The first great example of the working of the Irish Encumbered Estates Bill is to be found in the LATER FROM EUROPE, ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICA. Als and great example of the working of the frish Encombered Exatles Hill is to be found in the following significant paragraph: "A Ghiway paper states that its 'most extensive estate in Ireland is about to charge hands." This can only refer to the estate of Mr. Martin, lof Galway, which is surface extent may be consider-ed a Trincipality, though otherwise of anflicients. I's limited value. The incumbrances therein are said to be entrinous, and the statement made is that the owner is to have £50,000 for his inter-est, the purchaser assuming all liabilities." This enormous estate, which is larger than some baginh Couties, belonged to the late excention but hor on the Act against crucity to minute. At his death, a few years since, the estate descended to his only daughter, who, about two years ago, married her cousin, a young genulemen of the name of Bell. The estate was mortaged to the extent of 2500,000; and last year some of the pro-printor's abeep were distanced for poor rates-the entrance gate and lodge are about 20 mile. A treat insurrection took place at Legborn on the 2d and 2d instant, and at the date of the latest accounts the insurgents appear to have remained masters of the town. The account given of this raing by the Gazzetta di Gazora states that, on the evening of the 2d a proclamation was placatid-interdicting the meetings of political clubs. To prevent the people from tearing down the pla-cards, police were stationed by them. A young man having torn down one, was wounded in the hand by the police in charge of it. This was the occasion of the outbreak which commenced with a conflict between the police and populace; the for-mer fired, and five of the people were thilled and averal wounded. The troops were then called out, and at first fired in the sit, but the populace if ed with effect, and 112 soldiers fell dead. The soldiers then pilde their arms, and fraternized with the people. of the steamer the firing continued unabated. A passenger in the Tancred steamer, which left Naples on the 5th, says that on the 3d, at at in the morning, Messina was fired on by 16 gun toata, as well as by the citadel' but that the town answer-ed with such spirit that the gun boats were dam-aged and compelled to retire. They then went to the Terra Nuova, where they threw a great num-ber of balls to clear the abore of some batteries which were established there. The Sicilians made a feint of a retreat, having spiked their guns, when the gun boats landed 500 to 600 Swiss, upon whom the Sicilians turned with fury, and messac-rered a part, carrying their heads on bayonets thro' the city, and making prisoners of the rest. At the departure of the Tancred, at half past two in the afformoon of the 3d, the advantage appeared to be on the side of the bicilians. "Previous to the Baltimore Convention of 1814, when so many States had declared for Van Burea that his nomination was decuned certain, Gen. Daff Green conceired the project of calling a Conven-tion to meet on the Fourth of July, it nominate an independent candidate. He addressed a letter to Gren. Cass, inquiring whether he would permit his name to go before such a Convention as a candi-date. Now, though Gen. Cass would probably consider resistance to 'regular nominations' an of fence little short of treason, no emilier how irregs ularly they mich the mude, he had no such rev-erance for them at that time. He professed but little scinitance with the state of public senti-ment as he had recently returned from France-thought politicians governed tha people too much-was modest in his thoughts of the Presidency--but concluded by acquiescing in the use of his name before such a Convention. It so happened that Gen. Green had not steam enough to git up a Con-vention, and the project feil through."
