Another is, that the urgh, and so commanding is her position that the view of the subject will be too limited if we con-fac our attention as to the roads emerging East from Indianapolis to the single has which is the ne of your first adoption. The, Madison and Indianopolis rail road, well nown to the public, whose course is about N. N. W., was finished to Indianopolis in the fail of 1817 It is 58 miles long, and for 56 miles at its lower end is laid with a beavy T. rait. The remaining 0 miles is the best flat bar road in the countr 30 miles in the best hat bar road in the county. Its earnings, during the unfavorable season of 1819, were $243,149 50. Its cost cannot be fairly stated, as twenty eight miles next to the Ohio river was built by the State under the expensive system of 1535, and a vasi amount expended at the Madison hill. A better guidecan be formed in the report of the Presiden or Fabruary, 1517, which set down the cost of construction of the 59 miles built by the Com-pany, (then nearly completed) at $120,000. This roadlass originally planned by the State was to whether he shall temporarily recover from his present pro-tration or not. He was carnestly advised by his physician have extended to Lafayette. Two brenches from the North East have already been construct-
