

MISCELLANY

The way to settle disputed accounts... The following was a very respectable citizen of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, since deceased.

During the Presidential term of Thomas Jefferson, two young men from Pennsylvania took a leave from him of his merchant mill, at Monticello, one of the stipulations of which was that the landlord should erect, for their use, within a given time, a cooper's shop.

On the return of the President to his mansion, the parties met to settle a long account current which was remaining during his absence; the items were gone over and scrutinized one by one, and were found satisfactory.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the young men were a long time in settling their accounts, and that the cooper's shop was not erected until a long time after the President's departure.

Never Frighten Any One. The following article, from the London Magazine, administered a salutary warning against the practice of frightening the young.

The sister of a medical man in London had, in the presence of two young gentlemen, who were studying medicine, and their brother, who was a cooper, and fully by which some people were governed.

Morning exercise. The following letter, from the London Magazine, administered a salutary warning against the practice of frightening the young.

Pointed Sermons. Many years ago, there graduated at Harvard University a man by the name of Rawson, who subsequently became a minister.

Deaths at Point Isabel. The official statement of deaths that occurred in the great ending May 9th as published in the New Orleans Picayune, puts the total at 82.
