WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 27.

WHERE WE ARE GOING AND WHY WE ARE GOING THERE.

The weak and incompetent administration at Washington City, seems to be fast settling down into hollow emptiness. The nation most painfully feels and sees the position into which sectionalism has driven it. With a declaratory coercive policy, an armed collision between the administration of Mr. Lincoln and the Southern Confederacy is now regarded on all hands as impossible, and yet at the same time the probabilities of any conciliatory movement seem every day to be growing fainter and fainter. When the inaugural address was delivered, Mr. Lincoln undoubtedly meditated coercive measures. These have been prevented by lack of power to carry them out, and by the manifest aversion of the people of the country to any such measures. And still with apparent stupor the administration stands still, and does not manifest the slightest disposition to make any concessions which might pave the way to a compromise and a re-uniting of the dissevered sections of the Union.

The country is wearied with expectation, excitement, and disappointed hopes. The bitter partizans of Republicanism, paralyzed as they are at their inability to carry on the government, hesitate to yield anything upon the requisition of the seceded States. They refuse even to listen to the demands of the conservative men in the Border Slave States which are still faithful to the Union. They do nothing. They propose nothing. They advise nothing.

The Republican party having control of the government, stands powerless and effete, gazing listlessly upon the ruin which it has caused. Its leaders, like drugged lions, move reluctantly and heavily when compelled by the whips and kicks of the Van Amburghs and Dresbachs of the people. The animals move when severely punched, and then they lie down with a yawn and a growl.

The Republican party has but itself to blame for the present distressing condition of the country. Before the election they fell into a most unfortunate delusion. The friends of the Union warned them of the fatal consequences of a sectional triumph. They were implored to join in some pacifying act, to do something which the warnings of popular sentiment in the South rendered indispensible to be done to save the Union, and they refused all compliance. They proclaimed that there would not be the least trouble; that no movement for disunion would take place in the South, that all this commotion was for political effect. The Democracy and conservative men of the North warned them of their error, and they laughed us to scorn. They said people would be astonished to see how pleasantly the Southern States would submit to a Republican dispensation. Under delusions of this sort the Republican party let things drift on until South Carolina went out. Then they scoffed still, and said, "let her go, she'll be begging to come back before we ask her," or if we choose "we'll whip her back." Other States followed and still the Republican party stubbornly refused all concession.

The friends of the Union in Congress and in the Peace Congress and every where else, pointed the Republicans to the state of things at the South, and told them of the ruin which was coming upon the government. They pressed the necessity and urgency of compromise. The Republicans, mad and stubborn, refused. They would not "back down and knuckle to the South—no, not they!" They voted down Crittenden's resolutions and Douglas' resolutions, and now the "no compromise" cry has done its work. The present evils, and those which are to come, may all be laid to the delusions and obstinacy of the Republican party. They refused to be guided by past history or present necessity.

History told them that compromise was union: no compromise, disunion.

When the great charter of the Union, the Constitution, was formed, Washington, Franklin, Madison and Hamilton said compromise. So also on the Missouri question in 1820, the nullification question in 1832, the California question in 1850, compromise restored good feeling, maintained peace and promoted the Union.

But in 1861, a crisis has come more dangerous than any which have preceeded it, and Crittenden, Douglas, Bigler, Bell, Cameron, Johnson, Stephens and hosts of other great and Union loving men, now say "compromise," as Monroe, Clay, Cass, Adams, Fillmore, Webster, and this same Douglas, have said before, and the Republican party heed them not, but follow the DISUNIONISTS of the North, Sumner, Giddings, Lovejoy, Beecher, Redpath, Greeley & Co., and all the mad fanatics of the Chicago Platform.

The Republican leaders have become either imbeciles or madmen. They know that they have done this great evil to their country and they are determined to consummate it. They will not compromise, and rather than yield they are GOING TO GIVE THE UNION UP. This is the point to which we are fast drifting. It is easy to see from the Republican papers that their leaders are rapidly acquiescing in the policy of recognizing the separate existence, as a government, of the Confederated States of the South. It is idle to deny that this is the point to which the Administration is drifting. The party which created this Administration dared the worst, and it has come upon us. It cannot compel a union; it refuses concession or compromise to restore the Union, and to endorse the dissolution of the Union is the only sequence of its mad and traitorous policy. Relief cannot be expected from the Republican party.—As a government, the circumstances of the Administration are most pitiable. Its party have wrecked the proudest fabric of government the world ever saw, and rather than admit its error and like true patriots, rally for a united country, they will tie their torn and smirched banner to dissolution and destruction of public prosperity. This is the end which fanaticism and sectionalism have wrought for a great Republic. God, take care of the people when madmen rule.

