The Pennsylvania R. R. Company have given notice that they have accepted the proposition of the citizens along the route to secure the right of way and grade the road, provided the Penn'a R. R. Co. would rail, stock and operate it.

To grade this road will be found a very expensive business, and the people along the line can now try it, and if able to bear the burden, the railroad will be a sure thing. The Pennsylvania R. R. Co. asks the people to subscribe stock to a sufficient amount to pay the expenses of grading, and in one year they will have the cars running through.

We suppose that steps will be taken at once to test the people along the route, by affording them an opportunity to subscribe, for which purpose we expect soon to hear a call for a meeting, for the appointment of committees, opening of subscription books, &c. The undertaking may be too heavy for the people along the line, yet, we favor an earnest effort in that direction, so that we may see how near the matter can be reached.

AN OPPRESSIVE LAW.—The internal revenue law pertaining to the sale of tobacco, in the form of cigars, chewing, snuff, etc., is very severe, and if strictly enforced must annihilate the retail trade of those articles. If a retailer sells a cigar, except taken at the time of sale from the original box, he is liable to two years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000. So in regard to chewing tobacco and snuff, they must be retailed from the original package, or a like penalty is incurred. A retailer cannot take a handful of cigars from a box in his show case, place them upon the outside glass and sell one or more from the lot without the risk of fine and imprisonment; he must let his customers select from the box—from the original package—himself. The unnecessary obstructions to the trade thus presented are calculated to destroy it and oppress a large and industrious class of citizens. Snuff cannot be sold from a jar, but must be taken from the bladder—the original package—by the cent's worth.

The South Carolina negroes, graduated under Radical reconstruction and the Freedman's Bureau, have outgrown the old-fashioned baldness of their teachers about equality. They don't propose to be put off with this sort of thing now. It is supremacy they are after. At the big menagerie in Charleston, a fellow calling himself Rev. W. H. Brown, officiated as chaplain, and in the prayer addressed to his sooty companions he said, he thanked God, who had made the colored people free after two hundred and fifty years of bondage, and had placed them in triumph over the white men, the "colored people now had the white men down in the dust and their feet upon their necks."

From the wholesale manner in which the negroes in the south and elsewhere, are murdering whites and committing rapes on white females, it is evident that the teachings of the radicals have had some effect upon the blacks—they think the "white trash" is fit for no other uses.

Forney's Opinion of Packer.—Forney's Philadelphia Press—medical says: In the course of democratic events a candidate for Governor has been chosen. The fortunate individual is Hon. Asa Packer, known throughout the State as a millionaire, and chief operator of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Whatever Judge Packer's abilities may have been on the bench or in the political field, they have been driven out of sight by his successes as a business man. We will not detract from any of his deserved honors by vilification, after the manner of democratic journalists, but gladly accord to him his due. He has been a quiet aspirant for political preferment for some time, and the announcement of his name before the Tammany Convention in connection with the Presidency, we have reason to believe, was not received kindly. Judge Packer, and is, of course, thoroughly imbued with all the intolerant and anti-republican ideas of that party. He has, on several occasions, been entrusted with positions of honor and profit at their hands.

At the recent election in Philadelphia, the following officers were chosen to manage the affairs of the Centre & Spruce Creek Railroad, for the current year: President—George F. Miller. Directors—Eli Slifer, John Ulrich, John Walls, J. V. Elwell, Wm. J. Howard, Edmund Smith, James P. Coburn, R. H. Duncan, Washington Butcher, B. Butler, T. T. Firth, Joseph Lesley. Secretary and Treasurer—Joseph Lesley.

The radical county convention meets at Bellefonte, on Wednesday August 14th. Delegate election Saturday previous. The Negro Equality. The strides to negro equality, are rapid and telling, and wherever radicalism has full power, the negro is thrust forward and placed upon an equality with the white man, in every station in life.

Late intelligence from Washington says: Mayor Brown, in a message to the city council recommends that the white and colored children be educated under the same public school system and under the same roof. He can see no objection to this as in every respect all distinction as to race or color has been abolished. He also nominated Prof. Vashon, colored, to be one of the trustees of the white schools.

Collision of Two Trains on the Erie Railroad—Eight Passengers Burned to Death—Particulars of the Affair. At a Mast Hope station, on the Erie railway, twenty-nine miles west of Port Jervis, one of those terrible railroad tragedies which periodically shock the public mind, occurred on Wednesday night last.

