FRIDAY, APRIL 30th 1868.

Is It Anybody's Business?

Is it anybody's business If a gentleman should choose, To wait upon a lady, Or, if the lady don't refuse? Or, to speak a little plainer, That the meaning all may know, Is it anybody's business If a lady has a beau?

Is it anybody's business When the gentleman does call, Or when he leaves the lady, Or if he leaves at all? Or is it necessary That the curtains should be drawn To save from further trouble, The outside lookers-on?

Is it anybody's business But the lady's, if her beau Rides out with other ladies, And doesn't let her know? Is it anybody's business But the gentleman's, if she Should accept another escort, Where he doesn't chance to be?

Is a person on the sidewalk, Whether great or whether small, Is it anybody's business Where that person means to call? Or if you see a person, As he is calling anywhere, Is it any of your business What his business may be there?

The substance of our query, Simply stated, would be this, Is it anybody's business What another's business is? If it is, or if it isn't, We would really like to know; For we're certain if it isn't, There are some who make it so.

If it will join the rabble, And act the noble part Of all the tattlers and defamers Who throng the public mart; But if not, we'll act the teacher, Until each meddler learns It were better in the future To mind his own concerns.

Profit and Loss.

As rather an unscrupulous fellow named Ben was going down town one morning, he met Tom and stopped him.

"I say, Tom," he said, "here is a pretty good counterfeit three. If you'll pass it, I'll divide?"

"Let's see the plaster," said Tom; and after examining it carefully, he put it in his vest pocket, remarking, "It's an equal division—a dollar and a half a piece?"

"Yes," said Ben. "All right," said Tom, and off he went.

A few minutes afterwards he quietly stepped into the store of his friend Ben, and purchased a can of oysters for a dollar and a half, laying down the three dollar bill for them. The clerk looked at the bill rather doubtfully, when his suspicions were immediately claimed by Tom, who said:

"There was no use looking, for he had received it from Ben himself not ten minutes since."

Of course the clerk, with this assurance, forked over the dollar and a half in change, and with this deposit and the can of oysters Tom left. Shortly afterwards he met Ben who asked him if he had passed the note.

"Oh, yes," said Tom, at the same time passing over a dollar and a half to Ben.

That evening, when Ben made up his cash account he was surprised to find the same old counterfeit three in the drawer. Turning to his clerk, he asked:

"Where did you get this cursed note? Didn't you know it was counterfeit?"

"Why," said the clerk, "Tom gave it to me, and I suspected it was fishy; but he said he had just received it from you, and I took it."

The whole thing had penetrated the mind of Ben. With a peculiar grin, he muttered "Sold!" and charged the can of oysters to profit and loss account.

Senator Wallace has been investigating the condition of the State finances, and proves from the records, that the total receipts in the Treasury from 1861 to 1868, amounted to $15,348,506 and that there was paid out the debt and interest, during the same years, $24,291,196, leaving a balance of $21,055,399 which has gone to some other purposes than payment of debt and interest. This shows an expenditure, or waste, or pilage, or probably all together of over two millions and a half a year; as much as the whole annual expenditure for interest on the debt and cost of the State government during Governor Shunk's administration.

Frank Hardy, the young man who murdered his step-father, J. H. Rice, near Rome, Ohio, confesses the crime, and says that he dug his father's grave before he killed him.

The young ladies of New York are now adopting the role of sweet simplicity, and appear at balls and parties in smart muslin dresses without ornaments of any kind.
