	Oh: A.V., NO. 134,
NEOUS.	MISCELLANY.
OGGH_SYRUP.—It has ITS	IKARNING TO BACK. If you would have your cattle learn this art, put them to an empty, cart, and let them back it down hill. Never pound their noses, for this gives them pain and wens, and makes them hold their heads down to avoid your blows. In such a position of the head, the ox has no power over the yoke, for his turnat is brought to bear on the lower part of the bow, and he cannot do much if he would. By all means keep his head up, and thea the yoke itself will bear against the upper side of the neck, (the tough side,) and against the horns. If you use a stick or whip, touch the fore legs with it, keep your stick under, and your steers will not put their heads down to come in the way of it. At first they will refuse to walk backwards, and will straddle away from the cart tongue, in order to go sideways and see where they are to step. But while the cart is drawing them back, it will be your principal business to keep.

their bodies closs to the tongue, with their heads up. Soon you will teach them to run an empty cart back, on level ground; and eventually your cattle will run back any decent load, with nearly as much ease as they will draw it forward.

Mr. Jonathan Rice, of Maithorough, recently told us that he taught his steers to back by hitching them to a rock in front of them, and then inviting them to back away-from the rock, making them haul it after them, and endeavor to avoid it as it comes along. He says they will hold up their heads and pull stoutly to get away from their load in front. We have no doubt this is a good mode of using cattle to run a load-back.

CRIB BITING. Horses sometimes contract the habit of biting their mangers, or whatever hard sub-stance they can lay hold of. The habit re-sults in considerable injury to the animal, in consequence, as is commonly supposed, of his sucking or drawing in air. Mr. Youatt says the crib biting horse is notoriously more Wells Lathrop, Esq., of South Had Mass., had a very valuable horse, whad this habit for some time; but by the of a small strap, fastened round the just so tight as to bear on the windpip is effectually prevented from biting, and the least injured.——/

BUTTER CONSUMED IN LONDON.
Butter was unknown to the ancient-Greeks and Romans in cooking. The ancient medical writers do not mention it as an article of food, though they, as well as writers on agriculture, have given us particular notices of milk, oil and cheese. It is very little used in Spain, Portugal, and the south of France; but in England, its consumption is very great, both for food and culinary purposes. It is believed that in London the yearly consumption for each individual is no less than 26 pounds; and supposing the metropolis to contain 1,450,000 inhabitants, the total consumption would be 16,830 tons. Add to this 4,000 tons for victualling ships, and we arrive at a total of 21,000 tons, which, at ten pence per pound, would be worth $8,002,400.

It is estimated that a good cow will produce in a year 168 pounds of butter; on which calculation, 280,000 cows would be a requisite for the supply of London market alone, in this one article of food and luxury.

No Time to Read—We all find time to do whatever is really a gratification to us; and hence the complaint of no time is in fact no taste for reading. Let the same thing, or the same duty, be done punctually at the same hour every day, no matter how irksome at first, and it will become pleasant. Every man has time to read a few paragraphs in a newspaper during a rainy day or a winter evening, or sometimes when waiting for his meals. The most industrious persons find time to read, and it is only the idle and trifling who can find no time to improve themselves by reading.

Saliva in Horses—This troublesome to make the salt which may be given to them from time to time. There have been many speculations offered in regard to the cause or origin of this disease, but none that appears to be salt which may be given to others to bad hay, and others, again, to white clover. But whetever may be its origin, is comparatively of small consequence, provided we possess the means of cure—
