Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.
Washington, April 11th, 1850. Certain very important votes have been taken Locisville, as we shall have quite direct rail road communication with both these places, before they have turned upon Foote's proposition to raise a can possibly finish their work. Although the communication with Louisville will not be as direct a fine as could be found, yet it will probably be the best and chespest, as it passes through a fine level country, well adapted, to the purpose and compromise.
