and, if we step beyond to consult our sympathies or our opinions, we undertake what belongs colely to the legislative power, and we violate our duty and our quath.

We may say this Court highly and heartily approve the object of the framers of the law in question, and would rejoice to see the hours of toil and labor reduced, so that the operatives in our factories might have more time to enjoy the free air, more time for recreation, and for moral and intellectual improvement. We succerely trust that the day is near at hand, when the system of reduced hours will become uniform in all the manufacturing States of the Union, and that thus the last and only obstacle to its adoption will be removed. It is an amelioration demanded by the spirit of the age, and must sconer or inter be conceided. These are our opinious gentlemen, on the expediency and propriety of a legislative provision on the subject, and we have no doubt they are yours. But we are not at liberty to substitute them for the law of the land and the facts of this case.

The question recurs: Wasthere a riot at the time and place mentioned? We do not propose to give a detailed account of all the proceedings of the day, but to refer to same of the more prominent incident. Nor do we undertake to give them in the exact order of time. It appears from the widence that the crowd assembled at the building early in the morning, and remanced all day. They went there to drive or "get the girls out." They went there to drive or "get the girls out." They went there to drive or means of intimidation; and assumed a boatile attitude towards the immates of the factory. They made demonstrations of a purpose to force the gates, in order to get into the yard. The authority and charcaties of the Mayor and police officers of Allegheny city were diregarded; Whea the Sherill came a second time on the ground with his posse, he was treated with inselt, and with violence to his person. His life was in peril and he was driven from the ground, The windows of the factory were broken. crowd collected in the Rotunda of the new Court House, od Saturday morning, anticipating to hear the sentence of Judge Patton, in the cases of the rioters. The judge, however, did not hold any ricters. The judge, nowever, did not not any court on that day, and the people were evidently disappointed.
