CENTRE HALL REPORTER.

CENTRE HALL PA., February 2nd 1870.

Editorial Items.

Considerable snow fell at Pittsburg on Monday, and several sleighing parties were indulged in.

The house territorial committee at Washington, will attempt to secure legislation to abolish polygamy in Utah and to use the United States forces to that end if necessary. Won't Brigham swear?

—From all advices we can collect, is does not appear that congress will make any change in the tariff as it now stands. Perhaps the Bellefonte Republican might enlighten congress a little upon the subject, as Brown goes it heavy for a protective tariff.

—From New York we learn that some 2000 workmen are to be discharged from the navy yard. The radical party should be made to feed and clothe these men and their families, until "good times" come around.

—We were promised economy under the Grant administration, but the estimates of the appropriations for the several departments of the government for the coming year, exceed the expenditures of the last year of Johnson's administration upwards of fifty millions of dollars! This is radical reform.

Freedom Works Stopped.

The Freedom iron and steel works, near Lewistown, have been closed and assignees appointed. This throws some 400 hands out of employ, who are now left destitute, with wives and children for whom they will not be able to provide. Many of the hands had received no wages for some months, which makes their condition the more deplorable, as there is no prospect ahead, while their sweat of the last few months goes for nothing. The concern, we are told, will pay from 20 to 30 cents on the dollar. This is hard, but it belongs to the chain of radical ruin which is visiting the country. With unlimited power, for the last ten years, why is the radical party so slow in bringing on the promised "good times"?

THE RAILROAD.

Assurances reach us daily, that the prospect for our railroad are better than ever. We trust this is true—it is the only thing wanted in this valley.

Mifflinburg is greatly agitated at present, and the citizens there now are fully resolved that the portion between Lewisburg and their town shall be built. They have pledged themselves for the right of way and grading. But Mifflinburg dare not become the terminus, let our people resolve it shall go through, and we will have it in Centre county.

General Grant is displeased with Mr. Dawes' speech, showing up the prodigality and corruption of his administration. No wonder; indeed, it is very natural he should be displeased with Dawes. Grant had a magnificently blown up bladder, and Dawes was the only man in the radical ranks that had the courage to put his bodkin in it.

The counterfeiters have beaten the Treasury Department badly, in the execution of the new fifty cent notes. So badly, in fact, that their issue is peremptorily stopped, and they are all to be called in at once. Give us the old democratic gold and silver yet.

1000 Workmen Discharged.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—One thousand workmen have been discharged from the navy yard to-night.

The Mississippi Senators.

Senators Alcorn and Revels, the latter a negro, are already in Washington. They were on the floor of the senate on Monday. Revels was cordially received by the republicans, but the democrats gave him a wide berth.

The Supreme Court of the United States is equally divided in the case of Frank Blair, who was debarred the right to vote in Missouri because he refused to take the oath of loyalty prescribed by the State Constitution.

Gen. Blair fought bravely during the war, on the Union side, but is not a radical, and there's the rub.

Crime in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Thirty eight criminals were sentenced to the State penitentiary in the recorders' court of this city, today; the sentences varying from one to thirty years. Casey, a young desperado, who shot the clerk of a store he was robbing, received 30 years. Handy Andy, a notorious burglar, 10 years. Two confederates of this villain attempted to rescue him after he left the court house, to be taken back to jail.

The Bellefonte band has got to sexenading tipsy editors. No allusion made here to Joe or Wm. H. H. B. How is't, fellers?

The Louisiana Legislature has passed a bill punishing gambling with heavy fines and penalties.

The following letter from our Representative at Harrisburg, Hon. J. G. Meyers, explains itself:

Harrisburg, Jan. 28th, 1870.

Hon. Fred. Kurtz—Dear Sir:—I presume a great many of my constituents are anxious to know why it is that I have not yet sent them any public documents. For their information, I would simply say, that so far, we have had none to send, and from present appearances it is not likely that we will have many to distribute. The present Legislature seems to be in favor of retrenchment and reform. The bill before the House yesterday, providing for the printing of the Legislative Record by Mr. Geo. Bergner, who has had the job for the last few years, was defeated by a vote of 76 against 16. From this it appears that Bergner's Record business is closed. It is likely that nothing more than a Legislative Journal will be published, which will dispense with the printing of all the speeches made upon the floor of the House, and will certainly be a great saving for the tax-payers of the state. It will also require less posters and folders, which will be another item of economy. A statement was made upon the floor of the House, reporting the expenses of the two last sessions, as follows:—Cost of Record and expenses contingent and resulting from its publication, for the year 1868, about $85,000. Expenses of the same in 1869, about $35,000. Although the member from our county, Mr. Meek, as I was told, did his utmost to prevent such extravagance, yet there were not enough of his stamp to change it.

