MEDICAL.

PEACE! PEACE!!
NOT IN MEXICO,
BUT IN EVERY MOTHER'S HOMESTEAD.
THE undersigned has long been convinced of the necessity for some medicine adapted to the use of Children and Infants to supercede the use of all those medicines which contain opium, and has at length succeeded in preparing and offering to the public a medicine fully answering every purpose for all diseases of the bowels, without the use of that deleterious drug, or any other calculated to injure in the least. The Infant Panacea has been fully tested and tried, the last twelve months, by numerous persons, and found to possess all the extraordinary virtues, and to produce all the astonishing effects as set forth on the bill of directions. Diarrhœa, Vomiting, Cholic, Griping, Pains, Sickness and Diseases arising from Teething, acting immediately without disturbing any of the functions of the body, producing the happiest and most pleasant transition from violent pain to a tranquil and joyous state of feeling in the little sufferer.
To be had wholesale and retail, of the Proprietor, Dr. JOHN SARGANT, Druggist and Apothecary; John Mitchell, Elliott & Beckham, and most other Druggists in Allegheny and Pittsburgh. dec13

SELLER'S IMPERIAL COUGH SYRUP.—It has power to cure! PITTSBURGH, Feb. 14, 1847.
R. E. SELLERS:—My wife has for years been subject to a distressing cough, accompanied with asthma, for the cure of which she used different cough remedies, and had the advice of the most eminent physicians in England, but all was unavailing. By chance I heard of your Imperial Cough Syrup, and was induced to buy a bottle for trial, although I had no belief that anything could remove her complaint. To my great surprise, two doses gave her immediate relief. She is at times troubled with a cough, but two teaspoonsful of Syrup always stops it. I am satisfied, after a trial of three or four years, that Seller's Cough Syrup is the best cough medicine I have ever tried either in the Old or New World. WM. FAIRBOURNE,
Seventh Ward, city of Pittsburgh.
The above certificate should induce all who are troubled with cough or asthma, to give the Syrup a trial. It may be had for 25 cents a bottle, at the drug store of R E SELLERS, 57 wood st.
Sold by Dr Cassel, 5th ward, and D H Curry, Allegheny city. jan5

SELLER'S VERMIFUGE.—The greatest of all Worm medicines! NEW LISBON, OHIO, Jan. 8, 1845.
This is to certify that after using different preparations for expelling worms, I bought of C. F. Helman, of New Lisbon, two vials of R E Sellers' Vermifuge, and gave the contents of one vial to three of my children. From the first, aged 6 years, it expelled 45 worms; from the second, 8½ years old, 70; and from the third, 4½ years old, 110; making 245 worms expelled by using but one vial. I recommend Sellers' Vermifuge as a safe and one of the most effectual Worm medicines before the public. HUGH MORROW.
Prepared and sold by R E SELLERS, No 57 Wood street. Sold by Dr. Cassel, 5th ward; D M Curry, Allegheny; William J. Smith, Temperanceville. jal4

MISCELLANY.

CHRISTIAN SUBMISSION.

The following lines were written a few years since by the venerable poet Montgomery, expressive of his sense of nature's decay, and his submission under affliction, to Him who does all things well:—

"Father! thy will, not mine, be done!
So prayed on earth thy suffering Son;
So in his name I pray:
The spirit fails, the flesh is weak,
Thy help in agony I seek;
O take thy cup away.

"If such be not thy sovereign will,
The wiser purpose then fulfil,
My wishes I resign,
Into thine hands my soul commend,
On thee for life or death depend;
Thy will be done, not mine.

A CURIOUS STORY OF FRANCIS SEVILLE.

A few days before the fall of Rouen, (a city of France besieged by the royalist army, and defended by the Protestants during the civil war produced by the Reformation in France,) a Protestant gentleman, named Francis Seville, was wounded in the face by the shot of an arquebus; and having fallen, apparently dead, was carried away and buried, with fifteen or sixteen others. At night his servant brought a horse for his master, at the foot of the rampart, where, meeting the Count of Montgomery, he was informed that Seville was dead and buried. The groom, an old and faithful servant of the house, insisted upon having the body, to carry back to the relations of the dead officer; and Montgomery accordingly sent one of his suite to show him where the corpses had been interred. The groom immediately caused them to be taken out of their hasty graves; but finding them so disfigured with wounds, blood and clay, that it was impossible to recognize the features of any one, he replaced the bodies, and cast the earth lightly over them again. While returning to his quarters, a feeling of remorse, at the careless manner in which he and his companions had reinterred the dead, took possession of him, and he returned to the spot to cover their remains more completely, lest the dogs should disturb their last resting place, in the night. The sun had by this time set; but in recovering one of the bodies, he saw, by the light of the moon, a diamond ring, of a peculiar form, on the hand, and instantly, by that token, recognized the corpse of his master. Being carried to an inn, Seville displayed some signs of life, and his faithful servant having called several surgeons, besought them to employ their skill upon his master. The number of wounded, however, did not allow them to occupy their time with a hopeless case, and they refused to give him any attention. The groom subsequently brought a physician and one of Seville's friends, who saw that, though three days had by this time elapsed since that officer had been buried as dead, he still breathed; and, his teeth having been forced open, some wine and other nourishment was administered to him. While they were laboring earnestly to restore him to health, the town was stormed and taken; and a party of the enemy, searching the house for Seville's brother, whom they put to death without mercy, found the wounded man, and brutally threw him out of the window. He fell upon a dunghill, and some straw having been accidentally thrown over him, from a loft above, he remained three days in this unwholesome bed, where he was at length found, still living, by one of his cousins. He was then carried secretly out of the town, and under skilful treatment perfectly recovered. He lived for more than forty years after these events, and whenever called upon to sign his name, he wrote, "Francis Seville, thrice dead, thrice buried, and thrice brought to life by the grace of God."

THE CAMEL.

This most useful animal, the camel, is the living personification of all that is ungraceful in form and ungainly in motion. His foot is broad, soft, and sprawling. His legs small and crooked, with enormous joints. The neck, which is set low and arches downward, is very slender; and the head, which is carried almost horizontally, is diminutive, out of all proportion to the size of the body. The hip bones are prominent, the tail flat, short, and tapering, and nearly without hair. The rough skin also is only partially clothed with a thin coat of scattering hair, which, however, appears in thick, shaggy tufts, like coarse wool, upon the shoulders, flanks, and belly. The high bunch upon which the load is placed, and which forms a sort of arch, adds to this general deformity and awkwardness of motion.

The camel lies upon the breast, with his legs extended under his body, to receive his burden, and he rests in the same posture at night. He utters cries of impatience and anger upon being compelled to kneel down to receive his heavy load, and often starts suddenly to his feet before it is arranged, as if resolved to receive no more, or to throw off what he already has. One can but feel sympathy for the reluctant, complaining brute; and as he rises with his burden, and begins to reel along upon his diminutive, misshapen, crooked legs, he has the appearance of being a cripple throughout, and seems likely to be crushed to the earth in his attempt to travel. He goes on, however, rocking and swinging all day, showing no symptoms of fatigue, and never making a misstep. He needs constant guiding where the way is not very broad and quite unobstructed, as he goes down a steep, or throws his rider into the thick, thorny top of an acacia-tree, without ceremony.

There is no difference between a [illegible] and dromedary, except that the latter is [illegible] er, more supple and active, and [illegible] younger, qualities which render him fit for riding; while the heavy, [illegible] hard-paced animal is, on these accounts, voted to carrying burdens.
