The title of this work sufficiently explains itself, and we are free to say it is one of the South. In quality and cheapness they cannot most attractive of the character which has be surpassed. come under our notice. It contains the results of a series of experiments with the mi-croscope, not in the usual dry, philosophical style, but in a colloquial and familiar style, lieved of the sameness of technical description, without any sacrifice of scientific precision. It embodies a large amount of information, is well illustrated, and will be a valuable addition to the library of any one engaged in microscopic researches.

GREAT FACTS: A Popular History and Description of the most Remarkable Inventions during the present Century. By Frederick C. Bakewell New York: D. Appleton & Co. Sold in Pittsburgh by J. S. Davidson, Wood

This is a valuable epitome, forming, as it does, a history of inventions in an attractive form, each being treated according to its importance. We find in this work chapters on Steam Navigation, Bailways, Photography, the Steraoscope, the Air Engine, the Telegraph, Electricity, Printing Machines, Lithograghy, Tubular Bridges, Pumps, Fire Arms, Gas, Though, Though is well Lighting, Electricity, &c. The book is well lustrated, and is both useful and entertaining. HERE AND THERE; or Earth and Heaven Contrasted, New York: D. Appleton & Co. Sold by J S. Davidson, Pittsburgh. This is a little compilation never before published in the United States, having been copied by a lady from an English work, and has been ound valuable as a Christian solace in seasons

A Birth in the Watchhouse. On Friday evening, a single woman, aged about nuneteen, called at the hotel of Mr. Hare on Liberty street, and, stating that she had just arrived in the city by the Allegheny Valher her supper. During the evening she acted much so as to excite the attention of all in the house. She was apparently rest-less and uneasy, walking in and out of her own room, into those occupied by others, and making frequent visits to the water closet.

Mrs. Hare suspected her condition and asked her about it, but she stoutly denied. After Mr. Hare, the landlord, had retired, the woman continued to wander about the house in this manner, until Mr. Hare's son and others in the house, conceiving she was insane, called in a watchman and sent her to the tombs, Mr. Hare himself following her to see that she was well cared for. Soon after being taken to the watch house, she was seized with violent pains, and, twenty minutes afterward, was the mother of a female child. Mr. Hare's son, who had ac companied his father to the watch house, now returned home, and sent up Mrs. Hare and another lady, in the family carriage, who took charge of the woman and infaut, and conveyed them back to the hotel, where they still remain. They will receive every attention here until the mother is able to return to her friends in Westmoreland county.

—Since writing the above we learn that the woman has made a deposition before Mr. Geo. Fortune, of the Board of Health, testifying substantially to the above facts. We also learn that the woman has been in the city some seven weeks, wandering homelessly about, having been ejected from several places be no means. She has been twice at the Guardian's office, procuring relief for her necessities on both occasions. She states that the lather of her child is in Kansas, and we learn that proper measures will be taken to compel him to (at least partially) support the unfortunate woman and her child.

Mammoth Establishment-Bradley's Great Pittaburgh Stove Works. As a point for the successful manufacture of iron in all its departments, Pittsburgh possesses pre-eminent advantages over any other city in the Union. The cheapness and abundance of fuel, the skilled labor, the healthy location of our city, the cheapness of living, are local advantages in which we excel. Pittaburgh is also situated near the centre of the population of the country, and by rivers, railroads and confined to no locality or section Her products are sold in every city of the West and

The superiority of the iron manufactures o our city is universally acknowledged. In magnitude and extent of product there are but few establishments in the country engaged in the iron business which can compare with our own. From small beginnings they have grown with the increasing population and trade of the city to gigantic proportions.

In the article of stoves, some of our large establishments may well challenge competition with the world. The Pittsburgh . Etna stove works, established by Alex Bradley, Esq. is a fair spectmen of our manufacturing establishments. It is in all respects a most complete and extensive conare aware of the extent to which such an establishment as this carries on the manufacture of stoves of every kind and description. We had the pleasure of going through the Ætna stove works, a day or two since, and although we agby, astonished at the extent of this one, and the best constructed stove buildings in our city. The most perfect mechanical arrangements are in use for labor saving. The stoves are hoisted from floor to floor by machinery. The drilling, the making of rods, the rounding of pot bails, the cleaning of the ware, the making of blacking, &c., are all done by neatly contrived ma-variety of patterns of any similar concern in the country. Mr. Bradley, the pro-prietor of these works for so many years, has always kept pace with the improvements of the day. He has always availed himself of every new patent and design which has been invented, and this, together with his careful and close attention to business, accounts for his unparrelled success. The customers of the Ætna works are fully aware that at this establishment they are slways sure of the best tablishment they are slways sure of the best tables against both tables are slowed to the tables against both tables are slowed to the tables against both tables are slowed tables. and most improved stoves to be found in the

and most improved stoves to be found in the market and at the lowest prices.