I will here state, however, that all the public documents that I may receive, shall be distributed without delay among my constituents. Yours Truly,

J. G. MEYERS.

MAXIMS FOR GIRLS.

A boy from Aaronsburg, seeing that girls nowa-days stand in need of a little advice occasionally, requests us to publish the following.

Never make your appearance in the morning without having first brushed and arranged your hair, and dressed yourself neatly and completely. Keep your clothing in perfect order. Never let pins do the duty of buttons, nor strings take the place of proper bands. Examine every garment as it comes from the wash, and if necessary, mend it with neatness and precision. Do not sew up the holes in your stockings as we have seen some careless, untidy girls do, but take a broad margin around the hole, be it small or large, with a fine darning needle and darning cotton, and cover the fracture with an interlaced stitch, so close as to be as strong as the body of the stocking, and fine enough to be ornamental. Train yourself to useful occupations. Remember it is wicked to waste time, and nothing gives such an impression of vanity and absolute silliness as a habit of idling and never having anything to do. If you are in your father's house, take some department of household labor upon yourself, and a part of the sewing, and make it your business to attend to it. Do not let a call from this idle girl, or a visit from that, or an invitation from the other, interfere with the performance of your duty. If you can cultivate to perfection some art by which you can gain an independent livelihood, do it, whether there is a necessity for it or not.

DAWES AHEAD.

The New York Sun gives the following points from Dawes's speech, which has caused such a great flutter among the jobbers. Dawes is a republican:

In the beginning, Mr. Dawes showed that under this measure, if it could have been forced through under the previous question, the Secretary of the Navy could sell three millions of the property, at private sale of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, to whom he pleased, when he pleased, and on what terms he pleased—the only obligation on him being that he should obtain the approval of the President, who, from the nature of his duties, could pay no personal attention to the proceedings. Mr. Dawes, questioned whether the state of the Treasury warranted the enhancing of expenses, and called the attention of the House to the estimates furnished to the Navy Yards during the next fiscal year, as follows: Portsmouth, N. H., $577,000, against $50,000 last year; Boston, $747,341, against $100,000 last year; New York $833,511, against $100,000 last year; Philadelphia, $111,935, against $25,000 last year; Washington, $551,775, against $50,000 last year; Norfolk, $258,312, against $30,000 last year. In short the Secretary of the Navy proposed, besides the $800,000 for League Island, a total expenditure of $3,007,394, against $451,000 last year.

MATHEMATICS.

The estimates did not inspire him with much confidence, although the Secretary promised to effect a saving $2,000,000 in the article of coal alone which had cost $150,000 for the last two years. That was an achievment in mathematics which found a parallel one in the achievement of the Post Master General, who proposed to save $5,000,000 a year by the abolition of the franking privilege, while the franked matter would not produce $200,000.—He thought that if the two mathematicians who had prompted these two Secretaries could be brought to light and set to work, they could show that the public debt might be paid before the expiration of the Administration. The book of estimates for the next year contained appropriations for public works to the amount of $24,625,173, against appropriations for the same objects last year of $5,493,000. The administration of Andrew Johnson had been accused of profligacy in expenditures. The people had tried it on that charge, and found it guilty and had taken from it the septer of power and put it in the hands of the Republican party on its profession of economy in the administration of the public service. The people intended to hold them to their promises. But what was the first evidence they put forth to the country of their determination to carry out their pledges? While he knew the ungracious position he occupi d, he proposed to speak plainly, but only to his party friends in the House. He knew there was not much comfort to be derived from the wounds of a friend. Andrew Johnson, in the last year of his administration, had estimated that he could carry on the government for $304,000,000, and that the amount had been cut down over $20,000,000.

What did their own administration estimate that it would carry on the administrrtion of the government for a year for? Why, $311,097,174—

AN INCREASE OF OVER TWENTY-EIGHT MILLIONS

beyond the amount required by Andrew Johnson, and an increase of $49,628,537 over the amount appropriated for the present year.—[commotion among the Radicals, cheers from the Democrats]—but this included an error of over $7,000,000 in the footing up of the Post Office Department, which would reduce the increase to $12,000,000; but he believed that not entering into the estimate was a little sugar plum of $800,000 for League Island; back of it, also, were the Bay of Samana and the Island of St. Thomas at $75,000,000 in gold, and back of it, too, were millions that would be added by the Senate to the appropriation bills as they passed the House. [Sensation.] In this House alone, if the pledges of the Republican party were to be redeemed, they could have no aid either at the other end of the avenue or at the other end of the Capitol, and he put it to the representatives of the people, whether they would inaugurate new public works on the broad estimates of $24,000,000. He had a right to complain of the other end of the avenue that with all its professions of economy, and with all the heraldry by telegraph and otherwise of redubtion there was but one of those departments that did not estimate an increase of expenditures over the appropriation of last year; the exception was the poor unpopular Attorney General. [Applause.] And he hoped that he was not in consequence of that remarkable trait in his character that it was contemplated at the other end of the Capitol to relieve him from further public service and drive him into private life. [Great laughter and applause.]

