CENTRE HALL INVENTORS .- Our little town already turned out quite a number of inventors of useful agricultural implements such as Reapers, complanters, stump machines, &c., all of which have proven good. Within the last few days we have been shown models of devices for raising and lowering the grain reel upon reapers, which we are satisfied will prove a great improvement to the same. The first was shown us by Mr. D. F. Luse, for raising and lowering the reel to suit tall or short grain; we also witnessed the working of this improveneut upon a reaper, and at once became satisfied that its great merit, working with ease while the machine is in motion, would ultimately cause its being placed upon all reapers. Mr. Luse has a partner in this invention, and a patent will be applied for.

On last Monday we were shown a Richard, for which they claim superiority on account of its simplicity of
