sorry to keep the Mercury waiting illness which has confined us to the house i e last three or four days, must he our excus and even now we are admonished, by pumistak able indications, that we must use our flowly n turning strength with great caution. As the met me of being charged with a disual two dur oubation, we have been under the necessity of leaving our neighbor on the "tenter hooks of a

After giving us an extract from his lectures the duties and proprieties of the gress; for which we humbly acknowledge our obligation, the editor proceeds to remark, that the Gazette has frequently attacked him, "as if to correct some error or miarepresentation." True, for once. We have never lifted our pen to speak of the Merrury, bur we ted thereto by a sense of duiy, for the correction of some error or misrepresentation, ex-cept in our notice of the first number, when we spoke of it in terms of commendation, as the principles therein set forth were so nearly in ac-ice with our own, and of the Whig part that we could not do otherwise than we did, if w spoke at all. The next time we had occasion to speak of th

The next time we had occasion:to speak of the Mercury was in terms of rebute, for its uncalled for and most unjust assault upon the Whig paty. is which is character and principles, were prost shamefully misrepresented. We togs decasion as the same time to show how far the Marcury hat already deputted from the promises of its saluta-tory address, and how little it could be relied upon to carry out those conservative principles i made so much of in the beginning. That article, the Mercury has not, and cannot assive. To evade the force of our exhibition of his ec contric course, the editor now vedy modestly as-sents that the success of his paper has originated all our remarks, and that it is because the "pros perity of the Mercury had begun to interfere with the business of the Gazette," that we were led to see the difference between his profession and his -"then a change came over the spirit of his (our) dreams !" This is too ridiculous for sober remark. It assbeen the standing thesie of com ment, and the avenue of escape for nearly every paper which has arisen in Ritshurgh, and "strutted its brief day" and then expired.-"It interfered with the Gazette," and that was the reason the Gazette corrected their errors. We are sorry to disturb our neighbor's self, complacent egotiam, but he may be assured that the Gazette views the existence of the Mercury, so far as it own prosperify is concerned, with supreme indif-ference. The Gazetto's prosperify br istability is not affected in the least by the Metoury, and fu ther, has never been affected by the incidery, and tur-ther, has never been affected by the establishment of any paper in the city. It is probably now more prosperous than it would otherwise be, but for the vigorous competition it has to encounter, and so far from being eaten up with the envy which the Mercury gives evidence it could fer gives evidence it could feel, the Gazette rejaiced in the number and stability of its cotemporaries, feeling assured, four; the lights, of experience, that the increase of papiers, if not beyond a reasonable number is rather beneficial than otherwise, to those long catablished. We hailed the advent of the Mercury with pleasur ring there was an opening which ought to be
