The treatment of the General state on a success of the succ Mr. Wenter and the Actir House for a short time, and beside, the evidence that far has been murdered, and that the imputation is entirely gratuitous—that so the subject of more, with his family suri, was introduced to Mr.

The truth'is, I axw had no heart to spak of such the figuration is entirely gratuitous—that so the Hungarian exiler, now free guests of that the pitable establishment, called upon the distinguished on the subject. There can be no doubt, I think that after all from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that way inclined, he has all far from being even that ways faryred the project of a connection by Rail.

The truth'is, I awe had no heart to spak of such that the imputation is entirely gratuitous—that so with the imputation is entirely g place, it is to be hoped the whole truth will be isclused, and then it will be time for the community o make up its mind as to the guilt or innoce of Prof. Webster. It is astonishing to see b ester. It is astonishing to see ho oon an unblemished reputation of more than fifty years standing, may face a way before suspicion.

A man against whom no censure was ever utter-A man against whom no consure was ever duered, is upon mere suspicion, charged with a most peinous crime. Such, alas, is human consistency einous crime. Such, atas, is human consucercy I have had the privilege, since I came to this ci-y, of attending Bishop Potter's lectures before the weel! Institute. These lectures are free, the lecturer receiving his pay from the interest of a fund which was left some years since by a wealthy gen-ileman for this purpose. Persons wishing to attend the lectures are obliged to record their names, in a book kept for the purpose, within a specified time, and then take their chance in drawing tick-memories of the present and future generations.

On reaphing Plymouth, I hastened to see the verification points and objects of interest there to be found; fund of first went to "Pilgrim Hall," a stone, building with wooden pillars! What an idea! building with wooden pillars! What an idea! Tais thell contains many relies of the pilgrims, among which I saw an arm chair bronght over in
