Attention to these things is deemed matters of great importabroad, and a Court dress only can gain one admittance to the presence of Royslty. What a contrast here, where all do not doem even a decant appearance necessary to sake the President by the hand. At Court too, one may not turn his back upon the King, and having conce approached in his presence, he must "back cost," at the expense of breaking his neck, but here cone is introduced to the President, and feels an equal in his presence, and something more some times, when he knows that it was his vote which put him where he is. An interesting scene was emerted on Christmas day, at the annual meeting of the friends of the Sunday School attached to the Methodist Episcoyal Caurch on Pacific street. Mr. Kirk, in an exceedingly neat and uppropriate speech, prescuted to the pastor, Rev. A. M. Osloon, on behalf of the Church a Christmas cake, on lifting the frosted ecover of which it was found to contain use, eagles) and ten half eagles being of standard rold. The present was unexpected by the pastor, who in very feeling terms acknowledged this token of the affection of the people over whom he was placed in charge. John Quincy Adams received his friends also, and from ten to three his dwelling was much crowded. The members of the House called on him almost without an exception, even Charles J. Ingresold among the rest, who has abused Mr. Adams more than any forty of his party together. But this according to the good old Knickerbocker cutting, is a day of forgiving and forgetting, and I will may the should be additived to the past. Mr. Adams is in his Sta year—very feelds in body, but a treasury of knowledge, which he is ready to impart to all mea, and, indeed, if he spoke at all, he could not well help imparting to those around him.