Texas.

From Texas we learn that both branches of the Legislature had taken the oath of allegiance to the new government, a few of the members under protest. Governor Houston and the Secretary of State have retired from their offices and delivered up the records. Gen. Houston had issued an appeal to the people, in which he severely denounces the action of the Convention.

BALTIMORE, says the Cincinnati Enquirer is one of the places where Old Abe did not, think it "necessary to put the foot down firmly."

Bold and Wicked Combination

—TO—

ROB THE U. S. MAIL & EXPRESS,

ON THE

Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Road.

Some few weeks since information was received by the officers of the Pittsburgh Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railroad that an attempt was being made to organize a body of men to obstruct or destroy portions of the track of their road, and thus throw the trains from the track, for the purpose of robbing the express and mails. Having become satisfied that the information was perfectly reliable, the officers of the Company at once determined to place the further investigation of the truly diabolical affair in the hands of that justly celebrated detective, Allen Pinkerton, Esq., of Chicago. The danger was imminent, and Mr. Pinkerton, with his accustomed energy and skill, at once went to work, with a large corps of detectives, "as noiselessly as snow flakes fall upon the sod."

The detectives went to work, each in the place assigned him, and in the various shapes, forms and characters designated for them by Mr. P. The result of their efforts soon became evident: whilst one division of the detectives, well armed, watched the track by night, another branch devoted their time to the discovery of those connected with the conspirators, and in ingratiating themselves into their good graces, by accusing themselves of being the most desperate criminals, some of the detectives managed to obtain favor with a few of the principal members of this band of outlaws, who hesitated not at the danger or loss of life of those who might be in the trains, so that they only secured the booty.

Once the detectives obtained an entrance to the organization, they managed to introduce others of their number, who were located at other points and on the trains, and they were enabled to secure introductions to all the principal members of the gang, and to have a full knowledge of all the subordinate members.

It was found that the association extended not only over a portion of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railroad, but to various points on the Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, and Bellefontaine and Indiana Railroads, and other important and leading routes in Ohio and Indiana.

It will be recollected that a little over four years ago a Mr. Whitney, a respected and wealthy citizen of Loudonville, Ohio, who lived in the outskirts of the village, was brutally murdered and robbed of a considerable sum of money. Every exertion was at the time made by officers and citizens to find out the perpetrators of this atrocious murder, but without avail, although circumstances pointed strongly towards certain persons who had been around Loudonville for some days prior to the murder, and who, while there, had been seen under suspicious circumstances with a somewhat notorious person, a resident of the place, who himself, was by his neighbors, strongly suspected; but the fear in which each individual in the vicinity stood of this person prevented them from mentioning his name in such connection openly.

Shortly after the murder of Mr. Whitney, a brakeman in the employ of the P., Ft. W. and C. R. R., was, whilst at Crestline one dark night, assaulted upon the platform and severely injured by some parties to the public unknown. After a partial recovery he stated that he knew the assaulting party, but, although for a time his life was despaired of, he refused to name them, and it was confidently believed that this attempt to assassinate him arose from his knowledge of the murderers of Whitney, and thus to prevent him from ever disclosing the perpetrators

"Dead men tell no tales"

The investigation of the detectives into the organization to destroy the Rail Road track for the purpose of robbing, developed that divisions of the gang existed at Loudonville, Lakeville, Massilon, Mansfield, Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, Crestline, Galion, Columbus, Cleveland, &c., and that they were bold and reckless men, fit for any crime. Also, that the parties suspected of the murder and assault mentioned above were connected with and prominent actors in this hellish association. One of their principal originators and directors lives at Loudonville, and is the person alluded to as the one suspected of being connected with the murder of Whitney, and who, being largely engaged in the manufacture of counterfeit money, was thus enabled to keep them in funds.

The detectives also discovered that pending the arrival of the favorable time for the consummation of their attack on the trains, the members of the gang were operating in their peculiar sphere, by numerous robberies of post-offices, stores, and dwellings along the lines of the roads we have mentioned, and such was the feeling of terror engendered amongst the citizens by these lawless acts that application was made to Mr. Pinkerton, by the authorities of several of the towns, for aid in detecting the offenders, but being already at work in the same business, and desirous to continue his operations unknown to any but the Rail Road officers, he declined "on account of other engagements," being satisfied in his own mind that the association was too extensive to be reached by any merely local action.