A freight train, No. 39, which left Port Jervis about eight o'clock for the west, was run on a long switch just east of the depot, to admit the passage of two express trains soon to be due, this portion of the Delaware division being a single track. The first of these expresses passed in safety, a few minutes behind time. The second came along just before midnight, some twenty minutes after her time. At the point immediately east of the depot the road makes a very sharp, short curve.

THE ENGINEER ASLEEP.—James Griffin, engineer of the freight train on the switch, though he had been less than four hours on duty had fallen asleep, at his post. The conductor of the freight train, J. D. Brown, was in his caboose forty or fifty feet in the rear. At this junction, the 6:20 P. M. express train from New York, Charles E. Coffey, engineer, came sweeping around the curve, at 35 or 40 miles an hour, hastening to make up lost time. The noise of his approach startled the sleeping Griffin. He thought the switch man had called to him to go ahead, and go ahead he did. Dreamily seizing his lever he turned on steam, and moved a car's length or so, till his fore wheel caught in the frog of the unopened switch, just far enough to thrust the side of his engine across the path of the express, and in a moment the lightning train was upon him, striking the outer rim of his left cylinder head.

A CLASH OF ENGINES.—The shock to the freight engine threw it off the track, while the express flew in the opposite direction, ran a couple of hundred feet, and swinging around at the outer verge of the depot platform till her head lay east, she turned over bottom uppermost, the steam bursting from her broken pipes and the fire coals from her ruptured furnace, forming inviting pyre for the sacrifice.

A FUNERAL PYRE.—And the sacrifice came; a dreadful sight. The postal car, with its combustible cargo, leaped upon the blazing pile, followed by the express and baggage cars behind, the latter "telescoping" into the smoking car immediately in its rear.

HOW THE SMOKING CAR WAS SMASHED.—This telescoping occurred in this wise: The third baggage car, containing the Cincinnati through baggage, was one of the cars of the Atlantic and Great Western, to save shipment at the end of the Erie line. This car's platform was hung below the line of the car sills, and dropped under the force of the concussion, causing the body of the car to mount the platform of the smoking car in its rear, and the momentum of the train drove the smoking car upon it till it was buried in her self its length.

WHAT SAVED THE REST OF THE TRAIN. In this smoking car occurred all the maiming and loss of life. "All the seven other cars, as well as the smoking car, having Miller's platform, links and bumpers, stood the shock, without crushing in or mounting upon each other; this, though the train was going hard upon forty miles an hour to destruction. Not a soul was injured in any car of the five cars in the rear of the smoking car, but without these protections the whole train would have been wrecked, and its inmates have gone with it. We deem this fact of such great importance as to deserve this conspicuous mention.

DEATH IN THE SMOKING CAR.—In the smoking car, sleep and awake, were some fifteen or twenty people, old and young, mainly men, though at least one woman was there with her three children, immigrants bound for the glowing, bounteous west to live and thrive. They found a heaven nearer and more heavenly than they dreamed. The hubbub of the forward cars swept the seats from their fastening, and hurled the wakeful and the sleeping in one vast heap toward the rear. The shock was terrific; the scene the ensuing beggars all language to tell. The strong and the weak alike were helpless, bound down by the ruin of iron and wood that whelmed them. The cries of strong men for help, the shrieks of the woman, the wail of her babes, made mournful the midnight air.

SCALDING STEAM AND FIRE AT WORK.—Men rushed to aid with bars and axes. From within and without they worked with a will, but a mightier element than human strength was opposing them. On both sides of the track were the two monstrous engines, with burst valves, roaring like demons, and escaping steam rolling back into the cars in scalding volumes. From the overturned one, too, rose a fire that, kindling the mail bags and woodwork of the postal car, and swept under the doomed train mighty flames that licked and soon devoured all but the three rear most passenger cars.

Before this terrible onset the strongest had to quail. In vain the poor mother strained her babe to her bosom and struggled to free herself and her little ones; in vain the clergyman, unajured, but helplessly transfixed by the superincumbent mass, appealed to Heaven for succor; in vain all in vain. The helping friends fled, weeping before the fiery blast, to which now the blazing depot was adding force and volume, and in a few seconds all that was mortal in that superheated furnace had ceased to be.

THE SMOULDERING REMAINS.—When the flames subsided, and the sun came out upon a heap of moldering ashes, only a few charred bones, a few shapeless masses that held human hearts and human hopes, but yesterday pulsating with strong life and happiness, now blackened embers, were gently gathered together, and placed in boxes for sorrowing friends to claim, or strangers to entomb.

