James Green, an improved Telegraph, in-yented by M. George Mathiot, of this city. This invention meinly consists of an improvement on a threating the operator is enabled to work either one or two independent and distinct engines or machines at a distant station, using at the same time but a single ware between the two places-a result which has hitherto been aupposed finpossible to be obtained except by the use of two wires. One of the applications which Mr. Mathiot has made of his invention is the work-lines and apaces, as used by Professor Moree, a strend introstic a single way used, and the letters being fines and apaces, as used by Professor Moree, a strend to two restry wire as fast as with one pen; and instead of the inphabet consisting of dots, lines and apaces, as used by Professor Moree, a strende to write early wire as distingt and tride as the common English alphabet. There are two writing keys used, and the letters being find and prove or both keys, the keeping of time on working by Moree's instrument, is by this arrange ment, done away with, so that any person of or-diary capability, might learn the letterspher read-ing and writing in the course of a day. Not only does this instrument the statest sign of mognetism--netter would not show the least aign of mights-meantury of electricity so as to work in the same curvuit, it would not show the least aign of mights-meantury of electricity no as to work Mr. Moree's meanether would the same detering current suffice to stain the paper used by Mr. Bain in his English telegraph; yet when Mr. Mathida in-creased the quantity of mich bains of a day. Mr. Moree's magnet, then it readily stated the the mich apper of his. Simer Ver the mash had to restrain the loree of his own magnet by a strong arestrain the loree of his sown magnet by a stro

Protessor Morse. This plan, as modified by his two pen arrangement, he thinks, must ultimately superseds all others. Mr. M. informs us that he made these discorrer-ies full six years since; but as this system of tele-graphing requires a penetrating baltery at each sta-tion, he deemed it useless, under the axpense and trouble of the batteries, to present—he has theres fare applied his whole attention for two years to the battery, and has at last succeeded in construct-ing a battery which will endure for months or even years. It suffers no loss or deterination when not in use, and will cost only it works a day to work 100 miles of wire. The only attention it, requires is to le it solves. This originet can, how-over, take the place of Morse's, with all the ar-rangements as used at present, and operate with a much weaker battery. His improvement, will, of course, be platented, and deserves to be examined and considered by those who are engaged in the business of telegraphing. It may be seen at the lower and the set of the start of the seen at the lower factory of Mr. James Green, 33 South usiness of telegraphing. It may ostrument Factory of Mr. James G
