Shortcomings and Needed Reforms.

NUMBER BIGHT. THE MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE OR BOARD OF TRADE.

As a commercial city, Pittsburgh has ever had and custained a high reputation for sound-ness and stability. Our morchants (as a genletters into an engine-house and opened them. Quite a large amount of money, we are in-formed, was taken. On Thursday night the oral rule) always meet their obligations pro ly and the number of failures here is small compared with those in other cities. Business here is transacted on a firm basis, with real capital, and plenty of it. In the commercial revulsions which have visited our country from time to time Pitusburgh has always stood up nobly and sustained her reputation

Yet with all this, there is a strange want of comity among business men, who i to go upon the principle of "every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost" Nearly have not been caught. every man tries to undersell his neighbors, and the terms of all large transactions are kept strictly private-to give them to the public would be to injure somebody's business-if a few tons of pig metal are sold, and a commercial reporter asks the terms they are refused and he is told to mark it  $p \neq 1$  This is exemplified every day, and the policy seems to us very narrow-minded and calculated to injure rather than benefit the general commercial interests of the city. We have here what is called a Board of Trade, or Merchants' Exchange - a high shocking for about twelve h urs, when death deep and fowed for five weeks. Whon first deep and fowed for five weeks.
