LIUS DARRAGH was called to the Chair.

Mr. Darragh expressed his graification at the honor conferred upon him, and said he came to the meeting to express his satisfaction at the seant of the other conferred upon him, and said he came to the meeting to express his satisfaction at the seant of the other hands of the conferred upon him, and said he came to the meeting to express his satisfaction at the seant of the other hands of the conferred upon him, and said he came to the meeting to express his satisfaction at the seant of the other hands of the conferred upon him, and hand he came to the was graitfied to find a general acquiescence in the nomination by the Whigs of this control, although the most of them were friendly to other gentlemen. He himself was in favor of General Winfield Scott,—he thought in many respects he was the most preferable candidate, a Northern man, with well known abilities as a civilian. He believed Gen. Scott could have been triumphantly elected. But with Gen. Taylor for our standard heaver, success was equally if not sort by the things of the controller. We want to the controller of the controlle for our standard bearer, success was equally if not more certain. (Cheers.) By his success, Whig principles would be carried out. He said Whigs had been battling for the success of their principles. since the Administration of John Quincy Adams. their long cherished desires. The opposite party, he said, were stupified by the nomination of Tay, for and Fillmore—the hope of a continuance of their power was gone. He averred that Genera Taylor was a Whig-a good Whig-a Henry Clay Whig. The doctrines announced by Gen. Taylor rere the doctrines of the Whig party. He referred to the Alison letter, and said its doctrines were all the Whig party could desire. He dwelt at some length on Gen. Tsylor's opinions in regard to the veto, and showed that we were perfectly asks with such sentiments, and that we could give him our trust and hearty confidence. He refernim our trust and nearly coandaged. He refer-real to Gen. Taylor's private life, and anid it com-mended him to our attention. As far as Slavery was concerned, he greatly preferred a Slaveholder of Whig principles, to a Northern man who had adopted the principles of the ultra Slaveholders.— The way to put down Slavery, was to put down the Northern allies of Slavery, the Locofico party. Gen. Taylor, he believed, was opposed to the ex tension of Slavery, and to all wars to favor its ex itory by war and conquest. He is a man, said the speaker, who was not known to the people at

For our lowal part, we must confess that our preferences were not for General Taylor, and we have been serious ly disappointed in the result; but the nomination having been made, by the representatives of that party with which it is our pride and pleasure to be identified, we scatter all our feelings upon the subject, and forgetting the past, we intend to do all in the transfer of the print Committee of Connects, on the Rail Raid Dept.

signature and principle with which we, as a party, are identified—his report with which we, as a party, are identified—his momination securing us, beyond a peradventure, the vote of the State of New York, which, it must be acknowledged is no small matter. As regards the success of the ticket, there cannot be the slightness to possible doubt. The decree has gone forth, and General Taylor, if he lites, will, with old Whiter, is been his way to Washington to relieve the prefent Powers, on the 4th of March, 1540—It is hinted that a portion of the delegations from Ohio, New York, and Massachusetts, intend calling a convention for the purpose of nominating an independent ticket—based entirely upon the Wilmot Proviso Question. All other political differences are to be merged into this single subject? It is to be, emphatically, a war upon the South. The Barnburners are to be invited to send delegates; and it is further said, that the candidates are to be Gov. Corvin, of Ohio, for the Prediency, and John Van Buren, of New York, for the Vice Presidency; Lillie reliance, however, its to be placed upon this report.

Time will very soon demonstrate the intentions of the Barnburners, as their convention will shortly be held at Utica. We trust sincerely that no collesion will take place between any portion of the Whigs, and this faction of the Democracy. Let them fight out their own hattles—for, under no circumstances can they be induced to support Whig mean or Whig measures. Enough for the present.
