were separated, our whole exports to the North, and is foreign constries generally, would be equal to that sum. Of course we should import as much, and is fact to at this time consume as much. A duty of thirty per cent on these imports (and most of the rates of the present tariff law are higher) would yield a revenue of nearly forty millions of dollars. As the prices of almost all manus hactured articles are regulated by the production of the great workhope of Europe, where the accumulation of expiral model by the workhope of the production of the great workhope of Europe, where the accumulation of expiral that sum would be raised without any material increase of the prices which our citizens how pay. We might therefore expend as much as the Government of the United States ever did in time of peace up to the beginning of General Jackson's Administration, and still have on hand twenty fire millions of dollars to detore to the as the Government of the United States over did

The residue might be devoted to the making of all such improvements as we are now in want of, and especially checkering our country over with rail roads. Subjecting the goods of the North to a dety, with those from other foreign countries, would as once give a powerful sumulas to our own manufactures. We have already unificient capital for the purpose. But if needed, it would come in from abroad. English capitalists have filled Beigum with factories. We have already unificient capital for the purpose. But if needed, it would come in from abroad. English capitalists have filled Beigum with factories. Why did this occur? Simply because provisions were cheaper there and taxes lower than it England. The same motives would being them into the southern country, since both the reasons excited are much stronger in our case. It has already been proved that we can manufacture some kinds of goods more cheaply than the North. point which is attended with great social disad-vantages, so as to retard population. In the South it need not be so. The climate and soil are very favorable to spricultural pursuits. Our slaves sight be chiefly occupied on the farms, while the power class of our white population, and a por-tion of our fameles, could be advantageously em-sleyed in manufacturing. We should thus have that diversity in our pursuits which is most con-ductive to the prosperity and hapoiness of a
