Commercial Affairs in England.

London, Jan. 23. 1817.

* * The various leading markets have been exceedingly dull, and the complaint is general that prices rule very low, and there is no de mand for goods or produce. MARIISTORN, Feb 19, 1548.

Mr. CLAY has declined the handsome invitation tendered him by the Whigs of Pittaburgh and Allegheny county, to partake of a public dinner. Mr. C. informed me that he would be in Pittaburgh about the middle of March, perhaps a few days earlier, and that he would be in Pittaburgh about the middle of March, perhaps a few days earlier, and that he would remain there long enough. I be receive the congratalations of his friends, and all who may honor him with a call.

J. The invitation to Mr. Clay to accept of a public dinner from the Whigs of the District, has also been declined,—and also some other invitations from more remote sections of the country. Mr. C is anxious to return to Ashland as soon as practical, and will be there before the itest of April. At one of the large and pleasant parties of the clify last evening, I observed, among others of note, John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay, Judge McLean, Thomas Corwin, and nearly all the Whig members to the two Houseaf Congress. Mr. Adams, though nearly 51 years old, and physically debilitated, seemed as full of wisdom as of years. FAILURE OF IRON MANUFACTURES.—The New York Tribune says.—The heavy decline which has taken place during the last twelve months in iron has been disastrous to many houses in that trade. The decline in Pigi Iron has been $20 per ton and the same in Railroad Iron. Parties deeply in this trade have, consequently, suffered large losses, and the failure of Gray & Co. at Boxon, and to the Jarge concern in Worcester, Mass. Pratt & Earl, we are sorry to be obliged to add that of Measrs. Murdock Leavite & Co. of this City, a very extensive concern wielding an immense capital and with large facilities. They were agents of the Montour Works in Pennsylvania, and the Dover Works in New Jerselities. They were agents of the Mills million. It is supposed the concern will wind up without much loss to the creditors.

The Tarry or 48.—The had effects of the Tariff of 48, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, are only beginning to be experienced. We are assured that large quantities of the lower-priced cotton cloths, have been introduced into this country, and may be found, in not a few cotton print establishments, having been bought in consequence of their cheapness. Also that iron is now imported at rates which are ruisons to our from manufacturers—while but a short time since 800 bales of wool were imported from England.
