For the Reporter. THE DREAM OF MRS. WASHINGTON.

The following dream was related by Mrs. Washington, but a few weeks before her death. "I dreamed," said the mother of Washington, "that I was sitting in the piazza of a large new house into which we had but lately moved. George, at that time, was about five years old, was in the garden with a cornstalk pole, busily running little furrows in the sand. And so I was sitting in the piazza at my work; I suddenly heard in my dream a kind of roaring noise on the eastern side of the house; on running out to see what was the matter, I beheld a dreadful sheet of fire bursting from the roof. The sight struck me with horror, which took away my strength, and thro' almost senseless I was helped up by my husband and I went to the piazza. I saw that they could make no attempt to extinguish the flames. In this distressing state, the image of my little son came, I thought, to my mind, more dear and tender than ever, and turning towards the garden, where he was engaged with his cornstalk pole, I screamed out, 'George!—George!'—in a moment he threw down his pole, and ran to me, saying, 'High Ma! what makes you call so loudly, ain't I a good boy—don't I always run to you when you call me? I hear you call? I could make no reply, but just threw up my hands towards the flames. He looked up and saw the house all on fire; but instead of bustling out to help us, he instantly brightened up, and seemed ready to fly to extinguish it. But first look at me, with great tenderness, he said, 'Oh, Ma! don't be afraid; God Almighty will help us, and we shall soon put it out.' His looks and words revived my spirits in so wonderful a manner, that we all instantly set about to assist him. A ladder was promptly brought, and I saw in my dream, he ran up and the servants supplied him with water, which he threw on the fire from an American gourd—but that gourd, weaker than the one that appeared to grin ground, breaking forth and roaring most dreadfully, which so frightened the servants, that many of them, like persons in despair, began to leave him. But he, still undaunted, continued to play with water, animating the servants at the same time, both by words and action. For a long time the contest appeared very doubtful; but at length a remedy was found, a man with a tall cap and an iron rod in his hand, like a lightning rod, reached out to him a curious little trough, like a wooden shoe. On receiving this, he emptied his exertions, and with the fire of the gourd. Our joy on the occasion was unbounded; but he, on the contrary, showing no more of transport now than of terror before, looked rather sad at the sight of the great heat that had been broken.

"Then I saw in my dream that after some time spent as in deep thought, he called out with much joy, 'Well, ma! now if you and the family will but consent, we can make a far better roof than this ever was; a roof of such a quality that if well kept together, it will last forever; but if you take heed, you will make the house ten thousand times worse than it was before.' This thought certainly a very curious dream, needs no Daniel to interpret it; especially if we take Mrs. Washington's new house for the young colonel's government; the fire on its east side, for North's civil war; the gourd which Washington employed, for the American three and six month enlistments; the man with such a tall cap and iron rod, for Dr. Franklin; the shoelike vessel which he reached to Washington, for the Sabot or wooden-shod man; the French, whom Franklin mentioned a long time for America, for the new roof proposed by Washington, for the steam Constitution. But it has been taken apart and ruined by the radical Congress, which has been pulling the roof apart, but can never put it together again, hence have made it ten thousand times worse.

Zell's Popular Encyclopedia, N. K. is upon our table. We are in regular receipt of this valuable work, which should be taken by every seeker after knowledge.

Helmbold's Concentrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla. Eradicates Eruptive and Ulcerative Diseases of the Throat, Nose, Eyes, Eyelids, Scalp, and Skin.

Which so disfigure the appearance, PURGING the evil effects of mercury and removing all taints, the remnant of DISEASES, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by ADULTS and CHILDREN with perfect safety.

Two Table-Spoonfuls of the Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bathing equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

An interesting letter is published in the Medical-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections, by Benjamin Travers, F.R.S. &c. Speaking of those diseases arising from the excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic with this invaluable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so unpropitious, that ordinary remedies and other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.

COE'S COUGH BALSAM

This long tried and popular Remedy is again called to the attention of the public. As often as the year rolls around, the proprietors annually make their bow to the people, and remind them that amongst the many things required for the health, comfort and sustenance of the family through the long and tedious months of winter, Coe's Cough Balsam should not be forgotten. For years it has been a household medicine—and mothers anxious for the safety of their children, and all who suffer from any disease of the throat, chest and lungs, cannot afford to be without it. In addition to the ordinary four ounce so in the market, we now furnish our mammoth family size bottles, which will, in common with the other size, be found at all Drug Stores.
