The Dead Brought to Life.

As a foot-note to the discussion going on about the discovery of chloroform, an amusing story is told of the use of that drug in the far West. Soon after its peculiar projecties became known, a quantity of it came into the possession of Colonel May, commanding a fort in the Indi n country. One day he assured his red skin visitors that he could kill a man and restore him to life of pleasure, and proposed to experiment on one of their number. To this they grunted serious objections, and consented to lethim try his skill on a small dog that accompanied them. Taking it into an adjoining tent, he soon returned with it apparently dead, and to convince them that there was no trick about it, he cut of a piece of the tail, and then another and another until the whole appendage was gone. As the dog showed no signs of life under the severe treatment, the test was pronounced satisfactory and the Colonel retired a second time to work the miracle of restoration. Pre-ty soon he returned where the Indias were sitting, and threw down among them the tailless but now particularly lively cur, which darted out of the tent in a twinkling. The red-skins sprang to their feet and followed at full speed, too much frightened to speak, or venture their persons again about the diabolical premises. Three years after, the Colonel and a few others were crossing the Plains and encountered a small party of Indians. Each company ran to a little eminence and began scrutinizing the other to see whether they were friends or enemies. At length the leader of the savages began gesticulating and brandishing something over his head, to indicate that he knew the white officer and was a friend. The token of recognition and freindship thus brandished turned out to be a section of the dog's tail which the Colonel had cut off years before. The Indians ever afterwards entertained a most profound respect for an officer who would restore the dead to life, and they evidently regarded an attack upon his command as a waste of amunition. The incident suggests a new treatment for the troulesome Mr. Lo, and that is an application of anasthetics. - De-sheerest wase to fling wornout boots and sho into the scavenger-box. They should l reserved for nobler uses, and made to con tribute to the delectation of the palate That this can be done was illustrated, o Friday evening, at a meeting of the Ne York Liberal Club by a scientist, who ex hibited for the information of the member a pudding, or a jelly, made out of a old boot. Subsequently the learned gen tteman explained the process of the manu facture, which we reproduce as a matter ofinteresttohousekeepers generally. Skin said the professor, are nothing else bu gelatine; but after they are exposed to th action of tannin they become leather, an are in that condition insolubl . If, however the leather of a boot is put into a close versel with lime and water, where it can b subjected to the pressure from the steam of about two atmospheres, the tannin unite with the lime, and the lime, and the leath er is resolved back into its original gelatine and can then be cast in a mould and serve up to the table. Certainly, the process an ersy one, and we may expect soon famine of old boots.

Save Your Old Boots.

How Cable Messages are Trans mitted.

The Journal of the Telegraph thus decribes the manner in which European news is sent over the cable:

"Here is a man sitting in a dark room at Heart's Content. The ocean cable terminates heare. A fine wire att ched thereto is made to surround two small cores of soft iron. As the electric wave, produced by a few pieces of copper and zinc at Val- and Frew, Indepenent. entia, passes through the wire, these cores become magnetic enough to move the slightest object. A looking-glass, half an inch in diameter, is fixed on a bar of iron one-tenth of an inch square and half an inch long. On this tiny glass a lamp is made to glare so that its light is reflected on a tablet on the wall. The language of the cable is denoted by the shifting of this reflected light from side to side. Letter by letter is thus expressed inthis flitting idior , in utter silence, on the wall. There is no record madeby the machine except as the patient watcher calls out to a comrade the tennslate I fishes as they come, and which he records. It seems like a miracle during the month, 2,802; average daiof patience. There is something of awe ly production per well during the creeps over us, as we see the evidence of a month, 6 6; number of wells being human touch 3,000 miles away swaying that drilled, 264; number of new wells tip of light.

The queerest somnambulistic feat we ever heard of its told by the Concord Patriot. There had been a wedding at the house of Mr. James Ross, (about seven of abandoned wells resumed during miles from Concord), and when the guests had gone, Mrs. R. went about the house to age in barrels, 1,357;452; number of see that ill was safe. She then put her barrels of oil stored in iron tanks, 322,baby to sleep and retired. She remember | 267; capacity of iron tankage empty, ed nothing more until she awoke in the 1,035,185. house of Mr. Hatch, in Concord, having risen from her bed and walked seven miles through mud and min, and asleep. Mr. Hatch, at an early hour, found her standing by his door bareheaded, and with arms folded, asking that she might go in and rest. Mr. Hatch hospitably showed the lady in, and she sat down and proceeded to warm herself, called for a Bible, read, ate breakfast, and finally laid down on a couch, holding her head as if in considerable pain. She continued to sleep until noon, when she awoke in great surprise and asked whereshe was and how she came there. Mr. Hatch gave her a dinner and kindly took, her home, where the family were searching in the woods and by the river for and Pennsvalley in particular, to the fac the missing wosque. The sister of Mrs. that he is manufacturing. Ross said that at three oldock, see hand the baby cry, and going to the room found Mrs. R. asleep on the bed, dressed. So it . must have been betwixt that time and seven that she made her seven-mile walk; in en that she made her seven-mile walk; in darkness, rain and mud. Mrs. R. has sometimes got up in her sleep and done housework, but has never made in her waks.

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urinary organs, or your kidneys, frequently get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky or is it ropy on setting? Or does a thick skum rise 2 the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short be eathing or dyspepsia,? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dall, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? "Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep br ken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as brilliant? The bloom on your cheek as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your live or dyspepsia. Have you restless nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver-complaint?

They are nover afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad, and discouraged; they are always polite and pleasant in the company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your do

How many men, from badly cared diseases, from the effects of self-abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idioey, lunner, paralysis, sp.nal affections, suicide, and almost every other form of disease which humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.