EXTRAVAGANCE.

There was a new Postoffice building in New York which, report said, would cost $4,000,000, and the granite for which was estimated to cost $1,500,000. Were they going on with such expenditures? Were they going to put $3,000,000 from the old Philadelphia Navy Yard and $800,000 from the Treasury into League Island when they might as well wait five years? Two things seemed to be desired: the reduction of the public debt by the Administration, and relief from the burdens of taxation by this House. [Applause by the Democrats.] Neither of these things could be accomplished without another thing which both overlooked—a reduction of the expenditures. How was it proposed at the other end of the avenue to pay the public debt, unless the expenditures were reduced? ["Hear," "Hear," from the Democrats.] How did the House propose to relieve the people and the enterprise and the capital of the country from the burden of taxation under which they were groaning, unless the expenditures were reduced? [Applause.] He would tell his amiable friend from Maine (Mr. Peters) who had emancipated himself from that case about pennies, and who had gone all in a vain search for dollars on which he proposed to economize, [laughter,] that it was the pennies taken by taxation off the spikes, cordage and rigging of the ships of Maine, that made the commerce of the country decline. [Sensation.]

THE HUNTINGDON MURDERERS.

We have before us a Huntingdon newspaper containing a lengthy account of the trial, conviction and sentence of the murderers of the Peightal family—Gotlieb Bonner and Albert Bordenburg. From the accounts given the two convicted murderers, or one of them—Bonner—was capable of doing any deed of violence.

Two letters written in German were taken from the prisoners in jail, from which it would seem that they were sanguine of making their escape from confinement. The first is dated Dec. 25, 1869, and is addressed to the "farmers and bloodhounds of Huntingdon." It begins in the following graphic style: "In strength of my office, and in the name of the devil, I take the pen in order to announce not my death, but yours on this Christmas."

The writer then states that the prisoners were not guilty of the murder—that there were four engaged in it. He expresses his religious belief in this wise: "There is no God in Heaven. The hog-shepherd sitting in the Court knows it." Referring to the newspaper accounts of the horrible homicide he says: I have laughed heartily over the crime, as I shall kill you like mad dogs." Claiming that they were in a position to arm themselves effectually with fire-arms, they invited pursuit, but breathed death to all who should attempt it. "Your town," speaking of Huntingdon, "shall be laid in ashes, and whoever will resist shall be shot down." Throughout the letter is full of blasphemy and profanity, and is subscribed, "Godfriest. From devil, from hell, from death and destruction."

The second letter which is even more blasphemous and fiendish than the first bears date January first. "I'm taking," says the writer in the introductory paragraph to this letter, "the pen to put the new law which after centuries till the close of the world will be remembered of me." The new law consists of a general destruction of all the officers of the law who took part in the writer's capture, as well as every body else desirous of bringing him to justice. In one sentence, he says, "I wanted to get into prison and then get out of it; that makes the law book full." Speaking of the Altoona officers who arrested the prisoner he says; "Those bloodhounds of watchmen in Altoona; they shall die the first day. They shouldn't fall by a murderer's hand, but by a noble one." After abusing people generally for going to church, and making that sufficient grounds for wholesale murder, because they have the "dullness of dogs," he adds: "Hurrah! hurrah! hurrah! in the name of the devil and his servants may live."

Noting the fact that a number of ministers had visited them in their cells, he makes the following complimentary remark of the clergy: All the ministers of the Gospel should be hanged, only it is a pity for the ropes. Of the Court that was to try them he expressed himself thus: "I'll change my mind within the world and to day the new year, I'll count how much lead and shot I need in the next twenty years, especially for the dogs sitting in the Court, and who are made of the same bad stuff."

After numerous other maledictions and threats follows a long string of horribly blasphemous doggeral verse. This letter is signed, "XXX I make three crosses, for my name is from a cross—MAN DEVIL."

One must admit that he wrote himself down properly in his last letter, for if there ever was a fiend in human shape, it is the author of this brutal attempt at heroics—this beastly murderer and savage. The evidence of their guilt was clear and incontrovertible, there not being even a suspicion that they were innocent, raised in the minds of the jury. If ever there was a case that especially demanded the vindication of the law by carrying out the death penalty this is clearly one. Judge Taylor passed the death sentence on them on Friday, the 20th ult. We believe that the day of execution has not yet been fixed.