THE WORK OF THE FLAMES.—Of the six cars burned nothing remained but the iron work of the trucks. A more complete destruction could hardly be conceived. Of whom, haply, there were but few—perhaps a dozen, and those apparently not injured to a dangerous extent—were hospitably received in the house of Mr. J. L. Selden, near the depot, and all they needed in food, raiment nursing generously afforded them by the host and his amiable family.

THE DEPOT TOOK FIRE.—From the sparks from the engine. The money and papers in the depot were saved by the agents, but the contents of the telegraph office, including the instruments, were destroyed. The baggage was all destroyed, and so were the express goods with the exception of the contents of the safe.

HOW BURNED TO DEATH.—David Baer, a German, having with him $16,000 in government bonds, was burned. His son endeavored to extricate his father, but could not. He finally succeeded in saving the money or bonds.

HOW THE BURNED CARS.—All the cars of the passenger train were burned, except the last three sleeping coaches. The mails in the mail cars were partially destroyed. The express car was burned with its contents, except what were contained in the safes. Among the contents burned were boxes of U. S. Internal Revenue stamps and other valuable miscellaneous express matter.

ANIMAL LIFE IN FULL OF CORRUPTION and we can only hope to escape the fangs which flesh is heir to by a judicious use of the remedies in nature's store-house. In all the time which has passed since the world began, mankind has given great attention and some of its best talent to the study of medicine. While this sacrifice, has not been wholly in vain, the facts elicited are few and mostly unsatisfactory. Among the truths which have been elicited is this, "that if we keep the blood pure we must be healthy." To purify the blood, there is no medicine equal to Morse's Indian Root Pills, as thousands of testimonials will verify. Use Morse's Pills if you wish to regain and retain your health.—Morse's Pills are the best medicine for all Female Irregularities, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Bilio-nousness, Dispepsia, Headache, &c. CIVILIZATION. Tortures of the Fenian Prisoners. The London correspondent of the New York World gives a thrilling account of the outrages and indignities practiced upon O'Donovan Rossa, the distinguished Fenian prisoner now confined in Millbank prison, near Dublin, and whose wife is now in this country, raising funds for his relief. Most of the facts came out in reply to a question of Sir J. Gray in the English House of Commons, and the occurrence narrated occurred in July, 1868, O'Donovan having been in prison since December, 26, 1865.

For an insult to the overseer of the prison, he was shut up in a solitary cell for twenty-two days, awaiting the decision of the directors, and then was sentenced to "twenty-eight days" confinement in a punishment cell." Now, these words do not seem very terrible, but if any one wishes to know what they really mean, let him turn to Charles Lead's story of Governor Haver and his model jail. "It is Never too Late to Mend." The solitary confinement for twenty-two days was enough to drive the man mad; the twenty-eight days confinement in the punishment cell was enough to kill him. "A punishment cell" in a British prison is "a pitch dark dungeon," in which "the darkness is not like the darkness in our bed-rooms at night, in which the outlines of object are more or less visible; it is the frightful darkness that chilled and crushed the Egyptians, soul and body; it is a darkness that might be felt." A prisoner who was confined in such a cell only six hours was observed on his release "to be as white as a sheet, and to tremble violently all over, his body shaking, while every now and then a convulsive sob burst from his bosom." The sentence was for twenty-eight days but the jailors, unwilling to lose their victim, did not venture to carry it out, and kept him for the other twenty-five days in a cell which was lighted. "But they varied the torture by keeping him unmanacled, and occasionally investing him with the "punishment jacket." This ingenious instrument has straps which are drawn so tight that the sufferer's breath is impeded, and his heart, lungs and liver are forced into unnatural contact. Then, he is fastened to a wall so that he cannot move to ease the frightful cramps that attack him. As a climax there is a collar, with a rasped edge, stiff as iron, three and a half inches high; and "in this three-handed iron grip, the victim writhes, and sobs, and moans with anguish." Presently, that is an hour or so, he faints—and then he is revived by cold water dashed over him.