Thus affairs were pending and the Railroad officers and Mr. Pinkerton felt confident of the safety of the tracks and of the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties at the first commission of any overt act which would bring them fully within the grasp of the law. When, much to the surprise of the officers of the road, they were notified, on Saturday last, by our attentive Postmaster, of the contents of a letter received by him from Mansfield, which, as will be seen by the copy of the letter below, was intended for a member of the gang at Massilon, but, by mistake, placed in the envelope directed to . Postmaster, Pittsburgh.

GALION, March 21, 1861.

DEAR BOB:—I am just in receipt of yours, and have glanced hurriedly over contents—find everything much to my liking.

Can't imagine why Potevine acted so d—d foolish. I think Banty will answer the place much better. You should have burned the body—think you had better do it soon, and be certain. You must send Barry necessary instructions. But how will we do in regard to that letter, you know Buck wrote to him, some time rince? and, I think, since he left.

It wont do to have it go to the dead office—can't you send and get it out soon?

I am in great haste, so you must excuse me for touching everything lightly. We have had a special meeting to take into consideration our Railroad scheme. We have agreed upon a plan at last—one originated by Thompson. He has just returned from N. York, and has brought us some small Batteries—some rockets, disguises, &c. We are to sink powder under the track and ignite it by means of the batteries. Between Lakeville and Loudonville is the place we selected for the mail train, and between Crestline and Upper Sandusky for the freight train. Then we are to destroy nearest bridges and telegraph, to prevent any possibility of assistance reaching them, and then we are to illuminate some of the nearest towns, so as to cause a general confusion. We can then operate with perfect safety. We have another meeting on 30th, at Head Quarters, to select suitable men—you must come up without fail and send word to all your boys. You must excuse me for being so brief as I have about twenty letters to write, and want to call in boys that are out.

I am going down to Mansfield this evening, to mail some of my letters, and I will just drop a line to the Post Master at Pittsburgh and have him forward Potwin's letter, and that will be better than to send for it. I went to Mansfield last Friday and made some inquiries about that fellow you wrote about. I saw him, and from your description and his knowledge of you and some of our men, I think I can say positively he is the same man. He told me himself that it was currently reported that he was dead; He told me he had been in prison several years, and that he had sworn off. Said he felt no ill will towards you or any one else—thought he would remain home this summer. I think you had better go and see him yourself and you will have more influence than any one else—believe him to be a flint, steel pointed. Davy and Jess made a little effort here a few nights ago, but only got a few empty letters. Jess has gone to Newark and Davy is in Mansfield waiting a chance. I shall be in Crestline until the 30th don't leave Massilon unless you first inform me. Thompson and Fred and Jerry will stay at Cleveland I will see Jeff and get you some coney by Saturday—you can see your own men, and go with them to Lakeville, but do not inform them of our business—you can stop with Bill Wolf—he is one of our Bridge men, but dont be seen in daylight, and before you do anything else select some appropriate names for your men, so we can distinguish them. I had not time to use cypher, as it is so tedious and I am so busy now. I will see Jimmy again and see if he can be come at and let you know.

We have enough boys on trains now and shall not trust any more—plenty of girls now every place. Geo Cline visits Mansfield pretty often. Mrs Shaw is a darling but dont tell him I said so, or he may hustle that Rag business out.

Yours, in fidelity,

CHARLEY GRIMES

Owing to the unexpected turn thus given to the investigation, from the receipt of the above letter by our Postmaster and the publicity given to the same—we deem it our duty to lay the above facts before our readers, and trust, that from the complete arrangements made by the officers of the P. Ft. W. & C. R. and the well known ability of Mr. Pinkerton as a detective, the villians who could thus coolly plan such horrid crimes, will meet their just deserts. They are all known and we feel assured that the officers of the road and the detectives will never relax their efforts until swift and speedy justice is meted out to them. We know we only speak the sentiments of the whole community in asserting that these fiends when caught in their acts will and should receive a short shrift and the speedy death to which their contemplated designs would consign the innocent traveler, and we much mistake the temper and coolness of Mr. Pinkerton if such are not his tactics.

GOODS DUTY FREE.

