congress the exclusive power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, and to regulate commerce among the several States. (No matter, indeed, than Mr. Polk does of his own high power to impose, collect and regulate taxes and imposts for the Government of Mexico.) It forgot, too, that under the Constitution, no tax or duty could be laid on articles exported from any State" and that no preference could be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another," and most of all that no vessels bound to or from one State be obliged to enter clear, pay duties in another." These are but all the prohibitions, but of these, and all others Virginia was criminally guilty, if they had had the courage to act upon them. New York attempted to retaliate upon Virginia, but upon other second thought declined to do so.

Then came South Carolina, enacting and enforcing a law against Massachusetts, which was rank Nullification. By this law of Massachusetts a colored man is as much a free citizen as the white man or the richest man in the Old Bay State." An Albino or an Ethiopian, is the same in the estimation of the law. If then a free colored man is employed to cook or steward on board a Massachusetts vessel, or even shows a free State, bound coastwise to Charleston or to take in freight for a foreign port, or for any purpose whatever, the cook or steward is seized, sent to prison, and if the Captain should fail to pay the expenses of this foul seizure and imprisonment, he is sold for his Jail fees' The Captain or owner also must give bonds for the observance of this monstrous act! We are amazed that so monstrous a law as this is suffered to remain upon the Statute book of so intelligent a State as that of South Carolina—but much more amazed were we, when two or three years gone by, we saw Massachusetts sending out one of her most venerable and respectable citizens—Samuel Hoar, of Concord, to bring this unconstitutional law upon a writ of error before the Supreme Court of the United States. To the everlasting shame of South Carolina—and of her princely commercial city, this old and learned citizen of the Old Commonwealth, was obliged to flee from the very centre of the land of boasted chivalry, to save himself from the hands of violent men. To his daughter,

BY MAGNETIC TELEGRAPH.

Correspondence of Pittsburgh Gazette.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

BELFAST DATES TO 16TH MARCH.

ARRIVAL OF THE WM. KENNEDY.

DECLINE IN CORN AND CORNMEAL

Prices of Flour maintained.

PORT'LAND, April 20th, 4 o'c, P. M.

The ship William Kennedy arrived this afternoon from Belfast, Ireland, bringing dates to the 26th of March, being four days later than any papers previously received.

The commercial news is of importance, but there is no political news of much interest.

There have been large arrivals of Indian Corn, and under the influence of heavy receipts, prices had declined twenty shillings per ton (2240 lbs) Cornmeal had shared in the decline proportionately.

The quotations given for Corn and Wheat were as follows, per cwt, viz:

Prime Red Wheat is selling at seventeen shillings nine pence to eighteen shillings four pence. White Wheat eighteen shillings to eighteen shillings six pence.

White Corn fourteen shillings ten pence to fifteen shillings. Yellow fourteen shillings five pence to fifteen shillings.

Cornmeal fifteen shillings to fifteen shillings five pence for White, and for Yellow fifteen shillings five pence to sixteen shillings, per cwt.

Flour of United States Flour was quoted at 39s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. per bbl.

The market for Corn and Meal subsequently acquired more firmness, and closed with a better feeling.