Mr. Richard Pigot, a well known gentleman of Dublin, who obtained permission to visit Rossa soon after he had been subjected to these tortures for forty-eight days—twenty days in a solitary cell, three days in the "dark punishment cell," and twenty-five days in a light punishment cell.—"I was shocked by the appearance he presented. In the presence of the Governor of the jail, Rossa told Mr. Pigot that for thirty-five days he was kept in a cell with his hands manacled. They were not loosened even to enable him to take his food, which was left for him on the floor of the cell; and unless he elected to die of starvation he had no alternative but to take it on all fours, as an animal does. The Home Secretary thought that this could scarcely be true, but the Governor did not deny it to Mr. Pigot. And the Home Secretary admitted that all the letters which Rossa had written to his wife five in number, had been suppressed, "as they were full of false statements calculated to do mischief."

The Grand Army of the Republic. Is a secret conspiracy against the liberty of the people got up by such Generals as John A. Logan, Schenck, and Ben Butler. It can, we are assured, muster a quarter of a million of men, armed and equipped and ready to take their place in the ranks at the call of the Grand Commander. The object of this organization is to influence the politics of the country, and when in the opinion of the radical leaders the proper time shall have arrived, to seize upon the government and ruin it at the beck of the chief conspirators.

No man can avoid observing that from year to year, our rulers are becoming more and more unscrupulous; that for four years past there has been a systematic "educating up" of the people to familiarity with outrages, which thirty years ago would have raised a torrent of popular feelings as irresistible as Niagara. To day we simply raise our eyebrows as a slight indication of amazement, at acts which but long since would have sent the pot boiling with indignation through our veins. That the G. A. R., whose organ is the Imperialist, is intended to be the means of establishing an Empire on the ruins of the Constitution, seems extremely probable. At the end of the Revolution the people put down the Cincinnati; why should freemen be less jealous now?—Pittsburgh Post.

If You do not feel well, you send for a doctor, he calls upon you, looks wise, sneaks the head of his cane, scribbles some hieroglyphics upon a piece of paper which you take to a drug store, and there pay 50 cts. to $1.00 besides the doctor fee, for a remedy nine times out of ten not half as good as Judson's Mountain Herb Pills, which is only 25 cts. per box. Do you think the former the best because you pay the most for it, if you do we advise you to use just for an experiment the Judson's Mountain Herb Pills, and see for yourself, that they are one of the best family medicines compounded they cure Headache, Indigestion, Bilio-nousness, Jaundice, and all Female Irregularities. Give the Mountain Herb Pills a trial. Sold by all Dealers.

For the Reporter. ASSEMBLY.—Permit me, through the columns of the Reporter, to say a few words in regard to the coming nominations. We, as citizens of Haines, by leave to present to the democratic voters of Centre, our candidate for Assembly, and ask that we should be heard, and the merits and character of the man looked at. We all are aware that the people are heartily tired of the manner in which our state affairs have been conducted for the past few years; and also of the necessity of a careful and wise selection of good, true, and able men as our lawmakers. Such a man we offer in J. G. Meyer. All who are acquainted with him, know him as a gentleman beyond the reach of bribery and corruption. A life-long Democrat, and a man in whom the people can safely trust, should they see fit to place him in office. He is not one of the large class of office-seekers, but has only by the solicitations of friends consented to have his name used as a candidate. Let us then make a wise selection and give to the people a ticket with good men at the head, and we will once more have a good old-fashioned victory. More anon. HAINES.

For the Reporter. As the convention will meet in a few weeks to nominate persons for the different offices, and to bear aloft the Banner of Democracy, it therefore behooves our duty to look around among us, as to who are counted worthy our confidence for the different offices to be filled; and above all, it is highly important, that we should be properly represented in the Legislature. And as our worthy member, P. G. Meek, has faithfully served the number of terms allotted by the usages of the party, it behooves us to fill his place with one worthy to succeed him. I do not know in whom we could trust the responsibilities of the office, as in that staunch and true Democrat, J. G. Meyer, of the township of Haines, and have therefore listened with pride and satisfaction the favorable mention of his name in connection with the office, as being in every respect qualified for the same. His honesty of purpose and unbounding integrity would be a terror to all legislative rings and lobbyists, while his legislative abilities, and all the qualifications necessary to the position recommend him favorably to the consideration of the Democracy of Centre county. His name would be a tower of strength to the ticket, and make secure its triumphant election. WALKER TWP.

PROTHONOTARY.—A CARD.—The undersigned being at present without any assistance in his office, the duties of the same will require his close attention, in consequence of which he will not be able to call personally upon his democratic friends throughout the county to solicit their kind aid for his re-nomination. He therefore takes this method of making known to the Democracy generally, that he is a candidate for the office of Prothonotary, and will be thankful to all such who may favor him with their support. JAMES H. LITTON.
