of Judge Barnhart, in Boggs township, which was a miracle in that it did not prove fatal. Mrs Barnhart, the wife of the Judge, went up stairs in the dark, and, as she thought, went into her room, but, unfortunately walked through the hall and fell head long down a flight of stairs, brenking one arm and spraining the other, and otherwise bruising flerself in a frightful thanner. Dr. Dorworth, the family physician, was summoned, and the old lady is doing as well as can be expected for one of her age. She is about eighty years old.—Bellefonte Watchman.
