upon anatomy and physiology to a class of twenty five gentlemen of the city. It has been suggested that a class of ladies be formed for instruction upon the same subject. Women are charged as mothers and wives, with far higher duties than belong to men. Physiological science is fall of practical truth, and we know no reason why it should not be taught to those in the discharge of highly important domestic duties. Select classes of ladies are common in the Eastern cities, and the instructions given have been productive of the greatest good.

I came within an ace of being killed that day just as I mounted the brow of the hill overlooking the town. A large cannon bell struck in the path right in froit of me, in an incredible short distance, and covered me with dust and sand from head to foot.

From the 9th until the 22d instant, the army was employed in cutting roads and hapting—cannon and munitions of war and provisions, and skirmishing occasionally with the enemy.

On the 22d; at 3 r. m., the first battery opened on the town, and a terrible cannonised was kept to make the whole of the bloody affair. The Artillery made have in the reaks of the enemy, and representations to renew the battle, which was commenced by the American forces, and at once be came bloody.
