CENTRE HALL PA., July 16th 1869.

The President's Lack of Veracity.
There is considerable excitement at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, over the removal of Mrs. Hood, late postmistress of that city and the appointment of Noah Boyton, a brawling, radical politician. Mrs.
Hood is the widow of a soldier, and was appointed postmaster about two years ago on account of her good character and the needs of herself and her family.
While she was in office, no charge or complaint was made against her, and she kept herself aloof from parties.
None supposed that she would not be continued in office by Grant, but to make all sure, she visited Washington some weeks ago and received his positive promise that she should not be disturbed. She returned home confiding in his word and assuring her family and friends that all was right, but to her utter amazement, she was removed in a few days without previous warning, and no explanation was given her or has since been given her. Such breach of faith towards a woman, such downright lying to a soldier's widow, is indeed utterly disgraceful.

A meeting of the citizens was held a few evenings ago in the Court House at Mt. Vernon, which is thus sketched by a correspondent of a radical paper, the Cincinnati Commercial.
One of the largest indignation meetings ever held in Mt. Vernon was held in the court-house on Saturday evening June 5. The Hon. Henry B. Curtis, President of the Knox County National Bank, presided. The meeting was composed of Republicans, and held to protest against the removal of Mrs. M.
L. Hood, the present efficient Postmistress at Vernon. Mrs. Hood is the widow of one of our brave soldiers who died while in service, and as a mark of the high esteem in which his services were held by the government, his widow has been appointed postmistress of this city, and had given universal satisfaction. Strong resolutions, deploring the removal and respectfully requesting the President to reconsider his action in the case and retain Mrs. Hood in the position she now holds, were adopted by a dissenting voice. Her removal does not meet the approval of a large majority of the Republicans of this city.

Still Afraid of Andrew Johnson.
The radicals are still as much afraid of Andrew Johnson as old Nick is of holy water. They run from him as quickly as the Allies ran from the surtout coat and cocked hat of Napoleon placed on a stick on the shores of the North sea. A Radical writes from Tennessee to Horace Greeley that the division of the republican party in that state "opens up a prospect for the democrats;" that "if both Senter and Stokes run to the end the democrats will be found after their votes are counted next August to have elected Andrew Johnson, Governor of Tennessee," and that "such an event will require the presence of a large Union army in the State or the quiet exodus of the loyal whites and their colored friends." Johnson will yet prove to be a very troublesome customer, who will come home to pester the radicals.

Lessons In Decency—The New Allies.
"Knock down the d-d blue coated white trash." "Let's kill every d-d Democrat." Such, fellow citizens, were the cries under whose influence the glorious Republican party, the party of "great moral ideas," the high-talented gentlemen's party, the all talents party, went into action in Washington City on the 7th inst., the latter the favorite weapon of the freedom—these crazy negroes, incited by such miserable white men as John W. Forney and other speakers at the Republican assemblies ran riot in their excitement through the streets of our Capital. The police, however, brought these colored gentlemen to their bearings, although "the colored troops fought nobly." Are we to have these scenes enacted here too for the sake of an increased Republican vote? Is our city to be the scene of negro riot and outrage? Is the cry which resounded through the streets of Washington to be echoed whenever these demi-savages possess sufficient numbers to endure them with a riotous course?

Surely the party which grovels so low as to ally itself to such auxiliaries, must be condemned as unworthy the fellowship of any man possessing ordinary self-respect. The dusky barber at Willard's Hotel is Select Councilman, and one of the members of the Common Council is the head waiter at the National Hotel. In a few years our own council may be mottled in like fashion; who knows how soon, for Sambo is strong on the bill, and may command one or two seats in council.
Fugh! how the whole thing disgusts a man possessing decent instincts, and how such wanton trifling with the sacred forms on which free government rests fills, with serious apprehension every thoughtful citizen.—Pittsburgh Post.

Telegraph Cable to Norway.
London, July 1.—A telegraph cable has been successfully laid from Peter's Head, Scotland, to the coast of Norway.

Concord, N. H., July 7.—Mr. Crawford, keeper of a store in Lee, quarreled with his son yesterday and struck him with an axe. The son seized a gun and shot his father dead.

Montreal, July 7.—Letters received here from Jefferson Davis, now at Paris, render it doubtful if his health will ever permit his return. If he recovers sufficiently to permit travel he will spend the summer in Canada and winter in Mississippi.

