The French Difficulty.

The French Difficulty. The fare up between the government at Wash-factor and that at Paris, in not likely to produce So any nerious difficulty. Letters by the Niagara state that the temper of the French government is any inclusion of the temper of the French government is the interval of the temper of the French government is the interval of the temper of the French government is the interval of the temper of the French government is the interval of the temper of the French government is the interval of the temper of the french government is the interval of the temper of the french government is the interval of the temper of the french government is the temper of the temper of the french government is the temper of temper of temper of the temper of the temper of temper of the temper of te state that the temper of the French government is quite pacific, and that no danger of a beingerant aspect need-be approbended. On the first an-mouncement of the diamission of M. Poussin, at Paria, some approbanism was expressed, but in three or four days, every thing quieted down. Some excliment arose from a report that the Prench government had adopted, with regard to Mr. RTail, a science similar to that adopted at Washington with regard to M. Poussin: that his pissports had been sent to him. Such a measure was advocated in the Cabinet, but was anccessfully resisted.

The new French Minister to this Bois Le Compte, was appointed before the French government heard of M. Poussin's dismissal. He ras at Turin, ou some diplomatic service, at last nts, and it will be some weeks before he ar ives. The new Envoy, says a Paris letter b ork Conrier, belongs to an almost extine tace of diplomatists. He is the last of the diploatatives employed by the Provisional tent. "He belongs to the Consti anal, or third party, of which Dufaure, Cavaigns He is deemed a "moderate republican" -- so mod is by ho means in good odour with the advance licans who do not besitate to style him a reionist. He is with Murraat, who was for so ime talked of for the mission to Washington, a Poussin, whom he actually succeeds, of the school of the National. Being a diplomatiat of longe tanding than Poussin, and consequently m fail with regard to the envenances of manner and fail with regard to the envenances of manner and language which are of rigor in diplomacy, having improver ever before his eyes the fate of his preeccessor, it may be reasonably hoped that the decessor, it may be reasonably hoped that the course of the new functionary will not be marred by those rude shocks which have brought the Ma-jor's diplomatic career to a premature close." The French press, of all parties, took quite a mod-erate tone towards the United States. The Dir Decrates, which is supposed to receive its core from the Parallent and courts his mich career to be from the President, and speak his mind, rem
