Extract from Judge Douglas' Speech Delivered at Pittsburgh.

Were the Democracy of Pennsylvania now going to throw away the prestige of the old Keystone State, to forget their glorious history in the past, and to wheel into the ranks of Abolitionism or modern Republicanism? If they did, it would be their own act, and not the act of their opponents. The Republicans had no chance of success, except in the dissensions of the Democracy, and while he would always stand up for principle, and never yield it for the sake of harmony, yet, in order to preserve the principles of the party, he would surrender any personal prejudices and hostilities he might have. [Good and cheers.] The part of wisdom and patriotism was only to remember past quarrels in order to profit by them! Wherever there had been past issues that had died, all the asperity which they ever created should be buried with them, and we should only look ahead in the future, holding forth the banner of Democracy, with our principles emblazoned on it in clear and unequivocal language, and RALLY UNDER THE ORGANIZATION OF THE PARTY.

BE ASSESSED.

The first of October is the last day upon which assessments can be made. Those who have hitherto neglected the matter, should examine the assessment lists, and if their names are not down upon it, get assessed forthwith. Do not neglect this matter.

DEMOCRATIC TICKETS.

The Democratic State and County tickets for the approaching election are now printed and ready for delivery. The County Committee have prepared a list of Districts which is left at the office of the MORNING POST, where the tickets will be furnished for each district. The Democracy will attend to sending for their tickets and seeing that they are properly distributed, so that on election day no one may be without a ticket.

"SQUATTER SOVEREIGNTY."

We take it as a fixed fact, that very few people in this country will dare directly to dispute the correctness and constitutionality of the doctrine of popular sovereignty, or, in other words, the right of American people, on American soil, to govern themselves. The use of the term, "Squatter Sovereignty," is intended to discredit, by a nickname, the doctrine of popular sovereignty, and those by whom it is accepted as on important political right. Of itself, the term means nothing. It has no definition, but there are some persons who are frightened out of their propriety by a dread that it should be applied to themselves. Men who fully believe the doctrines of popular sovereignty, are very particular in disclaiming any endorsement of squatter sovereignty. They are uselessly troubled in this matter. The term is only used for the purpose of exciting prejudice—the end doubtless for which it was invented.

The Republican press make frequent use of this term in speaking of the Democracy. A cotemporary thus defines the idea intended to be conveyed by those who employ this phrase. It is this: that there is an inferior grade of people inhabiting the unorganized territory which belongs to this Union, differing from others in that they do not own the land upon which they reside, and who are, therefore, not entitled to the enjoyment of those civil franchises which of right belong to such as are more favorably situated in respect to the proprietorship of the soil—the favorers of squatter sovereignty being such as are willing to overlook this defect, and admit these landless people to a state of political equality with themselves. This liberality—it it is liberality—towards a lower caste, should not, in these times of expensive philanthropy, be looked upon as a very high crime; and it might—if in politics consistency were really a jewel—be worthy of inquiry, how it comes that a party, so impatient to promote the elevation of the negro to a condition like their own, should, at the same time, be so bent upon the disfranchisement of a portion of their white fellow citizens, guilty of no offense, except that of holding no estate, in fee simple in that part of the common country where they have chosen to reside. Why the lovers of negro sovereignty should be haters of squatter sovereignty, passes our understanding.

The gentlemen who declaim with such bitterness against squatter sovereignty, would probably be surprised if they were told that they were virtually advocating a property qualification as a necessary condition of citizenship. It would be difficult to show in what a squatter differs from another, except that, having settled upon the public domain with the intention of a purchase in future, he does not as yet own the land of which he is in possession. It is, therefore, in consequence of such absence of ownership, and for no other reason, that the squatter is to be deprived of that which is the inalienable right of every other American citizen; and they who would prevent his disfranchisement are branded with a nickname to indicate that they are anarchists and disorganizers. Is it true that a piece of land is a part of the necessary qualifications of an American citizen?—Is it Republican doctrine, that men are to vote and to become political entities on their acres? Is it the land or the man that is the proprietor of our priceless franchises?

If there is a lower caste in the people of the United States, of less political significance than other citizens, called squatters, it should be officially known and recognized.

PREMIUM ALE.

It is no novelty for Pittsburgh ale to bear away the palm of excellence. No better malt liquors are made in the country than in our own city. At the Missouri State Fair, now being held at St. Louis, a premium has been awarded to Messrs. Rhodes & Verner, of this city, for the best malt liquors. Messrs. Rhodes & Verner were not applicants for premiums, but exhibited their manufacture, content to let judges try it and decide upon its merits. There were a large number of competitors, but the result was as we have stated. Messrs. Rhodes & Verner's manufacture was adjudged superior to all others.