The lowest class of society—dwarfs,

The Corruption of Radical Editors.
Wein Forney, State Librarian, and late editor of Geary's suspended organ, the Harrisburg State Guard, charges George Berger, Simon Cameron's right hand man, and the proprietor of the Harrisburg Telegraph, with cheating the State out of thousands of dollars in the public printing. Berger retorts by charging that Forney stole some thousands of dollars of the money appropriated for refitting the Staat Library. Forney by way of replication, alleges that there are thousands of dollars worth of "pale postage stamps," the property of the State, now locked up in the private drawers of Berger. Berger, by way of sur-joinder, swears that Forney stole a push cart belonging to the State.
What a beautiful pair they must be; how well calculated to teach the Radical classes morality.

The Election In Virginia.
The result of the election in Virginia has been an overwhelming defeat of the carpet-baggers. Walker, the conservative candidate for Governor is elected by an immense majority. The legislature will be largely anti-radical, and this will add two more United States Senators to the little band of democrats belonging to that body. Six conservative Congressmen are among the trophies of the victory. The expurg-ated constitution has been adopted by a large majority, and this will vastly increase the strength of the opponents of the violent radicals, whose rule has so long oppressed the State.

LITERAL ANSWERS.
A lecturer in Portland, Maine, or somewhere else, was explaining to a little girl how a lobster cast his shell when he had outgrown it. Said he:
"What do you do when you have outgrown your clothes? You cast them aside do you not?"
"Oh, no," replied the little one, "we let out the ticks."

Again, a teacher explaining to a little girl the meaning of the word cuticle:
"What is that all over my face and hands?" said he.
"It's freckles, sir," answered the little cherub.
An answer of a similar character is often the result of a hard word.
"William," said a mother to her son who had already eaten a very considerable amount of dinner, "I don't know whether you can eat this pudding with impunity."
"Well, may be not," said William;
"I think I would rather have a spoon." A lady noticed a boy sprinkling salt on the sidewalk, to take off the ice, and remarked to a friend pointing to the salt:
"Now, that's true benevolence."
"No, it ain't," said the boy, somewhat indignant, "it's salt." So when a lady asked her servant girl if the hired man had cleared off the snow with alacrity, she replied:
"No ma'm, he used a shovel."

The same literal turn of mind which we have been illustrating is sometimes used intentionally and perhaps a little maliciously, and thus becomes the property of wit instead of blunders.
Thus we hear of a very polite and impressive gentleman who said to a youngish man in the street:
"Boy, may I inquire where Robinson's drug store is?"
"Certainly, sir," said the boy, very respectfully.
"Well, sir," said the gentleman, after waiting awhile, "where is it?"
"I have not the least idea, yer honor," said the urchin.
There was another boy who was accused by an ascetic muddled aged lady with:
"Boy I want to go to Dover street."
"Well, ma'm," said the boy, "why don't you go there then?"

One day on Lake George a party of gentlemen strolling among the beautiful islands of the lake with bad luck, espied a little fellow with a red shirt and old straw hat dangling a line over the side of a boat.
"Hello, boy," said one of them,
"what are you doing?"
"Fishing," came the answer.
"Well, of course," said the gentleman, "but what do you catch?"
"Fish you fool, what do 'spose?"
"Did any of you ever see an elephant's skin?" inquired a teacher of an infant class.

"I have," exclaimed one.
"Where?" asked the teacher.
"On the elephant," said the boy, laughing.
Sometimes this sort of wit degener-ates or rises, as the case may be, into punning, as when Flora pointed penitively to the heavy masses of clouds in the sky, saying:
"I wonder where those clouds are going?" and her brother replied.
"I think they are going to thunder."
Also the following dialogue:
"Hello, there! how do you sell your wood?"
"By the cord."
"How long has it been cut?"
"Four feet."
"I mean how long has it been since you cut it?"
"No longer than it is now."
And also, as when Patrick O'Flynn was seen with his collar and bosom sadly begrimed, and was indignantly asked by his officer:
"Patrick O'Flynn; how long do you wear a shirt?"
"Twenty-eight inches, sir."
This reminds me of an incident which is said to have occurred recently in Chatham street, New York, where a countryman was clamorously besieged by a shopkeeper.
"Have you any fine shirts?" said the countryman.
"A splendid assortment. Step in sir. Every price and every style.
The cheapest in the market, sir."
"Are they clean?"
"To be sure, sir."
"Then," said the countryman, with great gravity, "you had better put one on, for your need it."
"It is said to excite an agreeable surprise. I fear the surprise here was not agreeable to one of the parties, but it was wit nevertheless."

