man, much addicted to intoxication, was found lying is the street on Wednesday evening, about office. At nine, when the Captain of the night watch came in, be saw him sitting up in the cell, apparently sleeping. About twelve, another man was taken up in the streets, and placed in the sam cell with Holt. He approached Holt to awaken him, and, on touching him, discovered that he was dead and cold. The fact was immediately coinon the body yesterday morning, by the Coroner.-Verdict- Died by the visitation of God.' The deceased had two children-a son and daughter.

A DISTRESSING CASE .- Mrs. Betty Carr, of County Tyrone, Ireland, received a letter from her son, dated in Pittsburgh, enclosing money, and directing her to meet him in this city. She arrived here without finding her son, till Mr. Davis Johnson kindly offered her an asylum. She has not ye been able to hear from her son, is now very ill, and is in deep distress. She has another son Richard Carr, and a son in law, John Trotter, residing in or near New Lisbon.

Dr. Banning's Lecture.-The subject of this gentleman's gratuitous lecture to-night, at 74 o's clock, in the Hall of the University, will be, "The Philosophy of Attitude and Symmetry, embracing the cause and preventive of the dro formity of children and young ladies, which are so ungraceful and distressing, as well as very com-mon at the present day." The Scotchman's Description of General Taylor.

Thank God, I've ken'd the good old mon Wi locks o sna and eyes o lire. We fought beneath his engle glance And sturdy beart that does no tire.

I've ken'd him in the loud toray.

When death was lying low the clan,

And blood-stan'd grew the chapparat

And red old Rio's water's ran.

I've read o' Waliace and o' Bruce, O, during deeds by Campbells done But ne er saw one approach so near, Perfection's picture as this mon He's na so tall as lords of old, But braw and bold to look upon And if ye saw him in the tight, Ded take me, but ye'd blush to run

He's aye so muckle, cool and brave, he'd think the field a ladies' route—The more the danger pressing grows. The caster be can take ye out. I marked him well at Monterey, When he rode in beneath the wall—How coolly he held death at hay—How calmly be gave the recall.

Ye Southern folks may well be proud,
And tell his deeds in soin and story.
The laurel wreath that deeds in brow.
Encircles the whole land wilglury
For, were the world a mighty scrott,
And every tree and branch a peti,
The sea all ink, ye'd tail to write
The glory of earth's greatest mon.