MILROY.—We had the pleasure, a few days ago, of spending a day in the romantic village of Milroy, beyond the Seven Mountains. We found it a town of "magnificent distances," beautiful windings, clever people, with pretty girls and many. We stopped with "mine host," Mr. Bell, of the Union House, where everybody else stops who travels that way. The Union is well kept, and has a very accommodating and gentlemanly proprietor. After "viewing the situation," we prepared for a stroll to "see the sights." The weather having been wet shortly before, we pictured to ourself a muddy tramp, such as we used to experience in Centre Hall, before we had the board walks, but were agreeably surprised to find that we could press forward and steer clear of mud, for Milroy, to her honor be it said, this week built about a mile of solid gravel walk, covered with tan, extending from Graff & Thompson's store to the depot. For this improvement the good people of Milroy are indebted to the energy and enterprise of one of their ministers, Rev. Mr. White, who, abominating mud much as we do, one day last week started out with a subscription, and in a very short time had several hundred dollars subscribed, and in a day or so had some twenty teams engaged to haul gravel and hands to work, and now the walk is made.

We called in at some of the business places to have a chat with the men of the place. The sign of Wm. J. M'Manigal first attracted our attention, and we entered his store. Mr. M'M does a heavy business in hardware, and always keeps a full assortment, and is one of that class of men, whom, if you deal with once, you will continue to patronize, as his manner is fair and straitforward, and his prices never such as to cause "jewing." We next called at the furniture rooms of our friend Camp, whom we also found a a very pleasant gentleman; we found his rooms stocked with all kinds of fine furniture, of his own workmanship and we can speak for its being substantial and not made flickety and with a view to deceive. For a general and well selected assortment of goods, we think the store of Messrs. Graff & Thompson will compare with any in Mifflin county; they have a thorough knowledge of the mercantile business, gained by many years of experience, and their trade is a large one particularly with Centre county. Milroy also boasts of a large clothing establishment, kept by Hirsch Bro's, near the Union House; they sell at prices as low, if not lower, than any similar establishment this side of Philadelphia. In the same locality will be found the new drug store of Mr. Elliott, where a full assortment of drugs and fancy articles are kept. Our friend Titzel we found still in the stove and tin-ware business, where any thing in that line can be had. This place also has two extensive grain warehouses, that of Messrs. M'Kee & Reed, Abr. Kerlin, superintendent, and that of Blymeier Bro's, Mr. Goodheart, superintendent. A large boot and shoe store is kept by Mr. J. L. Marks, who also does an extensive business. There are a few other business places, besides those mentioned, which we had not time to visit, Thompson & Sons woolen mills, &c., which, altogether, give Milroy quite a business air. It is the present terminus of the Mifflin and Centre rr., and has quite a number of fine residences.

Milroy, Feb. 1st, 1870.

Friend Kurtz:—Thinking that a few items from Milroy might be of interest to at least some of your readers, I will note some of the passing events in our usually quiet, unassuming, little town. Owing to the soft, wet weather, so plenty of late, and the number of teams, many of which from your valley, daily traversing our streets, bringing grain to market, we have had an abundance of mud, rendering foot travel extremely disagreeable and unhealthy—but now, thanks, to the energy of the leading spirit in the enterprize, Rev. J. W. White, and to the liberality and promptness with which the citizens in town and vicinity responded by giving aid, with labor, &c., we now can boast of a good gravel side walk, almost the entire length of town. Last week we had the M'Closkey Bro's of Lock Haven, who held a Musical Convention, in the M. E. Church, in this place, beginning on Tuesday evening with a free entertainment, when tickets were sold, and a class formed. The Convention assembled forenoon, afternoon, and evening, during the remainder of the week. The final finale was to consist on Saturday night, at which time the most startling event of the week occurred between Milroy and the toll gate. As two young gentlemen from the Loop were wending their peaceful way into our town, attracted hither, no doubt, by the concert, or may be by some of the fair ladies of the place—well, no matter what—but suddenly an axle broke, horse and buggy parted company, and our young friends picked themselves up, a little worse of the wear—but finally all parties arrived in town. Yet misfortune generally follows misfortune, and after the accident one of the aforesaid was crossing the bridge, in company with a lady, the unruly wind gently lifted his hat and conveyed it into the stream below, from which it was rescued the next morning. Our hero never faltered, but safely finished his journey. We are your friend, boys, and hope you will not meet with such mishaps the next time. At present there is a protracted meeting in progress at the M. E. Church, in this place, which we hope will result in great good. As I have already occupied to much of your valuable space, I close. This Reaper has advantages over all other Reapers now manufactured. One advantage we claim for it, is the lever power, by which we gain one hundred per cent over other machines. Another advantage is the hoisting and lowering apparatus, whereby the driver has under his complete control of the machine; in coming to a spot of lodged grain, the driver can change the cut of he machine in an instant, without stopping the team, varying the stubble from 1 to 14 inches at the outside of the machine, as well as on the inside. It is constructed of first class material, and built by first class mechanics. We warrant it second to none.