Memorials of Life.
No matter what may be your sphere in life, you may so act, work, in it as to secure some good result. In our mere contact with others, as friend or acquaintance, we may produce an influence which shall remain an ever-fresh memorial of a soul illumined with truth and purity. No stately mounment may rise to grace the spot of earth which incloses our ashes, but our name may be enshrined amid the sweetest associations in the deepest recesses of loving hearts. 'Tis true that "The evil that men do lives after them," but what a legacy! crushing, blasting, withering that would otherwise have been good! How great the accountability of those who wield a potent influence for nefarious ends!
Let this august yet inspiring truth be prominently fixed in our minds.
How vividly illustrated it is by the examples of those holy men who far back in the centuries sought to promote the welfare of others rather than exalt themselves!—whose very nobility and power grew out of their saintly lives whose names are as fresh now as the dews which still brighten the hillside where once their feet pressed the springing grass, and whose good deeds and ringing precepts stimulate us to lives of Christian manliness and virtue!
Phrenological Journal.

Baggage Arrangement on the Union Pacific Railroad.
The necessity of watching your baggage and defending your property et ceteris, was shown by an incident which happened to a young gentleman from San Francisco named Rice, nephew of Captain Shurley, of the United States Navy. Mr. Rice could not find his blankets, which had been safely placed in a baggage car on the day before, at Promontory. Just before we left Wasatch he took a last round, without much hope of finding them, when he chanced to spy his property in the possession of a huge western ruff, who was making off from the railroad in the direction of the collection of shanties called the town. "I beg your pardon, sir, those are my blankets," "You're mistaken, sir, they are mine," impudently replied the scoundrel. "I am not mistaken, sir; I know they are mine." "Whether they are or not," says the scoundrel, "you'll not get them unless you are a better man than me." A beardless stripling of nineteen against a Union Pacific ruddy was not a fair match, but Mr. Rice was equal to the occasion; and without losing a second, put a loaded ringer in the fellow's face, quietly remarking, "I think I am a better man than you."
"I think so too. Are you sure the blankets belong to you?" "Yes, I am sure," replied Rice, still covering the bully with his pistol. "Then take your blankets, and I'll—d to you!" and so Mr. Rice was allowed to return to the car with his blankets without further molestation.

The Wife's Commandments.
1. Thou shalt have no other wife but me.
2. Thou shalt not take into the house any beautiful brazen image to bow down to her and serve her.
3. Thou shalt not take the name of thy wife in vain.
4. Remember thy wife to keep her respectable.
5. Honor thy wife's father and mother.
6. Thou shalt not fret.
7. Thou shalt not find fault with thy dinner.
8. Thou shalt not chew tobacco.
9. Thou shalt not be behind thy neighbor.
10. Thou shalt not visit the rum tavern; thou shalt not covet the tavern keeper's rum, nor his brandy, nor his gin, nor his whiskey, nor his wine, nor anything that is behind the bar.
11. Thou shalt not visit billiard halls, neither for worshipping in chance nor heaps of money that lie on the table.
12. Thou shalt not stay out after nine o'clock at night.
13. Thou shalt not grow peevish, and content thy beautiful physiognomy because of being called to foot store bills, which thy dear wife hath made without thy consent; for verily she knows the wants of the household.
14. Thou shalt not set at naught the commandments of thy wife.

A Volcano at Sea.
A recent dispatch from San Francisco gave a brief account of a volcanic eruption in the Pacific Ocean, which was witnessed recently by Captain Nickerson, of the ship National Eagle, on the passage from Hong Kong. The following is the captain's report of the occurrence:
"On May 6th, when seventeen days out, with moderate north wind and fine weather, at 4:30 a. m. made Smith's Island, one of the Islands south of Je-do Gulf, in lat. 38 18, lon. 139 50 east, made the Island and saw a large column of smoke rising out of the water, half a point north of Smith's Island.
On approaching found it to be a volcanic eruption and an island just thrown up by the volcanic action out of the water, with a pile of rocks fifty feet high and reefs extending to the northeast and northwest for a quarter of a mile, and a break of muddy water surrounding. The Island bears north by east, half east, from Smith's Island.
We passed about midway between the two islands, and when about midway between them could hear a terrible roaring noise and see a column of smoke and steam about one thousand feet high. To all appearances the rocks must have been very hot, for when the surf rolled on them they would send up vast columns of steam. I also could see the steam rising from the reef on the north and northwest side, at least a quarter of a mile from the reef. If I had not been so near Smith's Island I would have sent a boat and sounded round it; but the position of Smith's Island on the chart is correct.
Our position at noon that day was latitude 31 29 north, longitude 140 12
east."

