Scott has made an armistice was adopted today, as also the Resolution looking to some judical in-vention for the punishment of Mr. Trist. A good lieving it both a design to injure the treaty as well as General Scott. The Whig Senutors professed that there should be no concealments and voted for all the information in the possession of the Ex

Ale., and the Anti-Slavery Resolutions of Mr. Bald win, of Conn. Mr. Baldwin had not the courage to vote directly upon the Resolutions and therefore moved to lay them upon the table.

The fact that the Senate should have consented The fact that he Sedate should have consented to legislate at all under the circumstances, excited a good deal of surprise, and some regret. It could hardly have been the state of public business, in a body which adjourns over so often, and I fear was rather intended as a piece of fool-hardiness, or af-front on the part of the Vice President who had power to suspend business until the House had acted upon the Resolutions received during the

Mr. CELTENDER, of the Senate received a Telegraphic despatch, to-day from Frankfort, announceing his unanimous nomination for the office of Goverror of Kentucky. The despatch caused great regret among the Whig members here. There is no man in Congress more fitted to adorn public life, none whose constant prissence is more needed and none whose absence will be so much regretted. It is crual if not unjust towards the Whigs of the

The room is hung heavily in mourning, and the first of the country also hangs in folds upon the lls covered with crape. The body lies in a lead The coffin is partially covered with evergreens and flowers. The countenance is very natural, and looks as tranquil as one in a sleep, except that the spirit of life has gone. The palor of the face and the deep sable of the coffin is greatly releived by the flowers which friendly hands have placed upothe surface, and these, in all the colors of a bright aky, were reflected through a glass upon the form beneath. Perishable emblems of mortality, are all these, and yet they may survive the tenement which holds the soul of man.

The dependence of this country upon the fluctuations of English prices for iron, of necessity involves the existence of this branch of American and preeminently Pennsylvanian industry.

We believe this evil to be directly traceable to the operation of the American Tariff of 1816, which when the price is high abroad, increases the duty on imported from $3 per ton for every advance of $10, and no protection is wanted; and when the price is low, diminishes the duty $3 for every fall of $10 per ton, at a time when the greatest protection is wanted. Or, in other words encourages the domestic article, by an extra duty, when no encouragement is required; but when prices are ruinously low; invites the importation of the foreign article by diminishing the protection on the American.

It is the duty therefore of all interested in the production of iron and coal in this state, seriously to enquire whether a policy so fastatio departments of our industry, essential to national prespective and independency will be persevered in under circumstances so different from those existing when the independence, will be perseyered in under circumstances so different from those existing when the present tariff became a law. The general government cannot be insensible to the representation which it is our duty as Pennsylvanian, as well as manufacturers and miners, to make, nor should it withhold any remedy in its power tending to ameliorate the evil and injustice bearing so onerously on these highly important branches of domestic industry.
