Patterson that he had killed the boy. We helped Porter down to some salt barrels, and laid him on them. Patterson site wards ordered me out, and I froused to go—said he had killed one boy already. Patterson took hold of Porter first. No one was molesting Patterson put his arms round Porter, and Porter pushed him, and I struck him. He stagered some five steps, as a cell. Just as soon as he rose, he struck. Patterson told him to go in or out. He said he had a cheek, and would not yo in for a while—Porter did not swear. I know Porter. At that time, he and I belonged to the Good Will Engine. I was Captain at that time; I think.

Direct examination resumed.

The stick which Patterson has now in his hand, is not the stick he had. It was a heavy stick.

Dr. Joseph P. Gaxxam affirmed—Saw Porter on the Saturday night in question, jan tawen, at the corner of Penn and Wayne. He was suffering apparently from a concussion of the brain. He was very! Was was of some time in great danger.

Cross examined—The skin was not broken. It was braised.

Gol. Black then went into a lengthened examination, as to the difference of the symptoms which would be apparent between a person of intemperate his, while suffering from a concussion of the brain.

James M. Porter, aworn—Word was sont in to the while, and one who led a temperate life, while suffering from a concussion of the brain.

James M. Porter, aworn—Word was sent in to me while in the circus on Saturday night, that my brother Francis had been struck on the head by Patterson. I went out and found him sitting on some salt barrels; he appeared very sich, stuneed, and aupid. I took him to a house and gave him some wine. I became frightened and went for Dr. Gazzam. My brother was delirious for some days after that.

Cross examined—We took him to Mr. Keyser's tavern. The wine we gave him was port wine.

Dr. Gazzam, recalled—A sowere blow on the head will generally cause vomiting. To Col. Black, I dontthink that port wine would beach him. Examined what Mr. Porter threw up; it was ovident that had not been drinking.

Judge Porter, aworn—Am the father of Francis Porter; he is now shout inneteen years old, and was then a alim delicate by. He was delirious about soven days. My sons left home that night together after supper. Francis is learning the moulding business with Mr. Bradley.

The case was closed here on the part of the prosection, and Col. Black opened the case for the deleane, dwelling more particularly on the Judge Porter, aworn—Am the father of Francis Porter; he is now about nineteen years old, and was then a alim delicate by. He was delirious about severed aye. My sons let home that night together after supper. Francis is learning the moulding business with Mr. Bradley.

The case was closed here on the part of the prosecution, and Col. Black opened the case for the distance, shwelling more particularly on the right which police officers have to use force in the performance of their duties.

At the conclusion of his speech the Court adjourned.

A THERMON ASSNOW.

Wm. II. Whiteey, sworn—Know Mr. Patterson, have been acquainted with him for several years.

Nover heard of his being engaged in any quarred but one. On Tuesday or Wednesday to took a cane from me to use at the circus; this was one or two nights before the boy was struck; this stick is the one he took.
