MARHADE FOR MOREY—I never knew a marriage for money that did not end unhappily. Yet managing mothers and heartless daughters accontinually playing the same unlucky game. I be lieve many think that they will not have a better chance, and dread being dependent. Such markings, no doubt, sometimes prove tolerably combrable, but a great aumber would have been far happier single. If I may judge by my observation of such matters, marring for a home makes them a very tiresome one.—Mrs. Child.

It is strange that people will not learn wisdom in some matters, either from experience or observation. They wiffilly shut their eyes and close their ears, so that they can neither hear nor sectified in the matter of marriage. They is of more account than any and every thing by a precisite structure of such matters, marring for a home makes and solve the first of those measures—Cass will to be the same a very tiresome one.—Mrs. Child.

It is strange that people will not learn wisdom in some matters, either from experience or observation. They wiffilly shut their eyes and close their ears, so that they can neither hear nor sec.—This is particularly true in the matter of marriage.

Foolish parents and silly daughters imagine that money is of more account than any and every thing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, sober, and industifing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, sober, and industifing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, sober, and industifing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, esber, and industifing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, esber, and industifing else. If a young man is only rich, it matters not whether he is intelligent, esber, and industifing the province of the constitute of the man and of usefulness. But the results of such halfs—a trocken heart—and an early grave. Let parents and daughters remember that

Rough and Ready Club in Elizabeth To the Educar of the Pinton in Gazette

An indigenmed meeting of the Whig citizens of the Borough of Elizabeth assembled in the Town Hall this evenley, for the purpose of forming a

Rough and Ready Club auxiliary to that of the county. On motion, the meeting was organized by calling James McKown, Esq. to the Chair, and appointing C. A. Dravo Secretary. After a few pertacut remarks by Daniel McCurdy, Eq., relative to cointed at a former meeting for that purpose, ported a constitution for the gover slub, which was adopted with great unanimity. were unanimously received and adopted

Respiced, That in Zachary Taylor, we recognize sound and substantial Whig, "a mind richly stored with profound and practical knowledge," a non-proteriptionist, a man of the whole country, one who has cast a halo of glory around the Stars and Stripes wherever and whenever they have floated over him—one esteemed and respected—loved about an inch from the angle of the mouth. I found passed backwards and upwards, rupturing vessels in its course. From the appearance, it is presumed it entered the base of the brain, which was sufficient to produce death, and did so produce death in this case, in my opinion.

Mr. S. G. Robinson was the next witness examined, who stated, in substance, that about the latter part of July, the deceased came to this city, and stated that he was in search of a half brother whom he believed to be in this country somewhere and who was a Methodist Preacher. He had a note from the Rev. Hunter, giving some information about him. Said he did not want to find him, however, as they had a large estate in the old country, which would fall to him, (decessed,) if his brother could not be found. Deceased looked like a dissipated man, but was not drunk when I beard him speak. He was an Irishman.

J. M. White was sworn, and stated that the deceased went by the name or White, and claimed to be a relative of witness—a second cousin.—How known him about three weeks. Believe SCENERY OF PORNEO.
