

THE TWENTY DAYS.

The President of the United States in his first proclamation gives the rebels twenty days grace to disperse and return to their allegiance.

It has been spent in making preparations for a vigorous campaign. The second States have given no sign of returning to their allegiance.

Two weeks ago an unbiased mob in Baltimore, strongly backed by popular feeling among the better citizens, attacked and killed troops who were passing through that city, in obedience to the call of the President.

What a change has been wrought in two weeks. The determination of the Northern States to relieve the capital, through Maryland and over Baltimore, if necessary, has brought the people to their senses.

But the twenty days are now up, and now we look for more decided action on the part of the Government.

It is manifest that the Government is determined to preserve its power, enforce the laws, and crush out this mad rebellion with a firm hand.

The patriotisms of the 15th of April, has placed the Government before present danger from the rebellion.

CAMPS CURTIN AND SCOTT.

The following message communicating a very important correspondence between the Secretary of War, Gen. Cameron, Gov. Curtin and Gen. Robert Patterson, is sent into the Senate on Thursday.

The first order made upon me by the Federal Government was for sixteen regiments of infantry, which, by a written order, was immediately, and I continued to receive companies for the same.

The order from Major General Patterson of the 25th of April was in the following terms: 'The President of the United States, by the Military Department of Washington, has directed me to send you a message.'

I have the honor to be, Sir, in reply to your letter of the 25th inst., to inform you that I have received your letter of the 25th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have received your letter of the 25th inst.