THE STATE FAIR AT PHILADELPHIA.

The State Fair at Philadelphia commenced on Tuesday. Hon. David Taggart, the President of the State Agricultural Society, has devoted his time and attention for months to perfecting the arrangements for this great exhibition. The most extensive and commodious arrangements have been made, not only for all classes of exhibitors, but for the public. Mr. Taggart deserves the thanks of the people of the State for his successful efforts to render this exhibition the best which has ever been held in the State. The Post will publish, daily, letters from Philadelphia during the Fair. We give the first this morning.

THE STATE FAIR.

ST. LAWRENCE HOTEL, Philadelphia, } September 27th, 2 o'clock P. M. }

Dear Post:—After a pleasant ride of thirteen hours from the "Smoky City" over the Pennsylvania Railroad, on which it is a pleasure to travel, a large number of Pittsburghers, including myself, arrived in this Eastern metropolis at 10½ o'clock this morning.

Among the passengers on the train was a large delegation from the Pittsburgh Firemens Association, who came on a tour of investigation, having for its main object, the examination into the workings of the fire department here, and a minor one seeing the city sights generally. On their arrival at the depot they were met by a committee of thirteen from the Fire Department, headed by S. P. Fenton, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, and his Assistants, who escorted the visitors, preceded by Beck's Band, to "the cradle of Liberty," Independence Hall. Upon arriving there Chief Engineer Fenton, stated that Mayor Henry was unable to be present on the occasion to bid them welcome, as was intended, and introduced Gen. W. F. Small, of the America engine, one of the Reception Committee, who, in a neat speech, welcomed the strangers to the city, and extended to them its hospitalities. He was glad to see such a respectable delegation, hoped their stay would be made agreeable, and trusted that what they saw here might not reflect discredit upon the Fire Department, but hoped they might profit by it.

Mr Wm. C. Moreland, in the absence of the President of the Association, responded in behalf of that body. He said they had not expected such a demonstration, the cordiality was unmerited, but it was heartily appreciated, and it afforded them no little gratification to be so received by such a body of men as the Philadelphia Fire Department. He wished to return thanks, in this hall, so dear to every American, for this cordial reception, promising on their return to tell our citizens of the generous hospitality and brotherly love, extended to them here. He bade the Philadelphia Fire Department God-speed, and hoped the Great Ruler might not be unmindful of their destinies.

The band played several patriotic airs, three cheers were given for the Pittsburgh Fire Department, and the visitors were escorted by the reception committee to the quarters provided by their entertainers at the Arcade Hotel.

All the hotels in the city are filled with visitors to the State Fair, and the St. Lawrence has its full share, among whom are many Pittsburghers. Mr. Campbell, the gentleman'ly host, receives all kindly and cordially, and seems to be in his element in company with so many of his former friends and acquaintances. Among those stopping here are Sheriff James L. Graham, Alex. M. Watson, Jno. B. Hampton, Geo. S. Selden, L. C. Hepburn, D. W. Bell, R. W. Means, G. W. Hubley, D. Straw and lady, M. Swarzelder, Chas. Wilkins, Capt. Stewart and others. There are also a number at the Merchants'. Capt. Thos. A. Rowley and Alex. R. Reed are at the American, and others are scattered about the city. Indeed, one would almost imagine, were it not for the wide difference in the appearance of the two cities, that he was at home, so many familiar faces does he see in traversing the streets.

The State Fair opened at Powelton to-day. President Taggart and Secretary Heister are on duty as usual, energetic and full of business. The grounds, though occupying much more space than our own are not so well arranged, temporary tents being employed instead of wooden buildings. I visited the enclosure to-day, but could scarcely form an estimate of how successful the exhibition would be, the first day being usually spent in preparations for the subsequent days. The entries are, however, we are informed by the officers, quite numerous, and the exhibition will, it is expected, prove a success. The stalls for horses, cattle, and other stock, are all taken, and many are occupied, some of the animals are very choice.

The fair has been well attended to-day, a very respectable sprinkling of visitors appearing upon the ground, and every convenience to the spot came out from the city heavily laden. It is expected that a large concourse will be present to-morrow.

The steam fire engines attract much attention. An artificial pond has been constructed to supply them with water. Two hundred feet distant, a pole one hundred and eighty feet high, has been erected, against which, on Friday, all the engines in exhibition will play for a prize of a silver trumpet. This afternoon the "Mechanic," a beautiful little engine, made quite a creditable display of her powers, throwing nearly to the top of the pole.

On Thursday a safe will be tested on the grounds, and on the same day patent stumpex tractors will be tried.

The annual address will be delivered on Friday, by Hon. Frederick Watts, of Carlisle.

