ENJOYMENT OF LIFE. — Two wealthy gentlemen were lately conversing in re-enjoyed themselves. "I will tell you," says one, "when I most enjoyed life. street, adjoining the marsh, was attempt ing to reach a piece of paper from be-neath the bed, she was bitten upon the hand by a moccasin anake coiled upon the floor. The snake was nearly a yard in length, and struck with such rapidity that the fangs penetrated in four differ-ent places before the hand could be withdrawn; twice upon the top and twice upon the ball of the thumb. The whole arm and right breast were swollen fearfully, and have turned a motly color. The attending physician has no hope of Mrs. Cooper's recovery. The snake was heard upon the roof of the house the right previous, probably in search of
