Col. Potter had not long left his lodgings before the Hourselfe Henry Stephen Sallwan with his ed up to the room which had been assigned to Col. Potter and family such had been assigned to Col. Potter and family such had been assigned to the room which had been assigned to the company of them, and turned Ma. Potter and her infant out of doors. Mrs. Potter cought him, with tears in her eyes, to await the return of her husband, who would only be absent for a few minutes, but it was all in vain. His British nobility told her that the was only a common American cook, and ordered her out with her child in her zims, directing a servant to find other apartments for her. Gen. Herrera, who occupied rooms near those taken by Col. Potter, was appealed to by Mrs. P. and he sand his daughter, Mrs. Mickle, went with her to the Charge and beacught him to await the return of Col. Potter, but his appeal also was without effect. Mrs. P. was gain ordered out of the room, and as ashe left in tears this accomplished fascitionary and chivalire gentleman taunted her with words of this sour—Mann, don't whip meads of what had transpired, and asson as he could hear the story he called upon Mr. Sallitzan, who had gone out. After a short time he called again, but was again told that the gentleman was not in. Like a true American gentleman, Col. P. declined to disturb the family of this Royal offeeder, or in the least to take advantage of his absence, but went immediately to a hotel in the Plass and procured other lodgings, it being then nearly night.