We clip the following pregnant paragraph from the last St. Louis Republican:

Every day our importers of foreign merchandise are receiving, by way of New Orleans, very considerable quantities of goods duty free. The goods evaded at New Orleans—no Custom House bonds are taken of them—no bonds are executed for the payment of duties on their arrival there and on many articles the saving of one-half the duty, would afford a handsome profit. This thing to become permanent, there will be an entire revolution in the course of trade, and New York will suffer terribly. Our merchants have capital enough to pay duties on their purchases in Europe, and shipping to New Orleans, and in that city, because of the difference in the tariff, goods can be bought cheaper than in New York. With these advantages we shall be able to sell cheaper than any other city in the Valley of the Mississippi.

To meet this state of affairs the Republicans propose to call an extra session of Congress and repeal the Morrill tariff, and to fight for free trade in the South with free trade in the North. We have already spoken at length of the destruction which this will bring upon the manufacturing interests of the country and especially of Pennsylvania. The Detroit Free Press feebly argues with what we have already said that this proposed new tariff will be merely nominal. It will give no protection to any branch of American industry whatever. It will bring the cheap labor of Europe in competition with our own labor as it has never been brought before, and it will prostrate every American interest that needs tariff protection. Our manufactories will be for the most part crushed, our supplies of almost every manufactured article will come from abroad. Hundreds of millions of dollars invested in manufactures will be sunk, hundreds of thousands of people engaged in manufactures will cease to have employment or the hope of employment, manufacturing villages and cities will be deserted,—and, more than all this, THE PEOPLE WILL HAVE TO PAY DIRECT TAXES FOR THE SUPPORT OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

It is our very candid belief that the time is not far distant when the people of the United States will be sick, very, very sick, of Republicanism.

Fort Pickens.

Despatches from Fort Pickens state that the garrison there is short of provisions, and can hold out but a short time longer. None but official communication is permitted at Pensacola, and the squadron can neither reinforce the Fort nor furnish supplies. Appearances indicate that before long the government will also be compelled to abandon Fort Pickens to the secessionists.

IT is related at washington that recently an office-seeker called upon Secretary Chase, having with him his wife and children, and expected, as he expressed it, to be set right to work. He came from Indiana. The children, wife and the baggage were all up to the Secretary's office.

A fellow out West being asked whether the liquor he was drinking was a good article, replied: "Wal, I don't know, I guess so. There is only one queer thing about it, whenever I wipe my mouth, I burn a hole in my shirt sleeve!"

THE Georgia State Convention adjourned on Saturday night.

A Sensible Republican.

The St. Louis Republican states that the Hon. W. B. Ogden, of Chicago, member of the Illinois State Senate, and a very popular gentleman withal, was called upon by a number of gentlemen in that city a few days since. In a speech, he made use of the following language in reference to his own (the Republican) party:—

"He could not be untrue to his own conscientious convictions. He would not say that the Republican platform was not right, as far as an abstract truth was concerned; but he would say that the Republican party had made a mistake. The doctrine of that platform, that there should be no more slave States, could not be carried out. The attempt to carry it out would put an end to this government. He saw the mistake which they had made before the election, and he had anticipated the result. When, on the evening after the election, he stood in the house of a friend on Beacon street, in the city of Boston, and saw the long procession of 'Wide Awakes' go by, with torches and banners and shouts of triumph, a lady standing near him remarked, 'Mr. Ogden; you do not seem to enjoy it.' 'Madam,' was the reply, 'I am never merry at a funeral.' With some surprise she inquired what he meant. His reply was that he feared the procession then passing would prove to be the funeral procession of the nation."

Secret Letters to the Cabinet.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says: I am disposed to believe that information has been received by several members of the Cabinet that Jefferson Davis' prophesy, that in twelve months the Secessionists will be in possession of the capital of the United States, has been repeated in certain anonymous letters, and that Mr. Lincoln's administration is determined to do all in its power to prevent the Border States from going out of the Union.

The Louisiana Sugar Crop.

A correspondent of the New Orleans Delta, writing from St. James Parish, under date of the 4th inst., says: "At this time we are able to make an estimate of the next sugar crop. The prospects for a large one are very flattering, and the Confederacy will be able to export a large quantity to the United States. The seed cane was never better, and many have more than they want. The ratoons are all good, even the second year's. Vegetation is very forward, as I the cane already marks the rows in some lands with a fine color, soon henceforth we may reach the crop of 1853, say fourteen hhds and upwards, or double that of last year.
