Now that is what we like to see. When men offer to take stock, and thus furnish the means to do a truly wise in this. The stock will be among the best in the country.

Pittaburgh is not acting alone in this great enterprise. The counties in Ohio, through which the road is to pass, are truly alive to the importance of the enterprize, and the taking of stock is proceedpository, that the people of Canton are at work in good earnest, and that the subscriptions look well. All that is now wanting to start and complete the work, is for Pittsburgh and Allegheay to step forward, in downright good earnest. Let this be done and the whistle of the locomotive will soon be heard in our neighborhood.

Since writing the above, a meeting of the bost of this company has been convened, and Col. W. Robinson, in elected President. It was resolved that the road should diverge from the Ohio River, ig Beaver, and the Chie Engineer was instructed to locate and prepare fo contract forty miles westward from that point.

THE GREAT EJECTHERT CASE. This pass has occupied the U.S. Court, du s whole of the week! The arguments of irdsy morning the case went to the junry.

P. Kelly, i., Foreman,
Peter Clover, Jr.,
Joseph Pollock,
H. McGuire,
E. Swaine,
R. Swaine,
Roter Lamberton,
Samuel Sentih. Mr. Justice Grier, in charging the jury, said:

Mr. Justice Grier, in charging the jury, said:

-This is an action of ejectment in which the plaintiffs claim to recover the two undivided third parts of a tract of land in Lower St. Chair Township, called Bergen Op Zoon, lying on Beck's Run, about ten miles from this city, containing about 370 acres, said to be of considerable value. In order to show the title in themselves, the plaintiffs have given in evidence:

1st. A patient from the commonwealth to John Ormsby, dated the 11th of April, 1783.

2d. A deed from John Ormsby and wife to Wm. Lamb and Jehn Webb Cheakley, for the considers stidio of 4437 18s.

tion of £437 18s. 3rd. A deed from Lamb & Cheekley to Richar third of the land to the heirs of Oliver Ormsby and demand only the two undivided thirds in thi ction. They have thus shown you a complete legal :

and demand only the two undivided thirds in this action.

They have thus shown you a complete legal title from the commonwealth, and are entitled to recover, unless the defendants can show a right to retain the possession ton a better title.

The defendants also claim tule under John Ormsby. They allege that John Ormsby had tenants on this tract of land as early as the year 1790 or 1791, and received the rents and patd the taxes, continuing his possession in this way utill the time of his death, in December 1805. That after his death, his son Oliver Ormsby, for himself and the other heirs of John Ormsby, cotinued in possession by his tenants, down to the time of his death, in 1832—since which time the other heirs of John Ormsby and those claiming under them have recovered the possession of their two thirds of the land, and are now in possession.

They rely wholly on the statute of limitations, as they do not pretend that Lamb and Cheekley, who had purchased the legal title from John Ormsby, hid ever reconveyed it to them.

It may perhaps, be proper to give you a brief recapitulation of the testimony relied on to show the defendant's tille under the statute.

Wm. Hutchtson proves that in 1790, two tenants were reading on this land, one named Dixon, and the other John McCormack, but the witness does not know under whom they claimed; that in the Spring of 1791, William McDonald remained in possession of the part which had been occupied by Dixon, who left, and that McCormack left in the Spring of 1792, and was succeeded in his possession by Jared Brush. That they paid the thirds as rents to John Ormsby, that down to 1811, he kept some account of expenses and receipts on account of this tract, as if it had been a part of his father's exate. There is evidence, sho, from the books of Oliver Ormsby, that down to 1811, he kept some account of expenses and receipts on account of this tract, as if it had been a part of his father's exate. The tax lists, since 1790, have been given in evidence, from which it is alledged th or estate of John Ormsby, and their local to Orthody.

These assessments do not particularly describe the tracts assessed until 1809, when Lagree is mentioned as the tenant, but from the number of acres or tracts included, compared with the other known property of the party assessed, it is more than probable that this tract is included in all of these better than the probable that this tract is included in all of known property of the party assessed, as a thin probeble that this tract is included in all of them; but of this you will judge.

As the assessments of this county do not go further back than the year 1790, it does not appear whether this tract had ever been assessed to Lamb & Cheekley; most probably the change of ownership was never known to the assessor, and it continued to be taxed to Ormsby, as before.

