Suppose you were to get an injunction against wheeling bridge—would it not be a dangerous precedent for you! Our Cincumati steam boats want to go to Brownsvili—your Mosougahela bridge is in the way—it must come down' and the bridge at Mosongahela city must come down too' or they want to go to Franklin on the Allegheny river—you have three bridges, and an aqueduct all in the way—they too must come down' and you must establish ferries between the triple cities of Pittaburgh, Allegheny, and Birmingham'.

This is an interesting question for your Iron days in the year are there 10 feet water in the channel at Wheeling? I vonture to say on the average, not 30 out of 385, and not tet, days in the year over ten feet! So that according to the statistics of your own meeting, the Telegraph Not 2 (whose chimnies, we suppose, are the longest on the river) might perform her regular weekly trips, without finding it necessary to reduce the length of her amoke pipes (even if she must run in the channel more than twice or perhaps three times a year!

And here another question occurs—what necessity exists for such extremely long chimners!—Would they not answer just as well if one foot shorter? Might they not be reduced ten or perhaps fifteen feet in length, without materially affecting the speed of the boat! If the coormous length of these chimneys is to increase the draft of the fornaces, might not this end be attained as well or better by the use of "blowers," driven by the engine, as on the enatern boats? It seems strange that you people should have waited until this work is almost completed before making any demonstration against the jenterprise. I understand that the abutments and towers are already exerted, and all the iron work and other materials are prepared to put up immediately, so that probably before any action can be had in the premises, the bridge will be completed. This has been done at great cost of time, labor, and money,—and it does not seem to me reasonable that a work of such cost, and such public utility, should be seemfood and abandoned, merely to gratify the whims of a few steam boat captains who will insist upon having their chimmeys $5 feet high, and without either sections or hinges.

We have received our Vienna papers and letters to the 24th inst. The details of the last battles on the banks of the Wang had not yet reached Vienna, though it would appear that the result is the freatration of a most obstitute attempt of the Huagarians to cross the Wang. On the incruing of the 20th inst, they had actually got possession of the 20th inst, they had actually got possession of the glat hank of the river, but they were aventually obliged to return to their former positions.—In the meantime, General Georgey had come up with reinforcements, and the Imperial leader Wohlgemute, with his 15,000 men, was reduced. Wohlgemuth, with his 15,000 meri, was reduced to the necessity of acting entirely on the defensive, until upon the arrival of Russian reinforcements, a fierce buttle ensued, which continued till night parted the commenced on the afternoon of the following day, and lasted throught till evening, and the whole of the next day. The Hungarnaus fought with furious obstimacy, but they could not prevail against the United Imperialist forces, and after a three days battle, General Georgey was compolied to lead his troops back tropon Tarknabd, Negyed and Guta. He crossed the Wang at the two first mentioned places, and finished by destroying the bridge at Negyed.