Idle Daughters.
It is a most painful spectacle in families, where the mother is the drudge, to see the daughters, elegantly dressed, reclining at their ease, with their drawing, their music, their fancy work and their reading, beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks, element; in short that she would never be happy if she had only half as much to do.

Future of America.
America must expand. Her republicanism, her vast resources, her past history, the very peculiarities of her varied population—all contribute to stimulate her activities and develop her power.
Utting in her geographical extent every variety of soil and climate, with all their advantages and facilities, and with but few of their disadvantages and obstacles, she may be regarded a world in herself, and independent of the remainder of the planet of which she forms a part, except perhaps, for purposes of gravitation. A few years hence, and one hundred millions of people will flourish on this prolific soil and yet not half take it up. In fine to the thoughtful our future seems pregnant with an unlimited growth. If the past offer any earnest for the future of America, guided as she has been by the hand of Providence, a hundred years hence this continent will embrace the nation whose population, whose civilization, whose greatness, and whose glory shall be the world's pride—the wonderful consummation of civil and religious liberty.—From "Our Country"

Frightful Explosion of Nitro-Glycerine.
London, July 1.—A frightful disaster occurred at Calmetron, Wales; to-day. During the cartage of some packages of nitro-glycerine from the harbor to the quays, the material exploded, and the carts, horses and men attending them were blown to atoms. The railway station was tort to pieces and a village a 4 of a mile distant was much damaged by the shock, which caused great consternation among the inhabitants. Four men were killed.

A nitro was found in an up-town gutter the other day, and on being rousted to consciousness and asked to explain how he came there, got off the following by way of explanation:
"Leaves have their time to fall,
And so likewise do I;
The reason, too, is the same,
It comes of getting dry!
But there's a difference 'twixt leaves and me, I fall more harder and more frequently."

The Wife's Commandments.
1. Thou shalt have no other wife
but me.
2. Thou shalt not take into the house
down to her and serve her.
3. Thou shalt not take the name of thy
wife in vain.
4. Remember thy wife to keep her respectable.
5. Honor thy wife's father and mother.
6. Thou shalt not fret.
7. Thou shalt not find fault with thy dinner.
8. Thou shalt not chew tobacco.
9. Thou shalt not be behind thy neighbor.
10. Thou shalt not visit the rum tavern; thou shalt not covet the tavern keeper's rum, nor his brandy, nor
his gin, nor his whiskey, nor his wine,
nor anything that is behind the bar.
11. Thou shalt not visit billiard halls, neither for worshipping in chance
nor heaps of money that lie on the table.
12. Thou shalt not stay out after nine o'clock at night.
13. Thou shalt not grow peevish,
and content thy beautiful physiogno-
knows the wants of the household.
14. Thou shalt not set at naught the
commandments of thy wife.

A recent dispatch from San Fran-
was witnessed recently by Captain
Nickerson, of the ship National Eagle,
occurrence:
"On May 6th, when seventeen days
out, with moderate north wind and
Island, one of the Islands south of Je-
do Gulf, in lat. 38 18, lon. 139 50 east,
made the Island and saw a large column of smoke rising out of the water,
half a point north of Smith's Island.
On approaching found it to be a vol-
northeast and northwest for a quarter
of a mile, and a break of muddy water
surrounding. The Island bears north
by east, half east, from Smith's Island.
We passed about midway between the
two islands, and when about midway
reef on the north and northwest side,
Smith's Island on the chart is correct.
Our position at noon that day was
east."

Idle Daughters.
It is a most painful spectacle in families, where the mother is the drudge,
to see the daughters, elegantly dressed,
reclining at their ease, with their
drawing, their music, their fancy work
and their reading, beguiling themselves
and never dreaming of their responsibilities, but as a necessary consequence