Mr. Bradley his been in the foundry business for thirty-three years, and is one of the pioneers in the business in Pittsburgh. He has succeeded by his enterprise, and his liberal manner of dealing, in attracting a large trade in stoves to our city from the West and South. The stoves which he manufactures have recommended themselves at all points which are ac cessible by the large western rivers and their tributaries. The proprietors of the Ætna works are gentlemen who devote their attention to their business, and who can be depended upon as fair and honorable dealers and fully entitled to the confidence of their customers.

Strangers who may visit our city, and have a curiosity to examine one of our extensive man-ufactories, would have their curiosity greatly gratified by spending a few hours in the .Etm which is situated a couple of squares North East of the Pennsylvania Railroad passenger depot. The sample and sales room of the works may be foundat No. 4 Wood street, near Water.

It is impossible, in a newspaper article, to enter into an elaborate description of the next and beautiful patterns, and serviceableness and convenience of the wares manufactured at the Relief for the Lawrence Sufferers.

PITTSBURGH. MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 16, 1860.

[From the Sunday Times]
A WOMAN OF MIND.

My wife is a woman of mind,
And Fowler, who examined her bumps
Vow'd that never was found in a woman
Such large intellectual lumps
Ideality as big as an egg,
With casuality great was combined:
He charged me one dollar and said—
Sir, your wife is a woman of mind!

Hhe's too clever to care how she looks, And will horrid blue spectacles weur -Not because she believes they give her A fine intellectual air: No! she pays no regard to appearance, And combs all her front hair behind— Not because she is proud of her forehead But because she's a woman of mind.

She makes a bushel of verses,
But never a pudding or tart;
If I hint I should like one, she vows
I'm an animal surely at heart!
Though I've noticed she spurns not the pastry,
Whene'er at a friend's we have dhad;
And has always had two plates of pudding—
Such plates for a woman of mind. Not a stitch does she do but a distich, Minds her pens instead of my clothes: I have not a shirt with a button, Nor a stocking that's sound at the toes; Nor a stocking that's sound at the toes; If i ask her to darn me a pair, She replies she has work more refined; endes, to be darning of stockings. Is it fit for a woman of mind?

> PHILADELPHIA, January 14.—Between and I o'clock this morning, the Hon. John J. Crittenden, of Kentucky, was serenaded at the Girard House. Hail and rain were falling heavily at the time, but, notwithstanding this fact, several hundred citizens accompanied the band which serenaded the distinguished Kentuckian. After repeated cheers and cries for Mr. Crittenden, he appeared at one of the windows and addressed the assembly, begging them to retire and shelter themselves from the storm. He then bade his fellow-citizens good night. There was then a call for Hon. C. M. Courad, of Louisiana, who addressed the assemblage acknowledging the honor that had been paid to the distinguished friend and fellow-laborer with Henry Clay. The utmost applause greeted the speaker, who, in gracefully alluding to the Union, was vehemently cheered.

The obsequies of the late Rev. James Ryder, D. D., took place this morning. The ceremonies were performed at St. Joseph's Church, Willing's Alley, in presence of a vast crowd of people, and were unusually impressive. The Church had the "dim religious light" which Hungarian arrived here this morning. She left Liverpool on Wednesday, the 28th ult., but on a day like the present, when the sky spreads like a gloomy curtain from pole to pole. The remains of the deceased lay in the "sanctuary" of the ediffice, dressed in the priestly "alb," and "amise" and "delmatias." On the coffin hid appeared the golden chalice of the coffin hid appeared the golden chalice of the coffin which the church. Surrounding the coffin, which was exceedingly rich-looking, were a number of tall candles, which seemed to concentrate their lights as the morning advanced and the day grew gloomier. The church was draped in mourning—the funeral emblems depending from the galleries, from the altar, from the pedestal of the Virgin's statue, from the frame surrounding the picture of the Saviour, from the crucitix, from the pillars. The bell of the church tolled continuously the moment the windows were opened. A firewhen the fourth fell in. He let himself dron. from the window and was severely injured. The inflamable character of the material made a great light, but as we go to press it is thought it will be confined to the building. Loss on stock and building $50,000.

Portland, January 14.—The despatch by the Hungarian furnishes the following items of news:

The Bishop of Orleans has written a violent answer to the recent pamphlet on the Romish question.

The bill of the church tolled continuously during the services, and its mellow sound floating in at the windows gave an added charm to the mingled scene.

New York, January 14.—About two o'clock this morning a fire broke out in what is known as Ring's Building, 45½ Bowery, occupied by W. T. Wilkins, as an upholstery manufactory. When the alarm was given the fire had made question.