In the city, nothing of note is transpiring. The streets wear a lively aspect, of course, from the great influx of strangers, and the places of amusement are well patronized. The train just arrived, brings another large delegation of Pittsburgh.

During my stay in the city, I shall endeavor to keep the readers of THE POST informed as to what is transpiring here.

Yours, &c., H. H. S.

The Cincinnati Gazette contains a very elaborate extract of the trade and commerce of that city that is deserving of careful study. The whole occupies twenty columns of the Gazette, and no abstract could give an idea of the result:

Synopsis of Manufacturing and Industrial Products—1851, value $17,780,033; 1851, $54,550,134; 1859, $112,254,400. The heaviest items in making up the above are:

Our Standing Army.

The Secretary of War, has, in accordance with law, made an abstract of the returns of the militia of the several States. The aggregates are as follows:

Maine	73,500	Louisiana	30,732
New Hampshire	33,584	Mississippi	35,083
Vermont	21,755	Tennessee	71,582
Massachusetts	156,549	Kentucky	83,828
Rhode Island	17,915	Ohio	176,455
Connecticut	91,430	Michigan	63,063
New York	330,000	Indiana	63,913
New Jersey	81,984	Illinois	257,420
Pennsylvania	160,000	Wisconsin	51,221
Delaware	9,229	Iowa
Maryland	46,884	Missouri	116,035
Virginia	150,000	Arkansas	36,054
North Carolina	79,444	Texas	19,766
South Carolina	30,975	California	307,030
Georgia	88,699	Minnesota	9,003
Florida	12,122	Utah Territory	2,823
Alabama	76,362	Dist. of Columbia	4,201

These figures show a total of 2,766,726, of which about 2,700,000 are infantry, 20,000 cavalry, 12,000 artillery, and 34,000 riflemen. Probably these figures are more familiar to Europeans than to Americans. They count our available force, and base a proportionate degree of respect for us upon it, while we ourselves hardly give it a thought.

No other nation has so vast and effective an army as this would be in case of need. It is practically useless for foreign invasion or for governmental tyranny, but for defence it is invincible. It lacks discipline and drill, but in this respect it is not different from the new levies which compose the majority of every army in time of war. The mass of the men who fought at Magenta and Solferino were no better disciplined two years ago. A few weeks would suffice to put any portion of it in readiness for the field. It has two important advantages over European levies to begin with. One is that nearly every man in it is already, more or less, familiar with the use of fire-arms, while in Europe they are carefully kept from the hands of the people. The other is that there are no disaffected men in it. Every man feels that the cause of his country is his own. No other army in the world but has some soldiers who would willingly desert or betray the flag they serve under.

How Tecumseh was Killed.

The Western Christian Advocate of this week, contains an obituary notice, by Rev. A. Wright, of the Ind. M. E. Church; of Isaac Hamblin, Senior, who died at his residence, near Bloomfield, Ind., a few months since, aged about eighty-six years. Mr. Hamblin was a man of deep piety, and unquestionable veracity. He was in the battle of the Thames, and the writer gives the following as his statement in regard to the manner in which Tecumseh was killed:

He says he was standing but a few feet from Col. Johnson when he fell, and in full view, and saw the whole of that part of the battle. He was well acquainted with Tecumseh, having seen him before the war, and having been a prisoner seventeen days, and received many a cursing from him. He thinks that Tecumseh thought Johnson was Harrison, as he often heard the chief swear that he would have Harrison's scalp, and seemed to have a special hatred towards him. Johnson's horse fell under him, he himself being also deeply wounded; in the fall he lost his sword, his large pistols were empty, and was entangled with his horse on the ground. Tecumseh had fired his rifle at him, and when he saw him fall, he threw down his gun and bounded forward like a tiger sure of his prey. Johnson had only a side pistol ready for use. He aimed at the chief over the head of his horse, and shot near the centre of his forehead. When the ball struck it seemed to him that the Indian jumped with his head full fifteen feet into the air, as soon as he struck the ground a little Frenchman ran his bayonet into him and pinned him fast to the ground.

Fighting the Tiger in Washington.

SECRET AND EXTRAORDINARY.—An investigation, creating considerable interest, took place yesterday afternoon before Justices Donn and Goddard. From the testimony adduced, it appeared that a gentleman from Lebanon, Tennessee, from forty to fifty years of age, was making a stay at Alexandria, but came up to Washington for a few days, and stopped at the National Hotel. Whilst here, under the combined influences of curiosity and strong potations, he found his way, on Friday evening last, about dark, into a "sporting" establishment on Pennsylvania avenue, between Four and a half and Sixth streets. Of what took place there he declares himself entirely unconscious, but affirms positively that he played no game of any sort, as he is utterly ignorant of them all. But he never saw in his life, and of cards he knows nothing more than to be able to distinguish one card from another. But, on returning to Alexandria, he found his pocket book minus a draft of one thousand dollars, drawn in his favor by the State Bank of Tennessee on the Bank of the Republic in New York. This he bought in Nashville and kept it unendorsed. He caused his loss to be advertised in an evening paper here, offering fifty dollars reward to the finder. It soon came to be discovered that such a draft as described in the advertisement was cashed on Saturday morning last at the Washington Savings Bank, and that the draft had been forwarded in due course to New York.