The defendants have shown, therefore, a continued possession and enjoyment of this property, and reception of the rents by themselves, and those under whom they claim, for upwards of fifty year before this ejectment was instituted.

The possession required by the statute of himitations to bar the owner, after twenty one years, must be 'actual, contined, visible, notorious, distinct, and hostile. That the possession of John Ormsby and his family have all these qualifications, accept the last, has not been disputed. The great question for your decision will therefore be when Ormsby and his family have all these qualifications, except the last, has not been disputed. The great question for your decision will therefore be whether, acfording to the law of Pennsylvania, as understood by her courts, the possession of John Ormsby and his heirs are adverse or hostile to the claim or title of the plaintiffs. It is a question of fact, or rather a mixed question of law and fact, and therefore it is the province of the jury to decide it by applying the law, as stated by the court, to the facts as they shall find them to exist. The court does not intend to express any opinion on the facts simply; but when the law draws certain inferences from certain facts, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury. The credibility of the court to instruct the jury. The credibility of the witnesses you are to judge of.

We shall therefore state some of the established principles of the law on this subject, as they have this question is to be decided alone by the laws which regulate the transfer or possession of real seatate in Pennsylvania. The court has nothing to do with the laws of any other State on this subject, nor with any general laws which might prevail—But the question is to be decided entirely and alone by the laws which regulate these matters, as existing in this particular State.

Then, lat. It is not necessary that defendants should show that John Ormaby entered under some deed or written title, good or bad, to give colour of title.

of liminatum was passad, a protect the context of the same of the ers at the time.

Mr. MERASKY occupied the Chair.

The Rev. Andrew Black, of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, Allegheny, opened the question in the affirmative. After stating the question, the reverend gentleman referred to what had been said in a great many quarters as to the secret drinkings which had been the result of the late license law. He contended that this was an evil which would die away of itself; and that however much secret drinking might have been indulged in, the eye and the heart were not shocked by that bold and daring use of ardent spirits which was so familiar to the community at the present time. The legislature had passed laws for the suppression of gambling; they had put down lotteries as being injurious to the people—as encouraging immorality and idleness and improvidence, and who would dare to say that there were such things as lotteries now, or that gambling was carried on at any rate in this state to the extent it had been formerly. The position, then, he wished to illustrate was this—that those who fostered and encourage ed intemperance were more injurious to society than the men who covered broad cast our land with lottery tackets or any other system of dishesty which might be adopted by men to do harm to the property of others. The question then was, was there injury done to the property, the health and the lives of men by the means which were resorted to to sustain the cause of intemperance? Now, 1st, As to the property. Why had Pennsylvania and other States imposed penalties on gambling? Had not a man's right to do whatever he might be plensed to do with his own? No. The law said a man had no right concerned in the day of the destroy his own property or the property of another by gambling. Now if the legislature could correct this evel, why might it not correct a greater? Those who destroyed their property by gambling did not destroy their minds. The man who gambled at night might work in the day, but the circumstance of a man's gambling did not render him incapable of following cupation—but drunkenness tid. True, gambling encouraged dishonesty, but to give a man for money ardent spirits—intoxicating drinks—was equally dishonest, for the money in that case was taken not for "value received" but without any value—nay for that which was a positive injury, at the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time takeing that which was necessary to the same time to have a positive in the same time to the time to the time down but did they succeeds? No. There was no stoppage of them until by an ext of the Legislature they were declared to be illegal. Now what time they were declared to be illegal. Now what time they were declared to be illegal. witnesses you are to judge of.

We shall therefore state some of the established of the state of be a great deal of secret buying and selling of lot-tery tickets, and that there was no use in taking from the Government a source of revenue when the evil would not be remedied. Now the result was that this evil did not prevail, and, if it did, it

STRAMBOATS. CINCINNATI & PITTSBURGE

THIS well known line of spicodid passenger Steamers is now composed of the largest, swiftest, bestanished and farmished, and most powerful boats on the waters of the Nest. Every accommodation and comfort that money can procure, has been provided for passengers. The Line has been in operation for fave years—that carried a million of people without the least ingary to their persons. The boats will be at the foot of Wood street the day previous to startung, for the reception of freight and the entry of passengers on the register. In all cases the passage money must be paid in advance. DAILY PACKET LINE.