The names of the parties who received the money, and one of whom signed his name on the draft as second endorser, were handed on Wednesday evening to the police and the parties arrested, and yesterday afternoon was assigned for the preliminary investigation. In answer, somewhat to the statement of the prosecuting witness, it was testified before the justice by the companion of the party who obtained the money at the bank, that the Tennessee stranger came into the sporting room for the purpose of play, and that he proposed to play at that. He was accommodated accordingly, and soon lost $100, which he had not the cash to pay up. He said, however, that he had a thousand dollar draft in his pocket book, and produced it. He then went on to play again and lost $200 more, which, with the previous hundred, were kindly lent him upon his draft by somebody present. But at this juncture, it having been remarked that the draft was useless without his signature, the stranger called for pen and ink and signed his name. Next morning witness met his friend at the corner of Sixth street and both went together to the Savings' bank, where they had the draft cashed. The stranger drank but once in the room. In the course of the investigation the teller at the bank testified to the similarity of the signature to the draft with the name of the stranger as written on the register of the National Hotel. On the part of the defense it was urged that, if it be admitted that the signature to the draft is not a forgery, no offence cognizable by the criminal law of the district had been committed. That, even admitting the $700 balance to have been wrongly held by the party arrested, still it was only a breach of trust, over which the Justices have no jurisdiction. The hour having become late, and there being one or two more witnesses to be examined, the case was adjourned for further investigation to-day.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial, of Monday.]

Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago.

As I read, with interest, everything which comes before me touching railroad economies, I have endeavored to keep booked up in the matter of the proposed contracts with the two Miami roads. With that view I have read your article on that subject, in the Commercial of the 19th, and now wish to express my surprise that, in describing those opposed to the contract, you should have the following language:

Third. The interest of the Dayton and Michigan, and Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad as a line and route. No arrangement that will limit them to business on terms of equality as to rates seems satisfactory to them. They must be permitted to come here and cut and slash the agreed rates or the "grossest bad faith" is practised towards them, according to those "employed" to oppose the contract.

It is not my present purpose to inquire to what extent, if any, the Dayton & Michigan Company is justly obnoxious to the charge of "cutting and slashing rates," but as a shareholder and very close observer of the operations of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Company, to protest against the great injustice you have done that company and its officers. If true, or approaching truth, the two Miami companies have been dirilict in their duty in quietly submitting to such a state of things; for I do not believe there is a line on record from the officers of either of the Miami roads protesting to the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago road, that that company was in any way complicated in a charge of "slashing and cutting" rates. So far as the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago road is concerned, the Miami roads have for years had the fixing of rates out of Cincinnati without let or hindrance, and whatever "slashing and cutting" has been done must have been done by them. If a bond with good and sufficient security be required that the P., Ft. W. & C. Co. will abide by an "arrangement that will limit them to business on terms of equality as to rates," it can be had. But gentlemen, equality as to rates, or anything else, towards the P., Ft. W. & C. road is not an element in the calculation in certain quarters about Cincinnati. FT. WAYNE.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY FOR
Iron Furnaces, Foundries, Blacksmiths, Copper and Tinsmiths, &c.

A MOST SIMPLE AND EXPEDITIOUS made of purifying Coal and Ores, and one destined to effect a great revolution in the Iron business, has been discovered by Mr. JESSE BURROUGHS, of this State.

Mr. Burroughs claims that Coal desulphurized by his process will give more heat than four times the amount of Coke, and leave no cinders. That the Ore smelted with this Coal will yield its full complement of Iron, which will be completed free from all foreign matter, and be softer and tougher than Iron made by any other process.

The cost of applying the process is very trifling, and the smelting can be done in any style of furnace now in use.

In Blacksmiths' forges it will make hard or brittle iron soft, malleable and tough.

In Copper and Tinsmithing, it will hold the solder to the iron better, and give more heat than any other coal. It is also much cheaper than Charcoal.

Mr Burroughs and his Agent, Mr Storer, are stopping for a few days at the ST. CLAIR HOTEL, and are prepared to sell State, County, City or Furnace rights to this discovery. se26:1w
